

KPCA REPORTS SOUND AID TO KLAMATH AREA

(Continued From Page One)

tion ceases to borrow for two years his stock is transferred to Class A. This is provided in the farm credit act to keep control of the association, in the hands of active borrowing members.

After paying all expenses, charging off losses and setting up a reserve for estimated losses, the report showed undivided profits from earnings of $108,935, which has been placed in reserves to fortify the capital structure and strengthen the organization.

Losses charged off in 1939 amounted to $7426. The total loaned since the organization began six years ago is $10,137,000. Losses have amounted to approximately 80 cents per $1000, which is regarded as exceptionally good.

The association owns government bonds in the amount of $351,900.

It was explained that capital funds of the association are invested in bonds and funds loaned by the association are obtained by discounting loans with the Federal Intermediate credit bank. The bank obtains its funds by pooling stockmen's and farmers' paper and selling against it debentures or short term bonds to the investing public, largely eastern banking institutions.

Under this procedure the stockmen and farmers through cooperative effort are able to reach the money markets of the country to obtain ample funds at a low interest rate comparable with that enjoyed by large business and industrial enterprises.

It was pointed out that many people still have the mistaken idea that the association loans government money.

Guests at the meeting included E. N. Watson, vice president of the Federal Intermediate Credit bank of Spokane, and J. W. Bradley, secretary of the Production Credit corporation of Spokane.

Bradley explained that the federal government through his corporation had furnished the initial capital of the association, $250,000. This is not used for lending but is invested in government bonds and is a backing to insure strength and stability.

He said also that as stockmen and farmers increase their investments in the capital of the association the investment of the corporation will be gradually withdrawn until eventually the association is entirely owned as well as controlled by the stockmen and farmer members.

Bradley pointed out the cooperative advantages of this type of credit agency. Among points he emphasized were that it is for service, not profit; that reputable farmers are eligible; that every member shares in the ownership of the association; that active members control it; that members are kept well informed of association business, and that reasonable but adequate charges are made.

The meetings were held in the American Legion hall. A free lunch was served to approximately 250 at the Willard hotel at noon.

less unemployment was solved, "uprisings might develop from people seeking a right to live," spoke for a resolution urging a government-sponsored conference on the problem.

Delegates adopted the resolution unanimously after giving Lewis a tremendous ovation. He concluded with the assertion that "I'm not going to take these things lying down as long as you're with me." Lewis asked why the politicians had not answered his demands for a conference.

"Some gentlemen may tell you that his favorite politician is a great friend of labor and is lying awake nights worrying about the problems of Europe and Asia.

"But," he shouted, "that doesn't put my men to work in the coal mines."

Murray told the convention: "The federal administration in Washington has evidenced no desire to cure unemployment. In Pennsylvania, which has 10 million citizens, one million are idle, and they represent three million people.

"Of this one million, only 333,000 are receiving relief. There are 666,000 left to shift for themselves—starving to death.

"If present conditions continue, an uprising might develop from people seeking a right to live."

Murray said he had appealed twice to President Roosevelt for a conference on unemployment, but Mr. Roosevelt "is fearful of disagreement, fearful that business leaders might not be willing to cooperate."

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, here to address the convention, described Lewis' break with the new deal as clever political strategy.

"Lewis is out to keep both parties guessing," the former NRA administrator said. "He put them on the anxious seat. Labor should never let its support be taken for granted."

The CIO leader, in criticizing the Roosevelt administration last week, said the democratic party should not take for granted that it always would have labor's support.

