

ITALY, RUSSIA PROTECT REICH, FUEHRER SAYS

"I can easily understand why the English are wild at the fact that I have succeeded where they failed."

"As a result, he said, he no longer has anything to worry about from that direction."

"Hitler's first remark, as unofficially translated into English, was a reference to his seven years at the head of the reich and a declaration that they had "seemed longer than many decades of the past."

"This is a great historic event," Hitler went on.

"We hear much today about democratic ideals. . . . England has waged most of the wars of this world. . . . A new Europe is supposed to arise and there should be general disarmament, and this disarmament is then supposed to begin the economic prosperity of Europe, especially free trade."

"Under this free trade civilization is to flourish," he went on, still apparently referring sarcastically to Britain's stated "peace objectives."

"In one word," he said sardonically, "the golden age is to begin. . . . This golden age has been skipped several times."

"All this was promised in 1918—the new justice and so forth. Already at that time there was a program of disarmament."

"There were great jeering roars as he said this."

"It was expected that as a result of that disarmament in 1919 there would be universal prosperity."

"In not one single case did they (the allies) ask the nations of Europe in the reorganization what their own wishes were."

"What had been formed through the centuries probably had been the better. Without any consideration for the self determination of peoples, Europe was chopped to pieces."

"They did not disarm, but they continued to arm. The disarmed people were not in a position to defend themselves. The economic depression hit not only the defeated but also the victors."

"Even religion stepped into the background and no Englishman in the 15 years before I came to power had any recollection of religion."

"And this treaty of Versailles (after the world war) was supported by the league of nations—which was not a league of free nations. But they tried to force us to live up to the dictates of the treaty."

"This democratic Germany (of the post war period) was the product of the allies—and how they have maltreated it!"

"Those were years of economic disintegration and enslavement."

"In all these years Germany hoped and begged and protested in vain. But they (allies) thought there were too many millions of Germans in this world. They were unconcerned about the sufferings of our agriculture and our industry."

"When all the pleading remained in vain, then the national socialist party arose."

LAKE COUNTY HOLDS ANNUAL SPORTS MEET

LAKEVIEW — At the annual meeting of the Lake County Sportsmen's association held this week Austin Smith was unanimously elected to serve as president for the coming year. Other officers elected were as follows: Henry A. Casiday, retiring president, was elected vice president; O. C. Gibbs will serve as treasurer, and Will P. Vernon and C. E. Sherlock will serve as directors.

Stream closures, opening dates for fishing in Blue and Campbell lakes and holding pens for pheasants all came in for considerable discussion. November 1 to 10 inclusive was favored for an open season on pheasant and the state game commission will be asked to set these dates for Lake county. The reason for setting the late season was to prevent damage to crops before they are harvested.

Allan Randall of the Modoc county forest service discussed the problem of mule deer migrating from Lake county to the winter feeding area to the north and west of Alturas. Randall estimated that upwards of 32,000 deer were congregated in this area with at least 20,000 of them coming from Lake county. He also emphasized the fact that the winter range there was greatly overpopulated by mule deer and that stringent measures were necessary to greatly reduce the herd winter feeding upon this area to prevent the herd from being entirely wiped out by starvation in the very near future. Considerable discussion took place but no definite action was taken upon this matter at this time.

The Southern Pacific company has installed small coal oil heaters placed under the rails near switch points for the purpose of melting the snow at the switches. On account of the light snowfall these heaters have not been used extensively but have proven satisfactory.

HOUSE SLASHES FARM MEASURE UNDER BUDGET

court decision, Dirksen said. "I find it hard to reconcile myself to that one exception."

"There should either be processing taxes on all major food commodities or none on any."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30 (AP) — The house appropriations committee topped more than $4,000,000 today from budget recommendations for the forest service, holding the figure to $23,866,000 for the next fiscal year.

Congress allowed the service $30,194,000 for the current fiscal year. Budget estimates for the year beginning July 1 were $28,548,000.

The annual appropriations bill for the agriculture department listed cuts for nearly every branch of the service. National forest administration was cut to $10,000,000 or $2,000,000 under the figure for the current year.

Forest fire cooperation was unchanged at $2,200,000. The committee allowed $1,000,000 for acquisition of land for national forests, $2,200,000 less than the present year's appropriation.
