sion, was agreed upon last week when Marshal Philippe Petain, France's chief of state, conferred with Adolf Hitler.

(Petain on Wednesday foreshadowed some action affecting French prisoners when he told his people that, as part of France's deal with her conquerors "in the near future the suffering of our country may be lightened, the fate of our prisoners ameliorated, the charges of occupation eased.")

Diplomatic sources said there was no doubt that Laval had obtained the release agreement during his recent Paris talks with German officials.

When he plans to play his ace card remains in doubt, it was said.

KLAMATH'S VOTE EXPECTED TO GO OVER 12,000

great, notably in the suburbs, are giving all of the candidates considerable concern.

One candidate who has not overlooked Klamath's voting volume is Rex Ellis, opponent of Walter M. Pierce for congress. Ellis spent several weeks here in the primary campaign, and has been back a number of times in the fall campaign. He is a state senator and lives at Pendleton.

Ellis' campaigning effort is on a par with that of the veteran Pierce, regarded as one of the best campaigners in the state. He is a much younger man than Pierce. His supporters believe that a most telling feature of Ellis' campaign has been his attack on Pierce's vote against continuing the Dies committee on subversive activities.

Pierce has had control of patronage in this district for several years, but presumably the Hatch act is preventing federal employes from actively working for him. A group of local supporters has been carrying on for him here, and he spent a few days in this area, himself, recently. Pierce is asking support on his record and experience in congress.

Coroner Race
A contest that has received virtually no attention this year is that for coroner. Dr. George H. Adler, democratic incumbent, is opposed by Dr. Samuel D. Earhart, republican. Older residents will recall the "coroner should be a physician" campaign of 1932, now out of the picture inasmuch as both candidates are physicians.

The city contests have generated less heat than usual. A final drive for votes may win more attention in the next couple of days for the mayor race, featuring John Houston, insurance man, and Lee Bean, lumber company employe and former councilman.

Draft "Master Lists" Mailed

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP)—The last copies of the selective service lottery "master list" rolled off the presses at the government printing office in the early hours today and were rushed into the mail for the conscription boards in nearby states.

The "master lists" for inland and western states had long since been on their way by train and plane, as selective service headquarters here concentrated on speedy distribution so that local boards would have their lists by the start of next week.

Until the lists are in the hands of the nation's 6175 local boards, these boards cannot get to work on the mailing of questionnaires and the classification of the first selective service eligibles for a year's military training. The questionnaires will be sent to registrants in the order their numbers were drawn in Tuesday's lottery, and the information developed by the questionnaires is the initial basis for determining whether a registrant will be called for duty or deferred.

Wm. F. B. CHASE

Democratic Candidate For County Commissioner

He has dealt justly with all the people. Has done the best he could under very difficult times. Has helped to establish a county health department of which Klamath County may feel proud. Has cooperated with other departments for the installation of better record facilities. Has been active in promoting the interests of social welfare, juvenile care, and care for the aged. Has been careful of public expenditures, and tried to get the best values possible for such outlay. Has been diligent in securing a larger allotment of the motor vehicle fund for roads, and will strive for further funds from this source. Will urge the State to either assume a larger expenditure for secondary roads, or give us a larger portion of said fund so that we can do it. Will urge from congress a special allotment for roads on the Indian Reservation, and that we will do our part that the Chiloquin-Sprague River road shall be adequately cared for. Keep Dad Chase in office; He Knows How.

WILLKIE SAYS NEW DEAL HAS DESERTED U. S.

CAMDEN, N. J., Nov. 1 (UP)

A few hours after he accused President Roosevelt of "playing cheap politics with international affairs and the liberties of the people," Wendell L. Willkie charged last night that the new deal had accepted the Hitlerian premise "that ours is a dying way of life."

Asserting in a CBS broadcast that "we are sick of the kind of one-man government that calls an ambassador" — an allusion to President Roosevelt's Boston speech — Willkie said that Mr. Roosevelt's associates in government were "the secret ballot behind the ballot that the third term candidate offers to the country."

