

Sabotage Feared At Boulder Dam

WASHINGTON, May 23 (UP)—Officials at Boulder dam—largest power plant in the world —are questioning dam employees closely to determine if there is any danger of sabotage by workers. It was said officially here today. A reclamation bureau official revealed that questionnaires customarily circulated among employees to learn their past records have been broadened to determine the employees' whereabouts during the first World war, their subsequent activities, and their attitude toward the United States government. "We want to know that the people have a proper background, are friends of the United States and can account for their past history," he said. He stressed that the questionnaires are not directed at aliens alone, as rumored, and added that he was not sure there are any aliens employed at the dam. Roses have been named after three kings, 13 queens, 10 princes, 19 princesses, 11 dukes and 17 duchesses in England.

CASUALTIES LISTED

LONDON, May 23 (UP)—The air ministry's 31st casualty list, issued today, was the largest of the war. It totaled 219, of which 15 were killed in action, nine were missing and believed killed in action and 135 were missing. Puss moth caterpillars squirt a 40 per cent formic acid solution at their enemies.
