Mothers and fathers of sons have spent just as hectic a week as mothers and fathers of daughters, so they tell. It was just the usual "back to school" preliminary which has caught the younger set in a whirl of excitement.

Klamath Falls is well represented along the Pacific coast. Some of the boys go to Stanford, Pomona, Gonzaga—but most choose to stay in their home state and have enrolled at Reed, University of Oregon or Oregon State college. Others, of course, have chosen eastern schools and one is a student at Notre Dame.

For a number of the young men, this is their first year of study away from home. They have recently been graduated from Klamath Union high school and are now embarking on the sea of higher education. Their courses are varied and it is surprising how many have chosen to follow the sciences. Who says American youth is frivolous? Anyway, good luck!