"Dying Way of Life"
"They do not believe in the ability of democracy to solve the great problems of today—they have granted the first promise of the counter-revolution—the very first promise that Hitler insists upon.
"They say that democracy and free enterprise are decadent. They say that ours is a dying way of life."
Asserting that "we can become masters of our machines" and proposing "an America of free workers and free farmers producing more and more for each other by the use and mastery of the machine," Willkie said: "My fellow countrymen, five days hence you are going to the polls... the ballot that you cast will tell the world whether you have lost hope for liberty, or whether you still believe that liberty will live."

"Owns People"
Willkie came here for the broadcast after speaking four times in Delaware, Pennsylvania and other New Jersey towns. At Trenton, N. J., he had charged that the president was obsessed with the idea that he "owned" the American people. At Plainsboro, N. J., he said Mr. Roosevelt "thinks of himself in terms of ruler of the people." He castigated Joseph P. Kennedy, ambassador to Great Britain, and other ambassadors for leaving their posts to make "political speeches while Rome burns."

Tonight he amplified that theme. Following is a condensed version, in part, of the prepared text:

"We are sick of the kind of one-man government that calls an ambassador of the United States 'my ambassador.'
People's White House
It used to be 'my friends.' Now it is 'my ambassador.' Pretty soon it will be 'my generals.' Then it will be 'my people.' But there is one thing that will be perfectly clear after November 5. It isn't his White House. It's the people's White House. And if Mr. Kennedy is the ambassador of the third-term candidate, who is our ambassador to Great Britain?... We, the people, want an ambassador in Great Britain—and who is on the job.
And, incidentally, if we had one, he would not be over here on order, to help out with a dying political campaign...
We are sick of the type of government that treats our constitution like a scrap of paper. Our supreme court is regarded as an obstruction. Our unwritten law against granting a third term to any president is not even mentioned by the third-term candidate. He doesn't even attempt to justify his violation of it...

At the conclusion of his prepared speech Willkie charged the new deal had falsely circulated rumors "time and a half pay for overtime would be abolished" if Willkie were elected.

The difference between him and Mr. Roosevelt, Willkie said, is "that I know what it is to work in a factory and I know what it is to work overtime."
"Instead of abolishing any of the social gains made by labor," he continued, "Wendell Willkie will be the first to defend and extend them."

Willkie said WPA workers might fear loss of jobs if they voted against the new deal but reminded them "when you go to the polls you are the sovereigns of America."

Blasting at the president's Boston address at every opportunity and predicting his own victory November 5, Willkie said Mr. Roosevelt's "my ambassador" phrase might have been a "slip of the tongue."

But, he added, it showed the subconscious "functioning of a mind obsessed with the idea that 'I know best, I know best.'" homes and means of livelihood" to thousands of distressed people if it had been spent on reclamation projects instead.

"The new deal, satisfied with its farm program, sees the aggregate improvement it has been able to make in the farmers' lot, as a maximum aim," he continued. "I see it as a minimum."

Then he added: "And I assert, in full confidence, that the next administration will be able to provide something better."

Flynn Attacks Gallup Poll's Election View

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP)—Edward J. Flynn, democratic national chairman, who heretofore has declined to comment on any of the presidential polls, asserted today that the Gallup poll is "controlled by pro-Willkie people."

Flynn, at a press conference, said the Gallup poll was "attempting to bolster the idea there is a swing to Willkie."

In response to a question as to whether he had any comment on the declaration of axis power spokesmen that President Roosevelt was initiating "an offensive against the axis" Flynn said: "That proves conclusively that the axis powers are attempting to create a situation to help Willkie and bears out pretty firmly the fact that they are behind Willkie."

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 1 (AP) Dr. George Gallup, director of the American Institute of Public Opinion, today termed "fantastic" a statement by Edward J. Flynn, democratic national chairman, that the Gallup poll is "controlled by pro-Willkie people."