Johnson said that in contrast certain other CIO leaders were "going around talking and letting the democrats be sure of themselves."

opinion that Tim Brown was a man of strong character, keen mind and independent judgment; that, rightly or wrongly, he had become imbued with feelings of suspicion or distrust against his sister and members of her family; that his relationship with Mr. O'Neill and Mr. Schmitz was exceedingly friendly, and that in making them beneficiaries under his will, he was actuated by good and wholesome motives and was not laboring under any undue influence whatsoever. One of the factors that has satisfied my mind in this regard is the fact that the testator (Brown) lived, in full possession of his faculties, for a year and three months after executing the will, and that during the period he discussed and undertook to justify the making of the will, and the fact that O'Neill and Schmitz were beneficiaries, with other persons, in the absence of the beneficiaries and under circumstances in which the influence of the beneficiaries could not have been exercised."

O'Neill and Schmitz were represented in the trial of the case by Arthur W. Schupp and by O'Neill.

LABOR CHIEF 'WOOLZY', CIO HEAD CLAIMS

(Continued From Page One)

less unemployment was solved, "uprisings might develop from people seeking a right to live," spoke for a resolution urging a government-sponsored conference on the problem.

Delegates adopted the resolution unanimously after giving Lewis a tremendous ovation. He concluded with the assertion that "I'm not going to take these things lying down as long as you're with me." Lewis asked why the politicians had not answered his demands for a conference.

"Some gentlemen may tell you that his favorite politician is a great friend of labor and is lying awake nights worrying about the problems of Europe and Asia.

"But," he shouted, "that doesn't put my men to work in the coal mines."

Murray told the convention: "The federal administration in Washington has evidenced no desire to cure unemployment. In Pennsylvania, which has 10 million citizens, one million are idle, and they represent three million people.

"Of this one million, only 333,000 are receiving relief. There are 666,000 left to shift for themselves—starving to death.

"If present conditions continue, an uprising might develop from people seeking a right to live."

Murray said he had appealed twice to President Roosevelt for a conference on unemployment, but Mr. Roosevelt "is fearful of disagreement, fearful that business leaders might not be willing to cooperate."

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, here to address the convention, described Lewis' break with the new deal as clever political strategy.

"Lewis is out to keep both parties guessing," the former NRA administrator said. "He put them on the anxious seat. Labor should never let its support be taken for granted."

The CIO leader, in criticizing the Roosevelt administration last week, said the democratic party should not take for granted that it always would have labor's support.

Johnson said that in contrast certain other CIO leaders were "going around talking and letting the democrats be sure of themselves."

opinion that Tim Brown was a man of strong character, keen mind and independent judgment; that, rightly or wrongly, he had become imbued with feelings of suspicion or distrust against his sister and members of her family; that his relationship with Mr. O'Neill and Mr. Schmitz was exceedingly friendly, and that in making them beneficiaries under his will, he was actuated by good and wholesome motives and was not laboring under any undue influence whatsoever. One of the factors that has satisfied my mind in this regard is the fact that the testator (Brown) lived, in full possession of his faculties, for a year and three months after executing the will, and that during the period he discussed and undertook to justify the making of the will, and the fact that O'Neill and Schmitz were beneficiaries, with other persons, in the absence of the beneficiaries and under circumstances in which the influence of the beneficiaries could not have been exercised."

O'Neill and Schmitz were represented in the trial of the case by Arthur W. Schupp and by O'Neill.

COURT OPINION UPHOLDS WILL OF AGED INDIAN

(Continued From Page One)

the hall and asked by O'Neill to serve as the other witness.

Competent

Yaden testified, it was recalled by Judge Hay, that he questioned Brown at some length to determine if the old Indian knew exactly what he was doing. Yaden testified that in his opinion Brown was "undoubtedly competent."

Judge Hay said that "it is my opinion that the evidence offered clearly establishes that the will was sufficiently explained to Brown so that he thoroughly understood its tenor and effect."

The judge stated that it is his opinion it is the duty of an attorney who prepares a will for a client, under which the attorney is a beneficiary, either to insist upon the client's securing independent legal advice in the premises, or at the very least to see to it that he does receive such advice as would be given by an independent disinterested lawyer.

