

YEAR SUCCESS IN BOYS' CLUB WORK, REPORT

Through the generosity of a group of Klamath Falls business men, the success of the Boys' club, located at Fifth and Main streets, has been outstanding. It was announced at a meeting Tuesday of the directors. A resume of the year's financial status was presented and the report showed the worthwhile project was in excellent shape.

Mayor John Houston, attending his first meeting of the Boys' club, expressed appreciation to those who have aided the club, and said he wished every Klamath county citizen would pay a visit to the clubrooms at some time during the year.

Since the clubrooms were opened there has been an average attendance of 40 boys per day. Due to the increased popularity, and the small quarters now occupied, the board of directors will take action in the near future to locate larger quarters.

The directors appreciate to the greatest extent the aid given the Boys' club. It was announced at the meeting. Present were John Elinger, president, Dr. M. C. Cassel, secretary and treasurer, Mayor John Houston, Gerald Murray, Kenneth Klahn and David Bridge, city recreational director.

TIME GOES ON

ALBUQUERQUE, (AP) — An electric clock in the district attorney's office stopped.

Assistant Custodian B. E. Morgan removed some of the "works" and sent them to the factory for repair.

Noticing the clock was idle, US Commissioner Sam Dazzo volunteered, "I'll fix it." He tinkered a bit. Now the clock's running as well as ever—minus the parts en route to the factory.

Prunes Provide Variety Of Good Dishes in Winter

A little prune magic is very much in order right now, while this dried fruit is so plentiful. An all-season fruit, with excellent keeping qualities. Each pound yields about 12 servings at a surprisingly low cost.

They supply iron and furnish some calcium. These two minerals must be checked constantly in the average diet. Besides iron and calcium, prunes furnish some vitamin B, and some vitamin A. But don't depend on prunes for vitamin C, because most of that important vitamin is lost when the prunes are dried.

Wash the prunes and put them in a saucepan, cover with hot water, and let them soak for about an hour. Then put the prunes on to cook in the same water. Cook them for about half an hour, or until they are tender. To sweeten, add about 2 tablespoons of sugar for each cup of prunes just before they are done. A little salt added at the cooking time and a sprinkling of lemon juice at serving time enhance their flavor. If the prunes are intended as part of the meat course, plan to serve them hot, adding sugar and spice and vinegar while they cook. Or the juice from a jar of pickled fruit will give just the right blend of sweet-sour-spice for toning up.

Prunes With Cereal

When prunes go into cooked cereal, it may be easier to use the old method of soaking them overnight. In the morning while the cereal is cooking, remove the pits and chop the prunes. Cook them with the cereal long enough to heat through.

Stuffed prunes make a good salad ingredient when combined with colorful fresh or canned fruit, sliced oranges, grapefruit sections, pieces of pineapple, or peach halves. Soak the prunes until soft, cut a slit in the side of each to take out the pit and fill the center with peanut butter, cream cheese, or cottage cheese.

For sandwiches soak prunes until soft, remove the pits, and grind them. Then mix with salt and creamed butter or peanut butter.

Prune bread is both wholesome and good. Whole-wheat flour adds food values. Simply add chopped prunes to a standard yeast bread recipe, just as for raisin bread. Or roll out the bread dough in a thin rectangular shape, spread with melted butter and a mixture of chopped prunes with nuts and brown sugar. Roll like a jelly roll and either slice off to bake as pinwheel rolls, or keep in one big roll for a roly-poly loaf with prune filling.

Quick Prune Bread

One cup cooked prunes, drained and cut fine; 1½ cups sifted white flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon soda, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 to 1 cup sugar, 1 cup whole-wheat flour, 1 cup prune juice, 1 egg, beaten; 1 cup sour milk or cream, 2 tablespoons melted butter or other fat.

Sift together the dry ingredients, except the whole wheat flour, which should be added unsifted. Stir into this mixture the prune juice, beaten egg, sour milk or cream, cooked prunes, and then the melted fat. Pour this into well-greased bread pans and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for about 1 hour.
