Cal-Ore

WELL, it won't be long now before the Weed-Klamath highway will have more traffic down to the state line . . . Because Cal-Ore is re-opening Friday as a bigger and better night club . . . Although the way I've been raving about the place for the last few years I shouldn't mention the word "better" in connection with it!

Anyway, there will be quite a bit of difference, according to what I hear . . . Additional space, re-arrangement of rooms, new decorating . . . But the same Brady Narey to see that everything goes smoothly and everybody has a good time.

Last Sunday I happened to be in the News-Herald office by myself, and answered the phone . . . A sweet feminine voice asked me if Cal-Ore was open to dinner parties for that night . . . And when I told her that Friday was the re-opening day, the voice showed her disappointment . . . So that's a piece of business Cal-Ore lost by not opening a week earlier.

Canadian hosiery mills are now making nylon hosiery . . . To retail at $1.85 a pair.

Shaw Stationery

THERE are several books you should read if you are to get the most out of day-by-day events in the newspapers . . . The historical events I mean . . . You'll understand each new event a lot better if you have the background of knowledge these tremendously interesting books provide.

"Night Over Europe," by Frederick L. Schuman is the story of diplomacy just before and during World War II . . . It answers such questions as: What happened to Czechoslovakia? . . . Why did Hitler abandon his designs on the Ukraine? . . . What was Stalin's greatest blunder? . . . How and why did Roosevelt's leadership fail? . . . Who destroyed France? Schuman is a noted political scientist and has several authoritative books to his credit.

"The Battle For Asia" is by

Edgar Snow . . . The crack newspaper correspondent who wrote "Red Star Over China," in which he prophesied that Japan could not win.

Then there's a wonderful eyewitness account of Europe today, particularly England and France, by one of the most famous of European correspondents, Quentin Reynolds . . . It's called "The Wounded Don't Cry," and rates right now as the second best seller in the United States.

And of course you shouldn't miss "Out of The Night" by Jan Valtin, which has the whole country talking. The author, whose real name is Krebs, is now trying to keep out of the way of the Communists . . . But according to "Life" and "Time" he is expected to be the next author whose body is found under circumstances indicating suicide . . . General Krivitsky, whose articles ran in the Saturday Evening Post a year ago, was the last.

You can get these books at Shaw Stationery, of course.

Chet Smith's

IF you read Mademoiselle, you've probably seen the ad for "Storkettes," the slack suit to wear if you're "infantile." . . . Chet Smith's has them and that's where I got a chance to examine this newest and most obscuring outfit I've seen yet. "Storkettes" has a patented waistband feature with a 16-inch expansion made possible by pleats and eight buttons that allow gradual expansion . . . The trousers are rather full and the pleats allow them to get fuller . . . And the blouse is the regular new-style loose smock-effect.

In Mademoiselle, the prices given are $2.50 and $5.00 . . . But the same things exactly at Chet Smith's are $1.98 and $3.98.

Costume jewelry for lapels is bigger, gaudier and more eccentric than ever . . . Have you noticed?

During a recent year, England produced 17,288 new books, as

A new kind of hose for women is reported on the Atlantic coast, but I haven't seen any here yet . . . The hose are made of Crepe de Chine . . . Are much more snag-resistant than any silk hose yet made, and look much sheerer.

Moe's Millinery

IF you're beyond the young-girl age and yearn for one of those darling bonnets that are the newest thing in hats, don't hesitate to try one on . . . Because they look even better on the so-called "matron" age than on younger gals.

I think these new bonnets are the cutest things out . . . The crown is supposed to fit behind your pompadour, if you wear one . . . Then the brim curves gracefully forward and down in the most flattering way . . . When I tried several on at Moe's Millinery department the other day I realized right away that they'd be better-than-usual protection from the sun, too.

The ones at Moe's are of straw with ribbon trim . . . And the price is a sensation, too . . . Only $3.95.

In case you haven't learned yet . . . Moe's is the new home of the famous Raffield hats . . . Mable Upper Randall, the manager of the department, is tickled pink over the new line.

Currin's

I'VE never been able to understand fully why a man who smokes a pipe has to have a whole bunch of pipes. One pipe smoker told me it was because a pipe tastes good for only a couple of days, and then has to be allowed to dry out for a few days . . . That doesn't explain, though, why he keeps about 12 of them handy.

Pipe smoking under those conditions could be a pretty expensive indulgence. I should think . . . Not, of course, if he'd stick to comparatively inexpensive pipes, but lots of men don't. I got to thinking about that this week when I saw the display of pipes in the window of Currin's . . . Vance Vaupel told me that the drug store has the largest selection of Yello-Boles in town . . . More than 400 of them.