"I suggested as much to Mr. O'Neill on the witness stand," says the judge's opinion. "His explanation was that one had to know Tim Brown in order to appreciate the situation. Brown, he said, was intolerant of advice of that sort, and the upshot would have been that he would have walked out of the office and taken his business elsewhere."

Further along in his opinion, Judge Hay states: "There is no evidence whatever which would indicate that either O'Neill or Schmitz made any suggestion to Brown that he should make them the beneficiaries of his will."

In another paragraph, he states: "In my opinion it would have been good judgment on the part of Mr. O'Neill not to have drawn the will, but in the absence of credible evidence of undue influence, and in view of the evidence of Mr. Yaden, a reputable lawyer of this court and a disinterested and reliable witness, tending to show that the testator was competent and knew what he was doing, I believe the will should stand."

Finally summing up, the judge states: "Upon the whole case, it is my

KPCA Holds Sixth Annual Meeting

At a meeting of the Klamath Production Credit association Saturday directors and officers were elected and reports were presented showing the organization to be in sound financial condition. The picture shows the luncheon at the Willard hotel, where approximately 250 were served.

Oregon Bird Book Written By Jewett, Gabrielson

The first comprehensive bird book of Oregon, a state unusually rich in bird life, will soon be published at Oregon State college as a cooperative project of the United States bureau of biological survey and the college.

"The Birds of Oregon" by Ira M. Gabrielson, chief of the bureau of biological survey, and Stanley G. Jewett, superintendent of the Malheur migratory bird refuge, will contain more than 700 pages and approximately 200 illustrations. Many of these illustrations are from photographs by Dr. William L. Finley, Oregon naturalist, while most of the others are by the authors.

The book contains research and work of approximately 35 years on the part of Superintendent Jewett, and at least 20 years on the part of Dr. Gabrielson. The actual writing was done by Gabrielson, who was located in Oregon for nearly 20 years, during which time he was officially associated with the extension service at the college in connection with his work for the bureau of biological survey. Active cooperation in preparing this record of Oregon bird life has also

QUICK REPORT

GRISVOLD, Ia., (AP)—Five high school students took a self-declared holiday to hunt rabbits. A game warden read of the affair and asked them: "Where are your hunting licenses?" The boys didn't have licenses, but they had a quick answer: "We ran down the rabbits," they asserted. "We caught nine." The baffled game warden has not pressed charges.

TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY

FOR SALE—1933 Plymouth coupe, $100 and $15 per month for 10 months. All charges included in this price. Call 319 E. Main, Apt. 5. 1-31

FOR RENT—Completely furnished two-bedroom house, 2925 Applegate. 1-31

4-ROOM unfurnished house, close in. Phone 1372-W. 1-31

FOR RENT—Housekeeping room, 703 N. 9th St. 1-30

BOARD AND ROOM in lovely modern home, $8.00 per week, 1327 Sargent. 1-31

LARGE three-room partly furnished apartment, 2219 So. 6th. 1-30

THEY GOT THE RINK

LEWISTON, Me., (AP)—A group of young hockey players unwillingly used a good argument in protesting a ban of the city park rink by the schools superintendent.

Wearing their skates and carrying hockey sticks, they stormed city hall and so scared the flooring in the superintendent's office and corridor that he hurriedly rescinded the ban.

DRESS DESIGNING

TALOGA, Okla., (AP)—Gerald Livingston's Herford calf was prejudiced against a red-faced nurse cow supplied as a foster mother. The calf would nurse from a white-faced cow, but white-face was busy with her own calf. Gerald tied a white towel around the red-faced cow's head and the calf dropped all protests.

DEAD RECKONING

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., (AP)—Richard McKnight, Colorado college student, showed the police judge a sheet of equation-covered papers to prove he wasn't speeding.

The figuring, a five-hour job, was all right except that Traffic Officer Albert Peters testified McKnight made a four-block error in computing distance of the chase.

The answer—$12.50 fine.

