SEVEN LOCAL CAA STUDENTS GET LICENSES

Seven members of the first Klamath county Civilian Pilot's Training Program class which began ground school work early last fall were holders of private pilot's certificates Friday after completing their 30 hours flying time and successfully passing a rigid inspection last Wednesday.

New pilots are Harry Lindenbaum, Wayne Galloway, Raymond Sacher, Allan Mocabee, Robert Jasbring, Roy Smith and Milton McAuley. Mocabee and Sacher will leave immediately for advanced training at the CPTP course held in cooperation with the Southern Oregon College of Education at Ashland. The Ashland course will give the youths sufficient training to qualify for naval air service.

Meanwhile five members of the second CPTP group will begin flight training at the Klamath airport about April 1. The group will finish ground school work next week and take final examinations to determine which of the present class of over 25 students shall be given air instruction.

A third class will be started in the near future, Instructor Max Guiley said Friday, and applications are now being accepted at the airport. Applicants must be between the ages of 19 and 26 and must have passed their 19th birthday not later than February 1, 1941, or have passed their 26th birthday not earlier than the same date.

For each 25 students who complete ground school work, five will be chosen for flight training.

Coincidental with the CPTP announcement was the revelation Friday that Chet Stinson, for the past year air instructor at the Klamath airport, will leave Sunday to enter crop-dusting work. It was undecided who would take over Stinson's work at the local port.

port directly to Casey before he would feel free to make them public.

During a month's tour of Australia, he said, he made numerous broadcasts, telling of his experiences in France during the early part of the war and of the more recent developments, and added he had been "simply thrilled" by the response of the Australian people and by the "military might which they showed me."

Coward was reticent as to possible hostilities in the Pacific. He said he had not been allowed to leave his ship at Yokohama, but had lunched on board with U. S. Ambassador Grew and "heard many interesting things."

ment which was echoed by other plane makers:

"Our assembly lines Thursday required 1800 parts for the Boeing flying fortress cowling and 8500 parts for the British Vengeance bomber. We did not have those parts and the machines went down the lines without them.

"This cannot keep up. . . . . I think we shall have to start layoffs this week. . .

"The strike at the Harvill plant, the west coast aviation industry's most acute bottleneck, was shrewdly delivered to do the greatest possible damage to the aircraft industry of this region."

DEFENSE STARTS IN BAILEY CASE

of the accident. He said Bailey came to his home at 5 a. m. on November 3 and that a party of two cars soon left for the vicinity of Worden for goose hunting. At 9 a. m. they returned to Klamath Falls, he said, and purchased two half-gallon jugs of wine. After a brief stop at Miller's the party went to the Weyerhaeuser junction store, purchased some lunch goods and drank a bottle of beer each, Miller said.

No Geese

The party moved on to the Kerns ranch west of the junction, he testified, but there were no geese flying over the fields, so they decided to go home. They were parked on a lane several hundred yards from the highway. Mrs. Miller, with five children in the car, started back first, but was overtaken and passed by Bailey "at a speed of 50 or 60," Miller said. He said he was riding in the Bailey car. He didn't remember anything after they turned onto the highway and headed toward Klamath Falls. He said he warned Bailey to "take it easy" when Bailey passed Mrs. Miller's car.

During Miller's testimony District Attorney L. Orth Sisemore questioned the witness about the amount of liquor consumed by all members of the party. This line of questioning was objected to by Edwin E. Driscoll, one of the attorneys for the defense, on the ground that the indictment of Bailey did not mention drinking. He said the question of how much liquor was consumed on the morning of the accident is immaterial in this indictment, and that testimony of this nature would only serve to prejudice the jury.

The jury was ordered to retire to the jury room while the attorneys argued the point. Circuit Judge David R. Vandenberg refused to allow further liquor testimony in light of the indictment.

Eloise Cole, sister-in-law of Miller, took the stand and said she was riding in the rear seat of the Bailey car. She said she remembered going out the lane "pretty fast" toward the highway, but could not recollect what happened after gaining the paved road.

Mrs. Grace Miller was the third witness. She is the daughter of Irving Breshears, who died in the accident. Mrs. Miller said she drove her car out the Kern ranch lane after Bailey passed her, and that she followed the Bailey car at a safe distance behind going about 60 miles per hour. She said Bailey's car straddled the yellow line several times before the crash. Bailey was on the center line when his car sideswiped an oncoming vehicle, then hit a second oncoming car and landed on its side in a field on the north side of the highway, she testified. She said she came to a stop, parked on a dirt roadway and went quickly to inspect the wrecked car. All four occupants were unconscious, she said.

