Miss Kessler Bride Of Tuesday Morning

Ceremony Takes Place at Eight o'Clock Nuptial Mass in Sacred Heart Church Before Many

One of spring's loveliest brides was Miss Mildred Ann Kessler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wendling J. Kessler, whose marriage to Mr. Eugene Myers took place at an eight o'clock nuptial mass read Tuesday morning at Sacred Heart church. Rev. Timothy Casey was the celebrant. The altar was banked with white stock, white carnations and palms, with tall white tapers lighted just before the service.

The bride, wearing traditional white satin, was given in marriage by her father. Her gown was beautifully fashioned with a sweetheart neckline caught at either side by lace medallions on the snug bodice, long sleeves puffed at the shoulders, and the full gored skirt ending in a long train. A double veil of illusion net, which the bride wore over her face as she approached the altar, was bound at the head by a halo and seed pearls. She carried a Colonial bouquet of rosebuds and sweet peas.

Mrs. Frank Kies of Portland, cousin of the bride, was the matron of honor. Mrs. M. Donald Druliner of Klamath Falls was the bridesmaid. Both wore identically fashioned frocks of taffeta with quilted bolero jackets. Their flowers were Colonial bouquets of brides roses and lilies-of-the-valley. Mrs. Kies' frock was of peach taffeta, and Mrs. Druliner wore green-blue. Both wore small wreaths of blossoms in their hair.

Mr. Howard Myers of Seattle, brother of the groom, was best man.

Ushers were Mr. M. Donald Druliner, and Mr. Joseph Derah.

Servers at the altar were Stephen Kessler, brother of the bride, and Joseph Mahoney.

Soft music, sung during the ceremony, was directed by Sister Mary Paschales and blending of the young voices of the academy students was beautiful. Lohengrin's wedding march and Mendelssohn's recessional were played on the organ.

Following the ceremony, witnessed by several hundred friends of the young couple, a wedding breakfast was served in the blue room of the Willard hotel. The long table was centered with a flat crystal bowl of white stock and pale pink carnations with tall white tapers in crystal candlesticks on either side. Covers were laid for twenty-eight guests.

The bride cut a beautifully decorated three-tiered wed-
