'BUTTON MAN' VISITS WITH CITY POLICE

it practically unnecessary to wear a tie.

Back in '94, Ed started to wander, leaving home with his parents and traveling to Seattle with a team of mules laboriously pulling a covered wagon over the mountains. In Meeteetse, Wyo., Ed and his father buried his mother on a windy plane and continued by themselves. Ed said his father was a gambler and a pretty good one at that.

Friendly Railmen—First button to come Ed's way was given him by a fellow named "Butch," foreman of the Bethlehem Steel Works in South San Francisco. After that Ed was just a pushover for buttons which he collected from coast to coast, and from Cuba to the Canadian border. Favorite of all buttons are those given him by railroad men and Ed holds the record for never having been put off a train.

"They're all my friends—these railroad boys—from the Ghandi dancer (section man) to dispatcher," says Ed through his mustaches.

From Racing to War—Ed has done a great deal of "doing" in his day. He rode in the races with such famous riders as Tod Sican and Johnny and Lester Reith, both topnotchers, and when Ed stopped tipping the scales at 97 pounds he turned to the excitement of the Mexican revolution and joined up with Pancho Villa in 1910, operating one of the first machine guns for the Mexican bandit.

But of late years Ed has just gone around collecting buttons which cover the entire front of his long tailed coat, the red knit sweater and a nondescript vest. And plastered to the hill is an old San Francisco fireman's cap which is Ed's proudest possession even though it is a bit out of date.

Poses on Chair

When The Herald and News photographer asked Ed to pose he jumped with alacrity on top of a chair in Chief Hamm's office using as a background the big silver star the boys display at the policeman's ball each year. The photographer said, "Hold that smile," and Ed came back quick as a flash, "Hold that tiger."

Looking the buttons over one noticed quite a collection of Roosevelt circles.

"What, no Willkie button?" we queried.

"No siree," says Ed. "I'm a Roosevelt man myself and I wouldn't burden down this coat with a Willkie button."

SETTLEMENT EYED ON LAMM CHARGES

Lamm Lumber company by the logging camp negotiating committee.

These charges are (1.) refusal to bargain with the local union, No. 6-12, of the International Woodworkers of America, which represents the laborers at the Yamsee camp, and (2.) refusal to reinstate to his former job, Harvey Hall, car-checker at the Yamsee camp, who was discharged by the company.

The drawn-out labor dispute started May 30, last Memorial day, and terminated August 11. Among other charges, the charge of lockout was filed against the company. The laborers formed picket lines, work remained at a standstill, equipment was idle, and the dispute took the form of a full-fledged strike. Several other logging operations in the Klamath basin were affected by the shortage of logs.

Attorneys for the labor relations board are Patrick H. Walker and Thomas P. Graham, representing the 19th region. The presiding officer for the hearing, if it is held, will be Webster Powell, NLRB examiner from Washington, D. C.

The likelihood of reaching a settlement was uncertain, and the hearing was tentatively scheduled to get underway either Tuesday morning or Wednesday.

BUILDING JANITOR DIES OF ILLNESS

Benjamin Franklin "Frank" Lawson, a resident of this city for the past 13 years and for a number of years janitor and helper at the Medical Dental building, died at Klamath Valley hospital early Monday morning after an illness of the past few weeks. He was 67 years of age at the time of his death and leaves his wife, Mrs. Cassie Lawson of this city, one son, Austin E., of Walla Walla, Wash., and three grandchildren.

Mr. Lawson was a member of the Apostolic Faith church of this city. The remains are at Ward's Klamath funeral home and arrangements will be announced later.

SHERIFF TAKES ESCAPED PAIR BACK TO JAIL

Carefully trussed in an automobile, Rex and Lyle Harkness, convicted habitual criminals, left here Monday for Washington state penitentiary at Walla Walla in charge of Sheriff R. H. Blankenship of Kitsap county, Washington.

The two convicts were arrested at a potato pickers' camp at Merrill by sheriff's officers and state police, acting on a tip and information from a detective story magazine.

Taking No Chances—Sheriff Blankenship, who arrived here Sunday after driving all night, evinced intense interest in a key which Deputy Sheriff Jack Franey found secreted in a slot in the heel of a brown oxford owned by one of the Harkness brothers. The key, presumably, fits a lock in Sheriff Blankenship's jail, from which the brothers escaped last January.

They face life sentences as habitual criminals, each having several felony convictions in his record. When they escaped, the two men were being held at Port Orchard, Wash., pending arrival of Walla Walla guards to take them to prison.

After their capture here, however, Sheriff Blankenship said he was taking no more chances. He took them straight to Walla Walla.

HOTEL PROWLER TAKES WALLET

A light-fingered Thomas who has waxed fat over unlocked hotel doors and easily obtained pocketbooks is thought to have been responsible once more for the "lifting" of Pete Holst's wallet sometime during early Sunday morning hours while Pete was asleep in his room at a Main street hotel.

Pete, Great Northern bridge repair department employee told city police he couldn't remember if he had locked his door or not, but it was open Sunday morning when he awoke. He found missing two $10 bills, one $5 bill, and a GN check for $54 and some odd change.

DRIVER HELD FOR LARCENY OF CAR

Clayborn Pogue, charged with larceny of an automobile, has waived indictment by the grand jury but has not yet entered a plea.

Pogue is alleged to have stolen a car belonging to William Delaney. District Attorney Orth Sisemore said Delaney's story was that he picked Pogue up at Merrill and brought him to Klamath Falls. When Delaney left his car, Pogue allegedly drove off in it.

Pogue was arrested by a Eureka deputy sheriff who noticed the car weaving and suspected the driver of being drunk. Pogue was sentenced for drunken driving in city court, and taken to the county jail when Delaney charged Pogue had stolen his car.

THREE INJURED IN PAIR OF ACCIDENTS

Three persons were taken to Klamath Falls hospitals Sunday, one of them seriously injured, and a man was arrested for reckless driving as the result of two accidents near the city.

Al Hobson, 41 employee of the Long Bell Lumber company, underwent an operation at the Hillside hospital for injuries received about 2:30 p. m. Sunday when the car he was driving turned turtle on the old Midland road a mile south of its junction with the highway.

Hobson was rushed to the hospital with a punctured bladder and a broken pelvis. Physicians said his condition was serious.

In the other accident, which occurred about 3 a. m. Sunday on the Ashland-Klamath highway near Klamath View Auto camp, two were injured. They are Edwin Rubin Stang, 38, of Avalon street, operator of the Turner Chevrolet company wrecker, and Mrs. Kenneth H. McCoy, 3904 Alva street, passenger of a car which figured in the accident.

State police said Stang had placed a wreck sign on the highway and was engaged in hauling out a car belonging to J. O. Mouser, sales manager of the Oxtendorf Motor company, which had previously gone off the road and struck a guard rail. An auto driven by George Washington Kearns, 225 Lytton street, according to state police, crashed into the wrecker. Stang was treated at the Klamath Valley hospital for back injuries and Mrs. McCoy was taken to the Hillside hospital with chest injuries.

Kearns, who escaped with minor face cuts, was arrested for reckless driving and Monday was fined $50 and his driver's license revoked for 30 days.

WOOD THEFT, PUZZLE

Whoever called at the W. P. Shartraw home at 930 Hillside avenue Sunday night either came with a trailer or made a lot of trips.

Mrs. Shartraw reported to city police the theft of almost a whole cord of wood from her yard.
