

DOG CONTRACT AIRED BEFORE CITY COUNCIL

Arguments for re-appointing the Klamath Falls Kennel Club and Humane Society, Inc., as the city's poundmaster were presented to the city council Monday night by Mrs. M. J. Young, secretary-treasurer of the organization, and others who supported her statements to the city fathers.

The society for some time past has operated as the city's poundmaster, in place of an individual. Its contract is up for possible renewal. Last week, several prominent residents appeared at the council meeting and protested that R. O. Frederiksen is no longer in charge of the work of the Kennel Club and Humane society, and discussed conditions under which he submitted his resignation. After hearing several statements in behalf of Frederiksen, Mayor Houston at that time asked that the "other side" be presented at the next meeting.

Percy Appears
Accordingly, S. W. Percy, president of the society, and Mrs. Young, came to last night's meeting with books of the society, records of the minutes and financial data. They asked that the council approve a new contract with the Humane society. They were represented at the meeting by Attorney J. C. O'Neill.

A letter from the society asserted that the organization is competent to take care of the poundmaster work, and that without this contract the activities of the organization would be badly hampered. Mrs. Young amplified this letter with a statement of types of work, such as the taking up of cats, done by the society which would not be done if an individual were poundmaster.

Asked by Councilman Keller as to how many members of the society has, Mrs. Young replied "18 or 20 members." She said it had never had more than 45 members, and related certain dificulties with membership drives that had prevented the membership from growing larger.

Low Membership
Councilman Cantrill said he was surprised at the low membership, and added he thought there ought to be 1600 members.

Asked about recent meetings of the organization, Mrs. Young asserted that no secret meeting had been held as had been intimated. She asserted that the meeting in question was held in the Willard hotel, and that cards were sent to members. At that meeting, she related, the group elected S. W. Percy as president; Mrs. Robert Odell, first vice-president; Mrs. Denny Rees, second vice-president; Mrs. Young, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Guy Hancock and Mrs. C. D. O'Brien of Algoma as directors.

She read the minutes of another meeting at which the resignation of Frederiksen as pound attendant had been accepted, and at which S. W. Percy was made executive manager. She gave a financial report showing that receipts in the last year fell off about $400, and discussed at some length certain matters in relation to Frederiksen's work at the pound.

Mayor Houston asked if the society would consider the reinstatement of Frederiksen as attendant. Mrs. Young answered with an emphatic "no."

County Clerk Mae K. Short said that it would be necessary for the pound attendant to be deputized by her if he is to collect dog licenses, and said she would not deputize Frederiksen.

A man named Cummings told of experiences he said he had at the dog kennels and urged the council to give a new contract to the society.

On the other side of the picture, W. J. Bucknell told of having visited the pound with his son, who received a dog from Frederiksen, and Bucknell went on to describe Frederiksen's love for animals. He said he believed Frederiksen was doing a good job as pound attendant. Jerry McCarty of Bonanza, a member of the county dog control board, declared that he would not approve Frederiksen as county dog catcher.

The discussion of the dog business ran on through a lengthy after-session of the council, and finally into an executive session not attended by newsmen at the request of Mayor Houston.

The upshot was that councilmen said they wanted time to consider the matter further. The question still before the council is the proposed new contract of the Humane society, and it has been suggested also to the council that Frederiksen be made the city's poundmaster. At council meetings, criticism has been levelled both at Frederiksen and the society, and both have received favorable comment.

Seven Carcasses Condemned Here

Seven carcasses, including five beef and two veal, were condemned during the month of January along with 88 livers and four heads, according to the report submitted to the city council Monday night by Dr. J. Calvin Hunt.

Examined were, beef, 44; hogs, 747; sheep, 113; veal, 182.

CITY COUNCIL ASKS COUNTY TO SHUT ROAD

As a further step toward airport development through federal appropriations, the city council Monday night adopted a resolution asking the county court to close portions of the Summer Lane-Airport road adjoining the present airport.

