

ALL COUNTIES WOULD SHARE SCHOOL FUNDS

and unjust bill. It is downright mean." He opposed it because of its adverse effect on eastern Oregon counties, whose legislators voted almost to a man against it.

Counties which would pay more school taxes than they would receive back are Crook, Douglas, Gilliam, Grant, Harney, Jefferson, Klamath, Lake, Morrow, Multnomah, Sherman, Umatilla, Wallowa, Wasco and Wheeler. These counties would lose because they have high ratios of assessed valuation compared with the number of school children that they have.

Klamath Would Pay
Counties which would pay in more than they get back, with the amounts which would be paid and received, include: Douglas $150,316 and $140,585; Klamath $215,368 and $193,975; Multnomah $1,814,538 and $1,447,967; Umatilla $225,333 and $127,978.

Counties which would pay in less than they get back, with amounts to be paid and received, include: Baker $96,701 and $96,790; Benton $82,790 and $97,982; Jackson $168,578 and $198,917; Josephine $45,218 and $83,473; Lane $259,014 and $367,249; Marion $278,974 and $346,126.

"Mr. Thomas said that the effect of this bill would be that rich counties would help poor counties," Miller said. "I am complimented that he classifies eastern Oregon counties as being rich."

"I don't see any more sense in Morrow county helping a Willamette valley county than I do in the state of Oregon helping the school children in New York."

A similar measure, but which would have equalized school taxes within counties instead of on a statewide basis, was defeated in the house last session.

Speaker Robert S. Farrell Jr. and Rep. Frank J. Loneragan (R-Multnomah) introduced a bill today to establish a 40-mill property tax limit, which would be considered if the legislature approves measures to raise revenue from other sources, such as taxes on utility revenues or on retail sales.

The senate voted to permit the introduction of the bill to permit trucks up to 60,000 pounds to enter Oregon as far as certain parts of entry. The question had been raised whether the bill could be introduced, inasmuch as the senate already had defeated the bill to permit bigger trucks on all state highways.

The house held its first Saturday meeting of the session today, while the senate met in its fourth Saturday session. The seventh week of the session ended today, with prospects the session might last a week or 10 days more.

The house of representatives yesterday considered 11 amendments to the unemployment compensation law, killed six of them and approved five.

In all cases, the recommendation of the judiciary committee was followed. The measures were only tentatively adopted and will be on the house calendar Monday before being sent to the senate.

Measures approved would (1) increase weekly benefits from $7 to $10; (2) provide hearings before occupations are ruled seasonal; (3) deny benefits to women who quit work to get married or because of pregnancy; (4) make the law conform to the federal social security act in that employers must have paid into the fund for three years before obtaining lower rates under experience rating; (5) provide that when a

The front seat which pinned Miss Kohler to the dashboard, Boldschar has facial lacerations and bruises, while Miss Cochran has severe bruises and possible ankle fracture.

The truck, owned by Glenn Strawn, 240 East Main street, was parked in front of that address at the time of the accident. Occupants of the car were badly shocked and could not give officers a clear account of the crash. The car struck the left rear of the high, heavy truck, with the right front fender. The body of the truck was high enough and force of the impact so severe it drove the truck body through the middle of the right side of the car forcing the windshield and part of the upper body of the car into Miss Kohler according to the officer's report.

The young people had been driving around for several hours before the crash, police said. The girls are employed as ushers in a local theatre. Miss Cochran has made her home with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. H. N. Morrison of Stronghold, Calif., until coming to this city. Miss Kohler is the daughter of W. C. Kohler. Boldschar is the son of Louis Boldschar. Perry is an employee of Fluhrer's bakery.

o'clock Friday night 25 miles south of Dorris.

The three were en route to Grass Lake on the Weed highway at the time of the accident. Details were not learned. Furber's car was completely demolished. Mr. and Mrs. Furber were driving south with Giles who is the Southern Pacific station agent at Grass Lake.

Measures killed would have repealed the experience rating provision which, beginning July 1, will provide that employers pay payroll taxes of 1 to 4 per cent, with the higher rates assessed against employers who don't stabilize their payrolls; repealed the seasonality section, providing that employees in seasonal occupations do not receive benefits in off-seasons paid at-torney fees in appeals by claimants; brought virtually everyone under the law, and increased benefits from $16 to $20 a week.

Occupation of Bulgaria would bring the Nazis up against Greek territory and put them in an admirable position for attacking the little country. That is, it would be admirable if the Turks don't rush to the aid of the Greeks and hurl their big army at the Nazis.

government at Vichy caused the ambassador's delay.

Previously authoritative quarters had suggested that a peace agreement was nearing completion and that a final settlement might be announced tonight or early tomorrow. A Japanese ultimatum expired at noon yesterday.

Important conferences attended by representatives of the two countries and Japanese mediators were said to be under way continuously, with territorial experts of all three taking a leading part in the discussions, which were described as being in the final stages.