THREE CABINET CHIEFS RESIGN AGAINST ORDER

for a conference at which he is reported to have told them their projected trip to Vienna starting tomorrow would have to be postponed while he attempted to reorganize the quarreling government.

He began meeting leaders of the parties represented by the recalcitrant ministers to see if they would agree to name more amenable cabinet representatives.

Political quarters said that only a quick change in the cabinet would enable the official party to leave for Vienna as scheduled.

The tenseness was heightened by disclosure that four of Yugoslavia's most prominent generals were pensioned early in the week as a "mere routine matter."

Observers pointed out that army circles have been among the most vigorous opponents of a surrender to Germany.

But government circles said the remaining high officers had agreed to the government's decision.

ing new plane models, a torque stand, administration building addition, and radio and dynamometer laboratories, was described by the war department as essential in making Wright Field "one of the most important military aircraft centers in the U. S."

Breidenbach's strike settlement action followed reports that the war department would take over construction work with federal civil service laborers.

The war department pressed for prompt settlement, contending the new facilities were "needed at once by the army air corps both for the testing of engines and planes now on order and for the development of new types."

100 PERSONS BID FAREWELL TO SELECTEES

Over 100 persons, largest Klamath crowd yet to bid departing selectees goodbye, assembled at the Southern Pacific depot Thursday night to honor 30 men from Klamath county boards 1 and 2, who left for Portland on the 9:30 train.

Of the 30, nine were volunteers. The departure marked the first time since inauguration of the selective service system that actual draftees have been taken from the county. The men, who filled the fourth draft quota, were to be inducted into the army Friday in the Rose city.

Present at the depot were all the members of both boards, 1 and 2—H. N. Moe, A. D. Collier, C. O. Dryden, Fred Heilbronner, Frank Schmitz and S. P. Dehlinger. Gathered also was a large group of local skiers to send off Al Carlson, well known Klamath racer.

Following are the board 1 men who departed:

James M. Creason, Robert C. Chase, Alfred M. Carlson, Raymond E. Fuller, George W. Dodson, Frank L. Adams, Harold B. Uglum, Don L. West, Raymond C Guernsey, Jaspar E. Hall, James R. Wakefield, Charles C. Stone, and Everett C. Jones.

Board 2 men were:

Robert Q. Preheim, Reuben A. Talbot, Guy H. Johnny, John J Schram, Lester T. Gentry, Morris C. McNichols, Walter H. Stastny, Stanford Revenue, Orus J. Jones, Herman W. Hodges, Dale G. Holinger, Virgil T. Hill, Francis J. Lee, Elmer O. Moore, John P. O'Sullivan, Dick O. Snuffer, Alfred D. Giles.

Reward Fund Increased in Cafe Slaying

Reward in the Buffalo lunch bandit-killer hunt has been increased to $175.

Sheriff Lloyd L. Low received a telegram Friday from Joe David, Sacramento, a relative of Dr. S. A. David who was killed after the robbery of the South Sixth street lunch room.

David said he would pay $50 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killers.

The sheriff also said that another unnamed party had added $25 to the reward fund.

Previously, Habib David, brother of the bandits' victim, and D. Frazer, had put up a total of $100. The aggregate of the reward fund has thus been increased to $175.

Sheriff Low said Friday that a tangible clue he would "like very much to locate" is the shotgun used by one of the bandits in holding up the cafe and later killing Dr. David. The sheriff speculated on the possibility the bandit threw away or hid the gun, possibly somewhere in the vicinity of the new theatre on South Sixth street.

The officers have an old brown coat, a pair of gloves, and two or three other articles abandoned by the robbers after the hold-up and killing. These articles have been closely examined for clues and may yet provide an important lead in the case.

Also, the authorities have a .32 automatic revolver used by one of the bandits. This gun was used by the bandit who was struggling with Dr. David when the latter was killed by a shotgun blast. Miles Saunders, a patron of the restaurant who was aiding Dr. David, had gotten hold of the bandit's gun but was unable to discharge it, probably because the safety catch was on.

After David was killed, the bandit fled, leaving the revolver in Saunders' hand. He turned it over to officers.

Returns Home—Mrs. Dorothy Post returned Thursday night from a week's vacation in Portland.
