EFFORTS MADE FOR CLASS IN FLYING HERE

Efforts are being made by local airport officials and others of the community interested in the advancement of aviation to secure a non-college flight training base for Klamath Falls. It was made known at the airport Saturday, and it is believed that if the matter is given sufficient support it will be put through within the next year.

Bill Randall, co-manager of the local port, announced that he and Earl Reynolds, secretary of the chamber of commerce, have addressed letters to Wiley Wright, private flying instructor at Seattle, Wash., urging further consideration of Klamath Falls for one of the flight training centers.

Salem was named by the CAA recently as a training base for the non-college flight course in Oregon, and local officials believe that due to the fact that Salem is the home of Willamette university, which makes the city eligible for one of the college centers, the selection was unjust to other cities of the state where the advantage of a college or university does not exist.

Although previous efforts to bring pressure to bear on CAA officials failed to result in any steps toward establishment of a school here, Randall said he believed present efforts may bring results. He and others interested in the program believe that Klamath Falls possesses all the requisites for one of the bases.

FAIR SKIING AT PARK PREDICTED

Winter sports fans scanned the skies for assurance that this weekend would be perfect for skiing. Carlisle Crouch, chief ranger at Crater Lake national park, said conditions were not as good as they were last weekend as there has been no new snow in the park since Thursday. The 51-inch snow depth is fairly with a slight crust but on the sunny slopes skiing should be "lively good."

Motorists who plan to drive to the park are advised that roads are plowed out but frozen. Although chains are not "absolutely necessary for travel they should be carried," Crouch stated Saturday.

It was cold in the park Saturday morning with a minimum temperature of 7 degrees above zero. Visibility was 29 degrees, Crouch stated. Fog was considered excellent with a few high clouds and clear skies.

CONTRACTS LET ON HIGHWAY PROJECTS

PORTLAND, Jan. 13 (P)—W. H. Lynch, U. S. bureau of public roads told the state highway commission yesterday two road projects had been added to the forest program this year in Oregon.

The commission closed a two-day session by awarding eight contracts to low bidders, including: Klamath-Rogers Construction company, Dayton, Wash., $19,733 for grading, surfacing and oiling for furnishing crushed rock for .51 of a mile Dairy-section Klamath Falls-Lakeview highway.

HIGH SCHOOL News Notes and Comment

As Friday afternoon came to a close the student body as a whole gave either a sigh of relief or a groan of agony and thanked their gods that another session of final examinations was now nothing more than a memory. Even the hardest hit found refuge in the thought that this meant the end of a semester and that means the school year is half gone.

Our favorite teacher who has finally decided is Mrs. O'Neill, head of the English department, who passes out suckers to all her seniors taking the final exams. This she claims relieves the mental tension of the suffering senior. We agree with her.

A barn dance will be given at the Willard hotel Friday night by the Junior Dance club, according to Student President Bob O'Connor. Those who don't come dressed as farmers will have the tariff on their admission raised.

The Pelican book exchange opened for business Wednesday and has been receiving the veterans of past wars from those students who no longer need them for the past three days. According to those in charge the greatest demand which the exchange has been unable to fill is for second semester social economics books. Any graduate who happens to have one will be practically insured an immediate sale if he turns it in to the book exchange. Sale of the books for next semester will start Monday.

Students will only have to attend school half a day Monday and as registrations will take place Tuesday, school life probably won't get back to normal until Wednesday.

The Wildcats met defeat Friday night at the hands of Keno, but, as the Cats are probably beginning to realize, you can't always win.

PHOSPHATE SUPPLY GROWING SHORTER

Rapidly dwindling supplies of triple phosphate, available to Oregon farmers through county Agricultural Conservation associations, indicates a possible shortage of this material.

Klamath county farmers who have already placed orders should complete forms immediately and others interested in obtaining phosphate should not wait to place their orders, according to C. A. Henderson, county agent.

Information received Friday shows the state supply decreasing at a rapid rate. Previous statements that ample supplies would be available for the state are apparently in error. Farmers who do not place orders immediately may find it impossible to obtain even small amounts.

Treble phosphate is advanced to farmers at the price of $2.00 per 100 pounds in amounts not to exceed each farm's soil-building allowance. Payments of $1.50 per 100 pounds is made for applying the material to corn, sorghum, alfalfa, clovers, or pastures, at a rate of application not less than 75 pounds per acre. The cost of the material is charged against 1940 conservation payments.

SOLDIERS EMBARK FOR SHAM ATTACK IN CALIFORNIA

TACOMA, Wash., Jan. 13 (P)—Troops with full wartime kits swarmed aboard five transport ships here and at Olympia today, signaling the start of the biggest joint army-navy war games in the annals of Uncle Sam's fighting services.

Approximately 5000 soldiers of the third division were to leave on three troop ships this afternoon, shortly after another 1000 departed from Olympia with a cargo of mechanized equipment.

An additional 1675 left last week, to the tune of "California, Here We Come."

California's coast will be the object of their attack. The gigantic maneuvers will be pre-empted because they will involve an actual expedition against a "hostile" coast.

The transport Republic, which went to San Pedro last week, will meet the five ships off the California coast prior to the attack.

One of the major tasks involved in the maneuver will be the landing of mechanized equipment—artillery, trucks, and tanks. For that purpose several miles of chicken wire was included in the ships' cargo to facilitate movement of the machinery on the beach sands.

The mechanized equipment will be taken ashore in surf boats in the face of "fire" of coast defenders.

Maj. Gen. W. C. Sweeney is in command of the third division attacking force.

