directions for removal of himself and some of the other passengers.

"I lay all night on top of poor Moore and couldn't move," he said. Moore, the steward, apparently was killed outright. After being removed, he asked for a second hypodermic and when a stretcher-bearer started carrying him down a ravine, the stretcher started to buckle and he said:

"Easy boys, don't dump me—doesn't anyone know how to work this thing?"

While the injured were placed on stretchers for the laborious trek to the waiting ambulances, the dead were laid in a row beside the torn remains of the $120,000 Douglas bi-motor monoplane.

The ambulances bearing the wounded howled through early morning mist to Atlanta hospitals, their speed increased by police cars that served as escorts and blocked side roads along the winding Jonesboro-Atlanta highway.

Silent on Causes

Air line officials were reluctant to discuss any theories on the accident pending fuller inquiry. The retractable landing gear stood away from the fuselage but it could not be told whether this had been lowered for a forced landing or whether it was torn loose by the impact.

Mrs. Littlefield was trapped in the wreckage, pinned down by a fallen tree but when rescuers approached she told them: "I'm all right; see what you can do to help the others."

Rosenfeld was thrown clear of the plane and made his way about 20 yards in the darkness, where he fell into a ditch. Injured and shocked, he lay there until dawn when he made his way to the farm home of C. C. Sherman near Morrow, which is about five miles south of the airport.

Sherman took him to a small store, and Rosenfeld telephoned for help shortly after 8 a. m.

Brady, who lay injured near the plane's wreckage, kept shouting to rescuers: "For God's sake, don't light any matches or cigarettes. You'll burn us up."

High test gasoline was dripping from the wrecked plane.

The plane first struck among some pines, ripping away one of its metal-covered wings and mowing a path through the trees. It crashed another 150 yards or so where a pine impaled the second wing and the sliced-open cabin skidded to a stop some 50 yards further.

Rosenfeld said the passengers had no indication that anything was wrong until the plane started losing altitude, then the lights went out and the impact came a few seconds later.

Air line officials said the plane came in at 4000 feet over Stone mountain some 20 miles east of Atlanta, dropped down to 1800 over the airport and reported it was "on the beam." Since the ceiling was only 300 feet because of low clouds and rain, it was decided to bring the sleeper in on a radio triangle and it was not heard from again by the field after it swung away on these invisible guidelines used for landings when weather cuts visibility.

and would get thrown in the clink besides.

Schemes like the taking over of California just wouldn't harmonize with the good neighbor policy.

STILL, if it hadn't been for that motley crew of mountain men in smelly deerskin clothes, with their regular army leaders, who pried California loose from Mexico a century ago, Olvera street would still be the civic center of a dusty Mexican village instead of a tiny spot of atmosphere in the nation's most amazing metropolis.

When you get started citing examples, it's easy to prove that the end justifies the means.

Troop Trains Pass Klamath

Four troop trains loaded with over 1200 National guardsmen from Minnesota Wednesday passed through Klamath Falls en route south to March Field, Calif. All of the youths had just entered active service under the terms of President Roosevelt's call of last summer.

SENATE VOTES GAME BOARD BAG MEASURE

would be "foolish" before the federal government has enacted such legislation.

The program would have been financed by taxes on employers and employees.

Deficit Offset

With the ways and means committee finishing its work on the state's budget, the state's deficit for the next biennium stood today at $263,000.

But officials estimated that inheritance taxes, to be the largest in history, would offset the deficit. They said the estate of the late E. S. Collins of Portland would pay a $843,000 tax, and possibly more.

The house began discussion at 2:30 p. m. today of the unemployment compensation law amendments, the major issue of the session.

The bills provide that benefits be increased slightly, but that experience rating, by which employers who maintain stable payrolls would pay lower taxes, be retained. The measures also would retain seasonality, under which workers in seasonal occupations do not draw benefits during off-seasons.

The measures are a compromise between employers and labor.

A bill limiting sale of fortified wine to state liquor permit holders passed in the house of representatives yesterday by a 32-27 vote.

It would limit sale of wine with more than 17 per cent alcohol, by weight, to state liquor stores and licensed grocers and drug stores. A similar bill was killed last session in the senate, where the house action sent it yesterday.

Absentees Hold Up Wage Parity

Absence of two key men, one on each side of the current laundry operators-laundry workers negotiations Thursday held up final signing of a new working agreement between the parties. Negotiations are virtually ended, it was reported, but a disclosure of terms will not be released until all signatures are on paper.

Workers are asking a blanket 10 per cent wage boost and three other concessions.

Return Home—Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Champagne, 414 North Sixth street, returned home Sunday from a brief business and pleasure trip to Portland.

Rabbits Stolen—Nine rabbits were stolen from a yard at the Frank Oscarson home early Tuesday morning, Mrs. Oscarson reported.

With Duke

This is Ivie Anderson, negro vocalist who will sing with Duke Ellington's famous orchestra when it plays at the Klamath armory March 3.

ANDERSON, GAUNT PLACED ON TRIAL

O. T. (Buck) Anderson, well known Beatty rancher, and Rex Gaunt, Anderson cowhand, went on trial Thursday on charges of assault while armed with a dangerous weapon. They are accused in the shotgun shooting of Roscoe Watah, aged Indian.