There are all different shapes, sizes and styles in bowls, stems and insides . . . Some of them look like plain pipes, while others are very distinguished in appearance . . . And they are priced at $1.00, $1.25 and $1.50.

Garcelon's

THE next thing that's due to go up in price is silverware . . . Because nickel is the base of all plated silverware, and the government has cut the supply to silverware manufacturers about in half . . . It seems nickel has lots of uses in the defense program.

Garcelon's has been warned to order from the manufacturers now for possible delivery in August, because the silverware companies already are behind on their orders and can't catch up because they can't get the nickel.

So if you want to fill in on your present set, you'd better do it right away.

If you're going to buy a new set of silver plate, it would be a good idea to choose your pattern now . . . You can have Garcelon's lay it away while you pay on the budget plan, if you want.

Garcelon's has various sets of silverware at different prices . . . All pre-defense prices, by the way . . . There's a lovely Community Plate set of 53 pieces for eight . . . For $49.75, including the beautiful anti-tarnish chest . . . I'm crazy about the Milady pattern of Community Plate, myself.

The store also has 1847 Rogers silverware as low as $27.50 for a 26-piece service for six, with the chest included, too.

compared with 10,812 produced in America at the same time.

ADDITION FOR CLEAN PLANT STARTED HERE

Work has already started on a new addition to the New Method Cleaners building, 1453 Esplanade, which will almost double the present floor space of the plant, according to Lester Thompson, owner.

The addition, to be of hollow tile construction, will be 25x60 feet, and will cost in the neighborhood of $6500, Thompson said. It will be used for added work space and to house a reinforced steel and concrete vault for storage purposes.

The vault itself will be 25 feet square, high enough for double-deck storage, and will be equipped with a regular bank vault door, which weighs 1500 pounds. Thompson plans to install complete equipment for cleaning, glazing and repairing furs in the new unit, in addition to the vault which is designed primarily for fur storage.

H. Roskamp has the contract on the building which is expected to be finished in about 60 days.

KLAMATH HEALTH PROGRAM STARTED

According to a report received from Dr. Arch W. Diack, state health consultant of the NYA, Klamath Falls participation in the health program for Oregon NYA youths is well underway, stated Ivan G. Munro, state administrator.

Complete physical appraisals are being given Klamath Falls youth by Dr. Peter H. Rozendal, member of the state health consultant's staff.

The NYA health program, approved by the council, Oregon State Medical society, is designed to improve the physical fitness of young men and women eligible for, or working on local NYA work experience projects. The idea behind this statewide project is promotion of the health of all youths through health education with a view of establishing the highest standards of physical fitness attainable for Klamath Falls young men and women to help strengthen the nation's vital defenses, Munro said.

To accomplish this objective all available resources of the NYA and local facilities are being used.

U. S. to Take Over British War Contracts

WASHINGTON, March 13 (AP) A high administration official disclosed today that the army and reconstruction finance corporation were negotiating to take over between $300,000,000 and $350,000,000 worth of British war contracts and factories in this country.

The official, who declined to be quoted by name but spoke to reporters in order, he said, to clear up some misapprehensions about what was happening, said the program "in no way means that the British will be relieved of the remainder of their obligations in this country."

He explained that the negotiations probably would cut British war obligations, however, between 20 and 25 per cent, indicating that their total obligations for weapons and other war materials were about $1,500,000,000.

GIRL SCOUTS SERVE THEIR COUNTRY

GIRL SCOUTS more than half a million strong have offered their services to the President in this national emergency. Last year they began to organize Service Bureaus in local communities throughout the country in order to handle requests for service from the community quickly and easily. They have "promised to pay on demand any number of hours of service" the President might ask for. Above are Girl Scouts in action. Above left, two Girl Scouts register for the Girl Scout Service Bureau. Above right, an aviator explains an airplane control board to a Mariner, one of Girl Scouting's nautical groups. War Writer Eyes American Aims in World Conflict

By DEWITT MACKENZIE Associated Press Writer Nazidom, speaking through the medium of the government-controlled radio, charges that Uncle Sam is a double-dealer in the matter of aid for Britain and "intent only upon the speediest acquisition of a maximum number of British possessions."

That is so far from the fact that I doubt whether the Germans or their partners in the triple alliance, Italy and Japan, really believe Uncle Sam is such a rat as to double-cross a friend and then knife him in the back for gain. It isn't even a very smart piece of propaganda, but more in the class of thumbing one's nose to express resentment.

