ties throughout the county to meet world competition and changing world conditions. The report recognized the fact that little, if any, export markets remain to the farmers of America and that development of local and national markets might well be undertaken to replace a part of this loss. For local conditions, the report suggests more livestock, improved pastures, processing plants for agricultural products, increased farming efficiency, and further improvement in reclamation of lands adapted to excellent crop production.

Timber Cut Eyed
The report cited that timber cutting at the present time is more than double what it would be on a sustained yield basis indicating necessity for the county to maintain itself as nearly as possible on a cash basis.

The report stated that every effort should be made to secure increased quotas of sugar beets in the Klamath basin to the end that a sugar beet factory might be established here. The report recommended further mobile camps, further re-processing plants of timber products as essential to the further development of Klamath Falls and Klamath county. Cut-over lands should be utilized for that purpose which they are best adapted, such as re-forestation or grazing. It was pointed out in the report that in 1920 the lumber industry provided 52.46 per cent of the county's assessed valuation but in 1937 this had dropped to 28.99 per cent, requiring the development of other industries to take up the loss. Total of federally controlled lands in the county is now high and should, by no means, be increased.

How Cotton Exports Have Fallen Off

Hard hit by the war have been exports of U. S. cotton, which in December, 1940 dropped to 15 per cent of the figure for the same month in 1939, according to the Department of Commerce. Cotton exports figure, for November, 1940, reveals the gradual decline.

port. The committee stated as follows: "Existing world conditions make an economic report such as this exceedingly important and at the same time very difficult. Markets are far from normal. There is no normal trade with other countries. Agricultural products normally obtained from other countries, especially seeds, will not be obtainable for the duration of the war and must be produced in this country. Upon conclusion of the conflict, however, large quantities of these products may flood our markets in serious direct competition with our production. Also, because of this loss of trade, export-type crops produced here have much curtailed markets, and acreages of these crops will and must be diverted to other crops. The whole country is thus faced with a tremendous problem of readjustment. The manner in which any section meets this problem will determine its future prosperity."

Wheat Increase Asked
The committee suggests that wheat acreage be increased at least to take care of local consumption. It was suggested that some former wheat acreage be devoted to flax production as this crop has produced greater income in the Klamath district than wheat. The committee strongly urged more livestock on the irrigated lands to take care of hay and feed production. The committee recognized that irrigated pastures would have to be developed for this purpose and recommended pasture mixtures would include meadow fescue, tall meadow oat grass, tall fescue, chewing fescue, perhaps some rye grass, smooth brome grass, strawberry clover, ladino clover, with some wheat and alsike clover. The report quoted authorities showing that these recommended pastures should be capable of producing from 500 to 600 pounds of meat products fair plan of handling these lands may be developed."

Drainage and irrigation development of lease land by the reclamation service and subdivision of large blocks into 160-acre tracts for long-term leases was recommended as an administration policy for such lands. The recommendation further stated that lessors of such 160-acre tracts be required to maintain adequate acreages of soil conserving crops such as alfalfa, clover and pasture.

Members of the sub-committee who formed the farm crops report were: U. E. Reeder, chairman, Harry Jackman, Delos Mills, Percy Dixon, Dick Henzel, W. J. Breithaupt, E. A. Geary, A. E. Gross, secretary.

The livestock committee report, featuring more and improved irrigated pastures, domestic and foreign markets, financing of junior work, better breeding stock, more dairy cattle, increased advertising of dairy products, enlarged cow testing association, more farm flocks of sheep, with increased chicken production and no further increase in turkeys, was read by Jack Marshall, livestock operator of the Olene district.

Increased Feeding Asked
It was requested that specific information on carrying capacity of improved pastures be undertaken. It was also recommended that public ranges be used to utmost carrying capacity in accordance with sound range improvement practices. It was pointed out in this report that the Klamath basin produces considerable forage for which there is no market, and that livestock fed on the irrigated farms is not sufficient to consume present livestock feed supplies to the best advantage. Members of the livestock sub-committee are: E. M. Hammond, Lee Holliday, L. A. West, Jack Marshall, Earl Reynolds, Rex High, Ray Garrison, and Clifford Jenkins, secretary.

Debt Caution Advised
The home and rural life committee report was presented by Mrs. Lee Holliday of the Fairhaven district. This report stressed a better understanding on the part of both husband and wife of the financial affairs of the family and farm, and keeping of accurate farm records. Additional indebtedness was not recommended and budgeting and planning should be undertaken in order to keep the out-go within the income. Meetings to study financial planning were advised. Nutrition was considered in a major way as essential to present national welfare. Some gardens and fruits were advised to better round out the diet.

This report indicated that if the diet of American people was brought up to where it should be, there would be little surplus of many of our major agricultural products, such as milk, butter, eggs, tomatoes, citrus fruits, leafy vegetables, meat and poultry. Discussion of this part of the report indicated that if diet could be properly increased some of these products would require part of the land now in other surplus crops.

It was recommended that milk be not replaced by soft drinks in the diets of school children. Housing conditions could stand considerable improvement, both from the standpoint of convenience and sanitation. Trees for windbreaks and fruit and shade would help considerably. It was recommended that parents give further consideration to 4-H club work for their children, urging expansion in more home direction. It was recommended that more time be devoted to recreation where possible. Other members of the sub-committee preparing this report in addition to Mrs. Holliday were: Mrs. Earl Mack, Mrs. C. E. McClellan, Mrs. Fred Fletcher, Mrs. A. R. Dickson and Mrs. Winnifred Gillen, secretary.

In its conclusion, the report on land use generally summed up the purposes of the conference as follows:

"This report is an attempt to sum up the factors affecting county economy. More detailed study is being given these points. A result of the study will be a report and maps giving the county picture in concrete form. All county residents have a very personal interest in the points considered. It is hoped that this report and subsequent ones in greater detail will point out that personal interest and encourage support of proposed action. The land use committee believes these matters to be of vital importance and suggests that topics here discussed might well be included as part of a course of study in county high schools. The economic geography of the county affects all of its residents."

All reports were approved as discussed and amended with request that reports be published and made available to everyone interested in the county. Following adoption of reports, W. C. Boegli discussed the AAA program, and Paul C. Carpenter discussed the world situation in regard to agriculture at the present time.