Gaunt is alleged to have shot Watah in the back, when Watah started across Anderson property. Anderson was indicted on the theory Gaunt was acting under his instructions.

Defense attorneys J. C. O'Neill and E. E. Driscoll, in questioning prospective jurors, indicated that the right of a man to protect his property against trespass would be a factor in the defense of the case.

The jury was completed at noon. Members are Adolph Cacka, Arthur Phipps, Melvin Nelson, Joseph Zumpfe, John A. James, Lawrence Bertram, Dick Henzel, Sherwood Barnum, Henry C. Fagrell, John Giacomini, Albert Dearborn and Alfred Backes.

The jury Thursday afternoon went to the scene of the alleged crime near Beatty.

Camp Lava Beds Called Finest By Official Viewers

The Lava Beds CCC camp is the finest camp in the district, according to a verdict of staff officers and 30 first sergeants who made a visit to the camp Tuesday. Commander is Lt. George C. Morton.

E. P. Leavitt, superintendent of Crater Lake national park, and George Hopper, park engineer, with Don C. Fisher, custodian of the Lava Beds monument, made a trip to the Lava Beds Wednesday where they looked over CCC constructed roads. According to Fisher the new road from the Lava Beds to Canby's Cross is almost completed to that point and the road to Indian Wells ranger station is also nearing completion.

In Salem—Mrs. Harry Boivin and young son, Robert, are spending this week in Salem and Portland with Representative Boivin.

JURY VERDICT FREES ROPER OF CHARGES

Clino Roper, constable of the Sprague River district, stood cleared Thursday of charges of contributing to the delinquency of a minor Indian girl.

A circuit court jury deliberated half an hour before returning a verdict of acquittal for the 34-year-old Sprague River officer. The jury came in at 4:30 p. m. Wednesday.

The case attracted considerable interest in the eastern part of the county, with many witnesses called from Sprague River and nearby points. Spectators' seats in the courtroom were filled for the trial.

Bethlehem plants, at Bethlehem, Johnston and Pottstown, Pa. At Bethlehem alone there are 21,000 employees.

Three hours after the strike broke, John Riffe, an assistant director of SWOC, called it "one of the most effective I've ever seen." He said only foremen and superintendents remained inside the plant after most of the 4000 early night shift workers walked out.

DUNN'S BID LOW ON ROAD PROJECT

Clifford A. Dunn, Klamath Falls contractor, submitted a low bid of $19,307 to the state highway commission Thursday for grading, surfacing and oiling .55 of a mile of the Henley section, Klamath Falls-Mallin highway.

This is the section of highway to be built along the Percy Dixon, Henry Semon and Earl Reynolds ranches near the reclamation underpass at Henley.

Strong Wind Hits Klamath Thursday

From all indications February is going out like a lion and another lion will walk into the picture on the first day of March. Thursday was almost springlike during early morning hours but by 10 o'clock a strong "Chinook" wind was blowing and the air was filled with dust. Many a hat was chased along Main street as stiff breezes whipped around corners upon pedestrians.

Maximum temperature Thursday afternoon was 48 degrees, the mercury falling no lower than 40 according to the US weatherman at 8 a. m. Precipitation to date is 9.52 inches as compared to normal of 7.92. Last year's figure at this time was 11.52 inches.

New Southern Pacific Group Holds Meeting

The Southern Pacific Employees club, a new railroad organization formed to stimulate S. P. freight business, held its first meeting Monday night and unanimously approved a letter be sent to Klamath Falls merchants asking their support.

Drawn Thursday, the letter pointed to a total payroll of $99,000 received each month by the 526 club members, said the major part of it is spent in Klamath Falls and cited Southern Pacific advertising of Crater lake as a benefit to the city.

Agent Here—Fred E. Bailey, traffic agent for the Chicago and Greatwestern railroad, was in Klamath Falls Thursday from Portland.

2000 DOGS STILL WITHOUT LICENSES

Upwards of 2000 dogs remained unlicensed in Klamath county Thursday, with only one day left before the 1941 dog license penalty becomes effective.

Shortly after noon Thursday, license sales for 1941 stood at 1400. Last year about 3000 dogs were licensed in the county, and it is believed the dog population has increased.

Licenses may be obtained at the county clerk's office. Until 5 p. m. Friday, the fee is $1.50 for males and spayed females, and $2.50 for females. Starting Saturday morning, a $1 penalty is imposed.

junction with the airport development.

Howard stated that it is "just as important" to have roads and traffic lanes adequately serving the public as it is to have paved runways on the airport, and indicated his belief that airport development should not sacrifice proper motor roads.

Ring Missing—Al Shirley, 910 Main street, reported to city police the loss of a yellow gold ring with a setting containing three large diamonds, each stone about one-half carat. Shirley said the ring was lost some time within the past three weeks. The mounting is of white gold.

From Santa Clara—Mr. and Mrs. Robert Vail and three children of Santa Clara, Calif., visited at the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hanson and son, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Oscarson on Saturday and Sunday. Mrs. Vail is Mrs. Hanson's sister and Mrs. Oscarson's daughter.
