

MALIN CHAMBER of COMMERCE

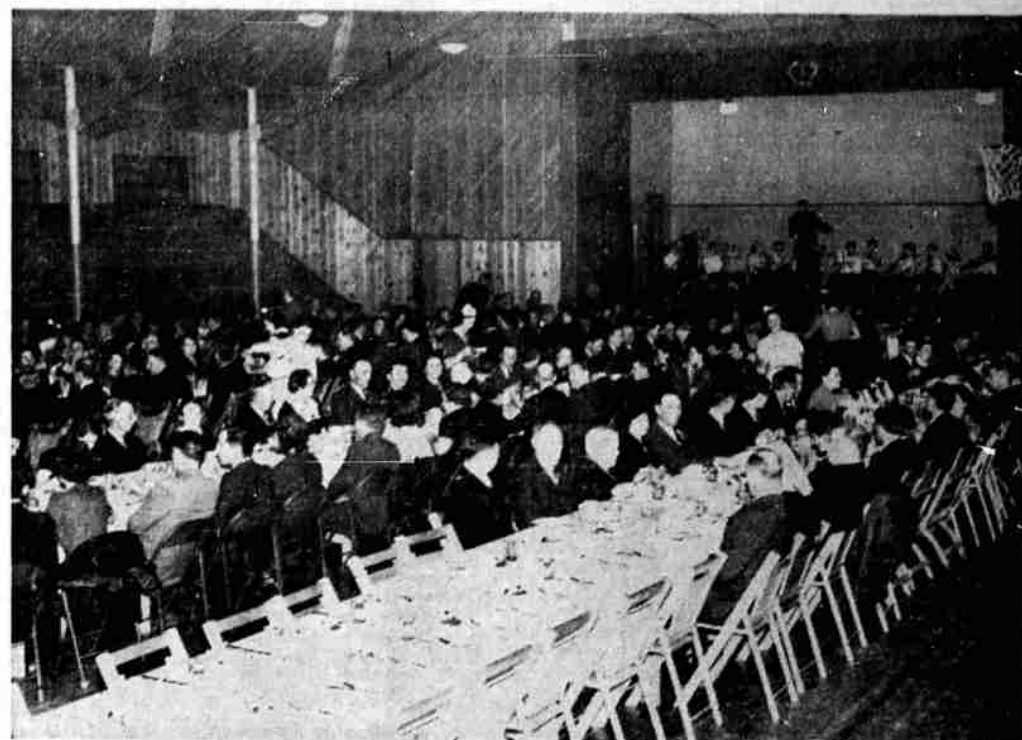

WEEKEND Photorial

PRETTY WAITRESSES—These high school girls waited tables. They are, left to right: Jean Smith, Rose Van Meter, Pat Smith, Rosie Suty, Vera Ottoman, Blanche Ottoman, Helen Smith, Margaret Victorine.

PROUD — Mayor A. Kalina of Malin.

An outstanding event of the week in the Klamath basin was the annual meeting of the Malin chamber of commerce, featuring a tasty banquet served in the Malin high school gymnasium by the Helping Hand society. A general view of the banquet is shown above, and other pictures on this page are candid shots made at random over and around the dinner tables.

SOLOIST—One of the soloists with the Malin high school orchestra, furnishing entertainment at the banquet, was Charles Spolek, trombonist.

LEADER—President Robert E. Thompson of the Malin chamber passes a plate of Malin cheese to Mrs. Thompson.

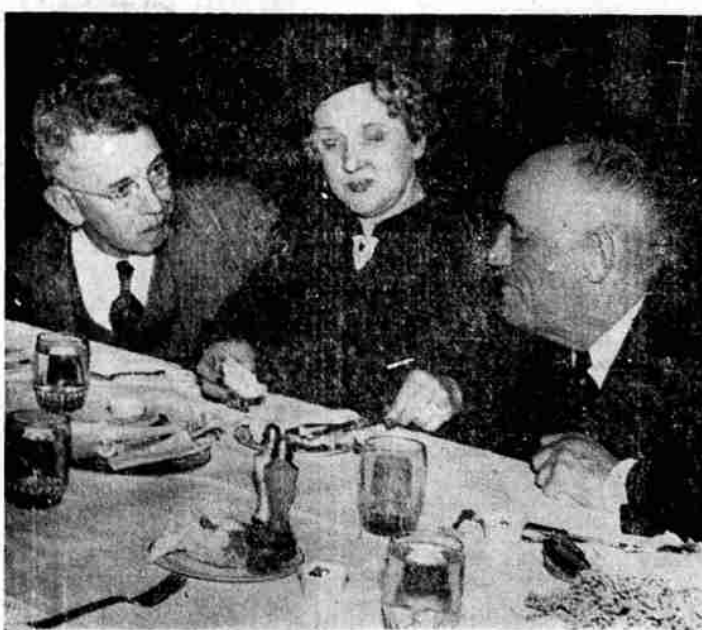

HELPING HANDS—A few members of the Helping Hand, resting between courses. Left to right: Mrs. Merle Loosley, Mrs. Ted DeMerritt, Mrs. Harry Hundley, Mrs. Harry Jackman.

MAYOR'S WIFE—Mrs. A. Kalina, wife of Malin's mayor.

STORY TELLER — Andy Street, Malin high school principal and ex-president of the chamber, is a great after-dinner story teller.

TALKING IT OVER—Earl Whitlock, Mrs. Whitlock, and W. C. Dalton of Malin.

RAILROADER — Harry Wayne, general agent of the Great Northern, was a speaker at the meeting.

LAUDED—Praised for his work as transportation committee chairman was John Reber, shown here at work on a plate of Malin roast turkey.

MALIN BOOSTERS—Harry Wilson, county school board member and farmer, chats with Lorraine Stevens and Lester Wilson.

SECRETARY—Irving Capek, secretary of the Malin chamber, and Mrs. Capek.

PUBLIC OFFICIALS—State Legislator and Mrs. Henry Semon, District Attorney and Mrs. Orth Sisemore.