The proposal covers five-eighths of a mile, a section which jogs around the corner of the airport near the hangar. The city proposes to acquire land across the road from the present airport.

It is expected the resolution will be handed to the county court Wednesday. The court will then decide whether to authorize vacation proceedings.

Next step will be to adopt a resolution of intention to vacate, setting a date for a hearing, to be posted for 30 days in prominent places in the section directly interested. At the hearing, all objections to the proposed vacation will be heard, and the county court will then make final decision.

The law provides for road vacation if a road is dangerous, requires excessive maintenance costs, or is no longer of public use. It is believed by local officials that in case there is a sound public reason to close a road vacation is possible if a satisfactory alternate route is provided for persons now benefiting by the road.

Several proposed plans for re-routing are under consideration.

THREE PASSENGERS HURT IN ACCIDENT

Three passengers in the automobile of Sterling J. Nidever, Klamath Falls, were injured in an accident with a truck driven by August E. Rose of Sacramento, Calif., according to a report filed with the sheriff by Rose.

Rose said the accident occurred 17 miles out of town on highway No. 97, and the Nidever car collided with the rear end of the trailer on his truck.

R. D. Tucker reported his car slid into a ditch and hit a jagged rock wall, 7 miles out of town.

Marie Rogers, 19, reported a smash-up on Altamont drive. She said she ran into a ditch to avoid collision with another car which did not stop.

L. W. Edwards, Algoma, reported his car ran over a dog which stopped in front of the machine as it went through Wocus.

Vince Trial Date Changed

Trial of Joseph A. and Henry Vince, charged with larceny, has been postponed from Thursday to February 24.

Harold Hendrickson, deputy county clerk in charge of circuit court work, mailed notices Tuesday to circuit court jurors asking them not to come in until Monday.

Sleep Enters 'Suicide' Case

MONTREAL, Feb. 18 (UP) Tipped that a jealous husband had sworn to commit suicide at 1 a. m., police rushed to his home today. They arrived after the deadline.

Hurrying into the house they found the man slumped in his chair, a revolver in his hand.

But he wasn't dead. He had fallen asleep while waiting for the clock to strike the fatal hour.

FENTON REPLIES TO CHARGES BY UNION

L. H. Fenton, district director of the CIO-affiliated International Woodworkers of America whose expulsion from Klamath local 6-12 was announced Monday, said Tuesday that under the International constitution of the IWA he cannot be expelled, and asserted he was willing to stand trial under provisions of the constitution on charges assertedly brought by the Klamath local.

In announcing the ouster Monday, Ed Borden, secretary of local 6-12, said it was on the grounds Fenton refused to face charges preferred against him locally that action was made.

Fenton, in a statement to the News and Herald, said he was never officially notified of the charges or of the expulsion. His first knowledge of the local action, he maintained, came from a News-Herald story carried Monday and Tuesday.

Fenton stated, "I cannot be expelled by a local union because the constitution provides that an elected International officer can only be tried by the remaining members of the executive board." The tall, ruddy labor leader, as district director, is a member of the executive board.

"If the Klamath local refuses to reconsider, I will appeal to the district council," Fenton asserted. The council embraces 17 other locals in south and central Oregon and northern California and Fenton indicated he holds the balance of power in the district.

The ousted labor chief, elected to the directorship four years ago for a one-year term and re-elected twice since for two-year periods, still retains that post inasmuch as Local 6-12's action affected only his local membership.

Fenton came here from Bend where he was instrumental in forming the groundwork for the present IWA.

Job Office Man Enlists in Army

Boyd W. Jackson, young assistant in the local office of the Oregon State Employment Service who was recently transferred here from La Grande, has volunteered for army service and left his post here. Director Jack Almeter said Tuesday.

Jackson, a native of La Grande, has been with the service for the past year. He will vacation at his home before induction next Monday. A new man will replace him here, Almeter said.