FOR EVERY $1 THAT WAS PAID TO WORKMEN FOR BUILDING A CAR, TAX COLLECTORS COLLECT $4 DURING ITS LIFETIME.

CHILDREN'S FREQUENT COLDS

For relieving discomforts of chest colds and night coughs, rub VapoRub on throat, chest, and back at bedtime. VapoRub's spoolice-vapor action relieves congestion of upper air passages—eases soreness of chest and back muscles—helps the youngster relax into healing sleep.

For coughing and irritated throat caused by colds, put VapoRub on the child's tongue to relieve the irritation. Then massage VapoRub on throat and chest.

For "sniffles" and misery of head colds, melt VapoRub in a bowl of boiling water. Have the child breathe in the steaming vapors. This loosens phlegm, clears air passages, makes breathing easier. Also massage VapoRub on throat and chest. Millions of families use these three time-tested treatments.

ONE BEAUTIFUL HAND COLORED ENLARGEMENT AND 8 PRINTS 25¢

developed, printed from your film. Satisfaction guaranteed. Prompt service. Quality work. Send coin.

FOR WOMEN ONLY!

If aidgety nerves, restless nights and distress from female functional "irregularities" keep you from having fun in life—take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially to help such run-down, weak, ailing women. Try it!

VICKS VAPORUB

OREGON PICTURE COMPANY Box 4222 PORTLAND, OREGON

2000 DANCE AT BIRTHDAY BALL ON SATURDAY

More than 2000 persons filled the Klamath Falls armory in observance of the president's birthday ball Saturday night and Chairman S. P. Miller reported Monday morning the dance was the largest held since the balls were first started to raise funds to fight infantile paralysis.

A huge decorated birthday cake, donated by Fluhrer's bakery, was cut by Betty Reymers and served by Daughters of Job. The first

GORDON STARTS BRIDGE LESSONS HERE MONDAY

Sam Gordon, the kibitzer, was holding forth Monday afternoon on the first of a series of bridge lectures in the Willard hotel sponsored by women of Reame Golf and Country club.

The lectures were to continue Monday night, Tuesday afternoon and evening and Wednesday afternoon and evening.

Gordon, recognized as Oregon's outstanding bridge expert and editor of a column in the Oregonian, teaches what he calls the "horse sense" method of simplified bridge.

Eight a. m. and 3 p. m. are favorite hours for the beginning of a snow fall.

Your pleasure! You'll find it in WIELAND'S ALE!

Heart-Warming Fashions You'll Love to Live in from Now on Through Spring! Clever Originals by

Carole King

For the Junior Miss and Those With Juvenile Figures!

$6⁵⁰ $7⁹⁸ $10⁹⁸

"Cat's Meow" ... Fetching leather coat trim this color (available in rayon jersey, 16 section skirt Sizes dramatically. Sizes 11 to 15 ... $7.95

"High Noon" ... Brilliant beauty of hand-screened rayon jersey. Inset circle at front and soft bow in back provide figure molding perfection. Sizes 11 to 15. $10.95

"Magic Stripes" ... Rayon crepe chambray with contrasting stripes in pique weave. Two rows of pearl buttons provide a double-breasted effect. Sizes 11 to 15 $7.95

"Divided Attention" ... Quiet sympathy in monochromes of rayon crepe accentuated by a dash of color in covered belt. The squared pocket is ideal for your own momentary commitments. Sizes 11 to 15 $6.50

Introducing a New Service

MONEY ORDERS

10¢ Each

May be obtained at any Branch of this Bank!

Here is a new convenient way to pay bills... make installment or mail order payments or to send money anywhere in Oregon.

First National Bank Money Orders may be obtained at any branch in amounts up to $100 ... at only 10¢ per order.

You need not be a depositor to enjoy this new service.

Klamath Falls Branch

FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF PORTLAND

EXCLUSIVE WITH

La Pointe's

"WHERE STYLE AND QUALITY REIGN SUPREME"