Still, the allegation is a reminder that self-analysis is always good. Just what is our feeling as we start to pour our resources out for the Anglo-allies?

I have talked with people of all classes in many parts of the country since the war began, and have no doubt that America is impelled by high and unselfish motives. If the security of our country and ways of life is foremost in our minds, that is natural. But beyond this my definite impression is that the majority of Americans in supporting aid for Britain are honestly anxious to help preserve the security and ways of life of other countries who are victims of aggression.

Uncle Sam hasn't arrived at his present pitch of determination, however, without long and grave thought. It was the same been differences of opinion as to methods of procedure, and some have honestly opposed any foreign entanglements, but this hasn't altered the general trend.

On one point there seems to have been almost solid agreement — America hasn't felt it necessary or wise for us to get into war. The thousands with whom I have come into direct contact have accepted the repeated assurances of the British government that what was wanted was the tools with which to fight and not men or our active participation.

This being the case, it would seem only fit that we should realize fully where we stand as regards danger of being drawn into the war. To my mind that danger is very considerable indeed. It isn't so great that we need despair of staying out, but the threat is serious enough so that we should school our minds for the possibility, and thereby avoid a nasty shock if war should break suddenly. My sole purpose in mentioning this disagreeable subject is to try to be helpful in averting such a shock.

RAINS COME BACK TO LOS ANGELES

LOS ANGELES, March 13 (AP) The rains are back again, after a few days of sunshine, setting new storm records for southern California.

Rain which set in yesterday and continued today established a 51-year record in Los Angeles with a total precipitation for the season starting July 1, 1940, of 26.31 inches.

During the season of 1889-90, the total rainfall was 34.84 inches, eclipsed only by the 38.18 inches which fell in 1893-94.

The storm was general over southern California, from Santa

Barbara, where a cloudburst deposited 1.25 inches of water in one hour and 15 minutes—and 4.5 inches in eight hours—to the Imperial valley, where lightning and thunder accompanied the rain.

A bus slid from wet pavement against a telephone pole and into an orange grove at Ontario, injuring seven passengers, one—Ralph Portilla, 22, of Greeley, Colo., critically.

A body was sighted in the surf at Redondo Beach. It was believed that of a boy washed from the breakwater a week ago.

Streets were blocked off in several towns of the San Fernando valley, and in Reseda several business buildings, their foundations weakened by earlier storms, were abandoned temporarily.

A landslide south of Santa Barbara delayed three trains for two hours. A cloudburst in the Mojave desert washed out two miles of the Bakerfield highway 15 miles north of Mojave.

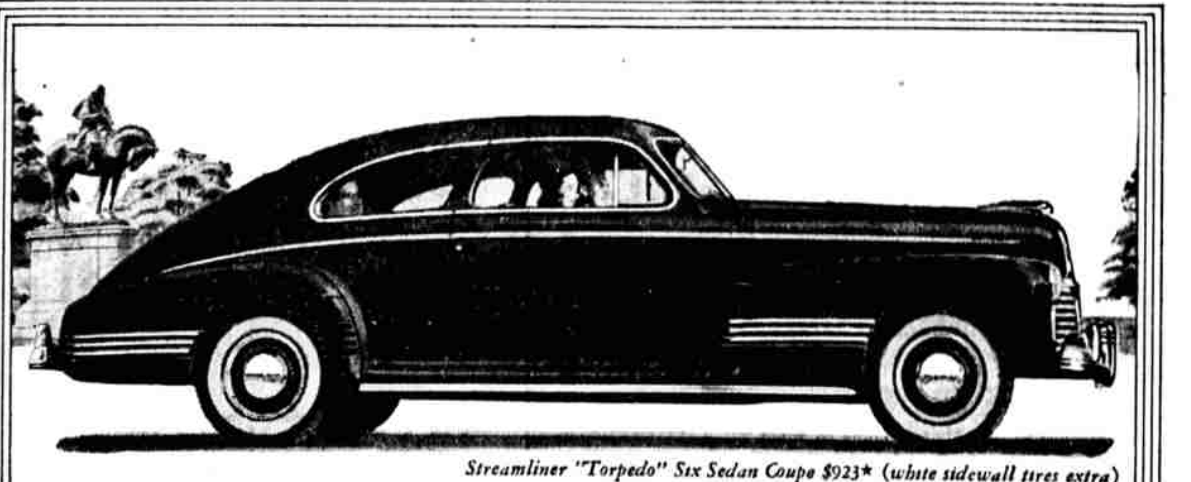

The forecast was for more rain through tomorrow.

The port of London, England, in normal times does an annual overseas trade valued at more than $2,000,000,000.