SURPLUS SPUD FEEDING PLAN RULES AIRED

Twenty-five cents per 100 pounds is the price to be paid for potatoes accepted for diversion according to further information on the potato diversion program received Monday by the Klamath county agricultural agent's office.

Potatoes must be used by the grower for livestock feeding, the report set forth, or in cases where growers do not have livestock, can be sold to their neighbors for livestock feeding purposes after being properly prepared such as by insiling, cutting, crushing, or other means approved by the secretary of agriculture. The secretary has also approved drying as an additional method of preparing potatoes for livestock feeding.

Apparently state-federal inspection service inspectors will examine potatoes in cellars to determine percentage of those offered for diversion that are US No. 2 grade or better. This can be determined in bulk and potatoes need not be graded or sacked, according to information from C. A. Henderson, agricultural agent.

Growers' first step would be to obtain a diversion authorization which, when filled out, must be filed with the county agricultural conservation committee. The program is scheduled to go into active effect February 24.

PERRY RETIRES AS ALGOMA OFFICIAL

J. C. Perry, for the past 10 years superintendent of the Algoma Lumber company at Algoma, has resigned his position to become effective March 1. Perry and his family will move to El Cerrito in the San Francisco bay district where they will build a new home and reside following Perry's retirement.

Perry came to Algoma in 1931 from Deleker, Calif., where he held a responsible position with the Feather River Lumber company. His position will be filled by F. E. Svendsen of the Algoma Lumber company who has been with the firm since the war, and more recently serving as assistant superintendent.

The Vanadium Corporation of America, which produces ferro-vanadium, important ingredient of many defense articles, was kept out of production at two plants by strikes. Four hundred employees at the Niagara Falls, N. Y., factory withdrew their demands for a closed shop but still sought wage increases. The strike of 400 workers at the Vanadium company's Bridgeville, Pa., plant has been termed illegal by both the company and international officials of the CIO. Nevertheless the workmen refused to accept their dismissal as final.

CITY BRIEFS

To Portland — The many friends of Mrs. William Proctor Remington of Pendleton, wife of Bishop Remington and both frequent visitors in this city, will be interested to learn she was able to make a motor trip to Portland the early part of this month after having been confined to her bed for many weeks as the result of an operation on her leg. Bishop Remington has just returned from a month's stay in the east where he preached at many of the old churches in Massachusetts and other points.

Workers Conference — The Workers conference of the Methodist Sunday school will be held in the parsonage, 1005 High street, Wednesday at 7:30 p. m., instead of on Friday as previously announced. The meeting will include all officers and teachers of the Bible school, and Mrs. T. J. Evans, general superintendent, invited all interested persons.

Visits Medford — P. C. Quisenberry, Copco employe, visited relatives in Medford over the past weekend. His family accompanied him.

In Police Court — Six drunks, two charged with being disorderly, and 11 traffic tickets, made up the Tuesday morning police court report.

Boy Scout Commissioners — There will be a meeting of Boy Scout District commissioners at the Pelican cafe Friday noon, February 21. All commissioners are urged to attend.

Sewing Circle — The Sewing circle of the First Covenant church will meet Thursday at 1:30 at the church with Mrs. David Reinoldson as hostess.

Luther League — The Luther league of the Klamath Lutheran church was scheduled to meet Tuesday night at 7:30 in the church parlors. Young people and friends were invited.

To Mt. Shasta — John Ebinger, local attorney, made a business trip to Mt. Shasta Tuesday.

Potato Diversion Program to Be Talked at Meet

A meeting is called for the latter part of the week to put the potato diversion program in working order and February 24, is the date set for the plan to go into effect, according to C. A. Henderson, Klamath county agricultural agent.

At the session will be state department representatives, members of the federal surplus marketing department, and men from Oregon State college extension service as well as representatives of three counties in Oregon and two in northern California involved in the agreement. Also present will be members of the department of agriculture of Oregon and Washington.
