

RELIEF WORK IS IMPORTANT IN RED CROSS

Many inquiries are being received from Red Cross chapters, the public and the press as to the relation of Red Cross war relief work to the efforts of many special committees and organizations which have recently been formed to render aid in some particular phase of present European hostilities.

From the outset the American Red Cross has been in close touch with the war relief situation but, mindful of responsibilities at home, has not felt that the needs abroad were such as yet to make necessary a major campaign by the Red Cross for a war relief fund.

However, many needs exist, and those who can aid, should make their contributions promptly either to the Red Cross or, if they prefer, to those responsible temporary agencies dealing with special phases of war relief needs. As in the past, the Red Cross will conduct its work in such a manner that other agencies may coordinate their activities, so that there need be no duplication in the relief to be rendered. The Red Cross has from time to time invited representatives of other groups to meet with it to coordinate the various efforts and many of these groups are sending their funds to the Red Cross designated for relief in the country in which they are interested.

It must be remembered that the Red Cross is a permanent institution; it operates under the authority of an international treaty and a congressional charter; and it has continuing and primary responsibilities for the conduct of Red Cross work in the United States—alike nationally and in the more than 10,000 communities where its chapters are active throughout this country.

The Red Cross also has international responsibilities and immediately upon the outbreak of the present hostilities initiated operations to meet most critical emergency needs. Assistance in the form of cash, medical and hospital supplies and clothing has been sent to the Red Cross societies of Great Britain, France and Poland in response to their requests, and to the societies of Hungary, Romania, Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania for aid to Polish refugees.

In the last week the Red Cross has been asked to send emergency medical aid to the Finnish Red Cross, and the requested supplies have already reached Finland. A representative has been sent and the Red Cross is prepared to extend further aid as more accurate knowledge of the needs in that country is gained.

In war relief the Red Cross emphasizes first, medical and hospital aid, and in addition thousands of volunteers in the chapters are producing surgical dressings and warm clothing in large quantities, which are shipped as rapidly as tonnage is available.

In the recent roll call the public has again generously responded for the support of the regular work of the Red Cross. From the outset of the European war the Red Cross has sought and received contributions for relief to war sufferers of all countries, and donors may designate the peoples for which they wish to have their contributions utilized. Such designated contributions will be expended wholly and exclusively for assistance in accordance with the wishes of the donors. With the recently developed conflict in Finland the Red Cross has advised all chapters that contributions designated for relief in that country are welcomed.

As the conflict continues the needs will inevitably very greatly increase and the best efforts of all will be required, if the country