Winant Warmly Welcomed By King George

LONDON, March 1 (AP)—With a warm "I'm glad to welcome you," King George VI greeted John G. Winant, the new United States ambassador, today on a windy railroad station platform between Bristol and London.

Spruce in the uniform of a field marshal the king reached for Winant's hand and pumped it. He turned, then, and shook hands with Benjamin Cohen, the envoy's assistant.

Winant wore a navy blue coat and a grey suit, both crumpled from his long journey. His white collar appeared a little the worse for wear.

The king's extraordinary gesture was described by diplomatic sources as reciprocation for the reception President Roosevelt had given to Lord Halifax, the British ambassador to Washington.

The Duke of Kent, brother of King George VI, who also had been scheduled to greet the new envoy arrived five minutes late.

Apparently slightly embarrassed, Kent hurried into the waiting room at the airport and greeted Winant. They returned obligingly to the plane where they posed for pictures, shaking hands just as though the duke had been on time.

"I haven't much to say," Winant told reporters. Then he nervously shifted one foot, bit his lip and in a loud clear voice added:

"I'm glad to be here. There's no place I'd rather be than in England."

had signed at Vienna the document which aligns Bulgaria for the second time in a quarter century with a warring Germany.

As darkness fell, the German mechanized columns still were thundering down the streets in increasing numbers and huge Junkers transport planes were coming down methodically on the Sofia airdrome, packed with troops.

The soldiers were in battle dress. They wore steel helmets and complete regulation battle kit and reached the center of this capital late in the day.

The Germans carried rifles, gas masks and heavy packs of battle gear as they rode into the city.

Three carloads rolled through the main streets of Sofia and passed the German legation. Swarms of German fighter planes winged over the city, circling low enough for the cross and swastika markings to be plainly seen.

As soon as the first Nazi troop cars rolled into the city, many German firms unfurled swastika flags.

Police began to clear the main avenues of approach, indicating that heavy troop transport was outside the city.

VIENNA, Mar. 1 (AP)—In the presence of Adolf Hitler, little Bulgaria signed today for partnership in the German-Italian-Japanese military alliance.

Through the signature of her premier, Bogdan Philoff, Bulgaria cast her lot with her ally of the World War, Germany, joining Rumania, Hungary and Slovakia as the smaller states which have been lined up for the "new order."

The ceremony came at 1:50 p. m. (3:50 a. m. PST). Historic Belvedere palace was the setting.

Transportation Hindered By California Storm

(Continued From Page One) communications disrupted. The Willow Creek dam went out at Willow Creek mine, washing out 100 feet of Highway 299-W. Travel between Redding and Weaverville today was limited to a U. S. forest service road.

The Feather River highway was closed by a 500-yard slide at Haines creek.

The power house at Stausta dam was flooded by the Sacramento river and all work there was suspended. The river was still rising at Redding in mid-morning but was about 10 feet below serious flood stage.

Sandbag levees held back flood waters at Dunsuir but railway and highway communications southward were closed.

By The Associated Press
Straddling the United States, two storms of gale intensity swept up the east and west coasts yesterday (Friday).

On the Atlantic seaboard, swirling snow reached a depth of 14 inches in New Jersey, took at least 17 lives in traffic and other accidents, and tied up much shipping and air travel.

In California, squalls and sudden wind-gusts ripped roofs from sheds and buildings, uprooted hundreds of trees and blew down power lines.

The gale swept off the Pacific on a front of several hundred miles, reaching velocity ranging as high as 90 miles an hour at one or two points. It ripped roofs from sheds and buildings, and crippled light, telephone and heating service in many areas.

The eastern blizzard caused seven deaths in automobile accidents in Pennsylvania; three more each in Virginia and New Jersey, and two in Maryland. Sub-freezing temperatures prevailed.

MURDER TRIAL OF JOE KIRK OPENS MONDAY

Luther Joe Kirk, 30-year old Klamath Indian, will go on trial in Circuit Judge David R. Vandenberg's court Monday morning on charges of murdering another Indian, Leonard Monte John, at Bonanza last November.

The murder trial, first here in a year or more, will get underway after the docket is called in circuit court at 10 a. m.

District Attorney L. Orth Slesmore will be assisted by D. E. Van Vactor in the prosecution. Van Vactor, former deputy district attorney, was appointed special prosecutor for this and another pending case.

J. C. O'Neill will defend Kirk, the son of Clayton Kirk, prominent Klamath Indian.

John was shot at Bonanza on the early morning of November 19. He was allegedly wounded when he and Nathan Copperfield approached Kirk when the latter was standing on the road near the Copperfield house at Bonanza. The three had spent most of the previous night at the Copperfield place, investigators said, and the state authorities asserted some disagreement had occurred between Kirk and the others.

After the Bonanza incident, Kirk temporarily disappeared but on November 21 he appeared and gave himself up at the county jail. Subsequently Kirk was indicted by the grand jury.