A dash of wartime color was injected into the maneuver preparation last night when blackout regulations prevailed aboard the transports. All windows and portholes were painted or covered.

ATTACK
PORTLAND, Jan. 13 (P)—Portland Veterans of Foreign Wars and American Legion members adopted a joint resolution yesterday condemning Dean James Landis and Labor Secretary Frances Perkins for their actions in the Harry Bridges deportation hearing.

Detatorships, regardless of their constitutional or unorthodox nature, are a pattern of control which the logic of circumstances often tends to thrust upon a people when certain crisis conditions prevail. — Prof. J. O. Hertzler, University of Nebraska sociologist.

The Family Doctor

BY DR. MORRIS FISHEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

THE term "thrombophlebitis" refers to an inflammation of the lining of a vein, resulting frequently in coagulation of the blood inside the vein. The condition sometimes occurs spontaneously with immediate pain.

The first step is always rest. The patient should lie flat in bed and not move his limbs. Hot moist packs should be applied until the immediate signs of inflammation have disappeared. This may take a week or 10 days. Sometimes use of X-ray under medical control helps to subdue the inflammation.

The physician then usually makes a complete study of the patient to determine whether any specific cause can be found for the inflammation of the vein. In some cases, infections in the teeth, throat, sinuses or elsewhere seem to be associated with inflammation in the vein. Control of these infections will help to prevent further trouble in the form of phlebitis.

Sometimes, excessive smoking seems to be a factor, in which case it is necessary to demand that the patient cease this habit.

One of the great dangers of phlebitis lies in the fact that portions of clots may become detached and travel elsewhere in the body. This produces the condition called embolism.

If such a clot becomes fixed in the lung or in the brain, it may threaten life itself. The immediate threat is not great; but the threat does exist, and many instances are recorded in which such emboli have produced serious results. Any patient with an acute inflammation of the veins demands constant medical attention to make certain that everything is done to prevent an emergency.

In general, thrombophlebitis is treated by elevating the leg, applying hot, wet packs continuously and keeping the patient in bed long enough to make certain he is healed. Such patients may also require extended protection over long periods of time.

NORTHWEST GETS BIG SUM IN AID

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (P)—Farmers in the four northwest states will receive $23,344,215 from participating in the 1939 agricultural conservation and range program payments, parity payments and sugar payments.

E. Dodd, director of the western division of the agricultural adjustment administration informed Sen. McNary (R-Ore.) and Rep. Knute Hill (D-Wash.)

Washington led the way with her 31,000 participating farmers coming in for a total of $7,541,222 while Idaho's sugar payments to be made put her in second place with a total of $7,219,447. Oregon was third with $5,785,700 and Utah fourth with $2,794,849.

Dodd said the total payments expected under the agricultural conservation and range programs in Washington would be $4,953,000 with $2,101,540 already in paid by December 30. He said parity payments already made totaled $2,308,222 and estimated sugar payments would be $280,000.

The director said total conservation and range payments to Idaho's 23,000 participants would be $3,445,000 with $2,551,722 already paid. Parity payments he said already amounted to $1,723,447 while sugar payments would amount to $1,850,000.

Oregon's total conservation and range program payments were set at $4,121,000 for 21,000 farmers with $2,007,304 already paid them. They also already had received $1,467,700 in parity payments and would get $200,000 in sugar payments.

Dodd said 3058 wheat loans had been made in Idaho on 5,435.12 bushels of wheat, 1901 loans made in Oregon on 5,395.012 bushels and 4229 loans made in Washington on 11,650,445 bushels.

New officers for the ensuing year were elected at a meeting of the Klamath Automobile Dealers association at the Elk hotel Thursday night. Ed Ostendorf of Ostendorf Motor company was elected president, Earl Ware of Pacific Finance, was elected secretary, and A. A. Turner, Turner Chevrolet, was elected vice president.

A vote of thanks was extended to Dick Miller as president and Dinty Moore as secretary. Miller has served as president for the past year and Moore has been secretary for the past three years. It is planned to make the association much more active this year than in the past, according to Ostendorf.

Fish and game wardens in the state of Texas are now using airplanes to spot violators of the state's game laws.

ANNUAL KPGA MEET SLATED JANUARY 27

The Klamath Production Credit association will hold its sixth annual meeting in the American Legion hall in Klamath Falls, Saturday, January 27, Secretary-Treasurer Lee S. McMillen announced this week.

Plans for this meeting have been carefully prepared and the meeting date was set to avoid conflict with meetings of other farm groups.

This association serves 284 members in Klamath and Lake counties, Oregon, and the northern parts of Modoc and Siskiyou counties, California. During 1939 the association loaned approximately $1,775,000.00 for crop and livestock production in this area. The annual report of the association's business will be presented and a record attendance of farmer and rancher stockholders is expected.

A good program is being arranged which is to be put on largely by the members, with J. W. Bradley, secretary of the Production Credit corporation of Spokane, being the only outside speaker. A complimentary luncheon will be served to the members and guests at noon at the Willard hotel when an entertainment program will be presented.

The annual Green and Gold ball sponsored by the Mutual Improvement association, will be held this year on Saturday evening, January 20, in the Legion hall. It was announced by members this weekend.

The dance will be semi-formal and is given each year by the members of the Latter Day Saints church. The queen to rule over the Green and Gold ball will be named this week.

Crowning of the queen and the contest dance, which this year is announced as a tango, will start at 9:30 o'clock. Eddie Burrow is chairman of the affair.
