Key To Trouble

By Earl Whitlock
I mislaid my keys, the other day and for a time I was greatly perturbed. There were my car keys and my door keys and the key to my private drawer and a number of others, each representing some possession that I felt I had to lock away from the rest of the world. It struck me that keys are the penalty of civilization. No matter how simply you try to arrange your life, you probably have certain keys to certain belongings. Even if you have only a suitcase in a room in a boarding house, you still have to carry keys to the suitcase, the room and the front door. And each key on your keyring is a source of potential trouble. It is a symbol of responsibility. It represents something you can worry about. And everything you feel obliged to put a lock on, means more worry. I have a feeling that if one would select a hundred men at random, study their faces for lines of care, and then count the number of keys they carry, one might find that the man with the most keys would be the man with the most worried expression. "Visit with the Flowers in Memory Garden."

Next Friday Mr. Whitlock of the Earl Whitlock Funeral Home will comment on Memorial Day.

FOREMAN OF BODY WARNED ON REMARKS

whereas he had not ordered the jury called.)

At this juncture, Foreman Baker stood up and said:

"Your honor, I believe that this grand jury has something very important to come before it."

There followed this exchange:

THE COURT: The grand jury is discharged at this time. I have just stated that. If there is anything important it will come up before the next grand jury. The grand jury is not here; there are two lacking right now.

BAKER: They had their orders to be in here. May I ask when their resignations were turned in?

THE COURT: One was turned in Saturday and the other was made Saturday and was received by me this morning.

BAKER: Was that after they got their notices?

THE COURT: Apparently after they got their notices. That is right.

BAKER: Well, there is a case we have before the grand jury now that the grand jury has worked on for a year.

THE COURT: I'll tell you now, Mr. Baker, if this grand jury has worked on any case a year or more, if they have not brought in an indictment, there apparently is not any reason for me to hold the grand jury over for another year or more working on it. There are three weeks left in this term, and I am not going to call in a jury and reinstate them for three weeks' work. First of all, your call to law was not in accordance with law; I have made no order, and summons says I have.

BAKER: Why did you tell me then the other evening all I had to do was to call the grand jury myself.

THE COURT: I stated I would not call them.

BAKER: You said you could not but I would.

THE COURT: I said I would not. It was entirely up to you; if you have got into political matters it is up to you but—just have a chair—I'll tell you something right now, Mr. Baker. This grand jury has been in session two and a half years. Is that not right?

BAKER: Five terms, yes.

THE COURT: And through that five terms there have been apparently one or more grand juries who had the idea they are running this court. I believe you are one of them.

BAKER: I do not quite understand.

THE COURT: I say, one or more of the grand jurors has the idea in his head he is running the court. I believe you are one of them.

BAKER: Running the court? THE COURT: Yes.

BAKER: No.

THE COURT: You have not? I believe you have. And I'll tell you something else: I believe it was this political mix-up—that is your idea for calling the grand jury in at this time. I believe it is more political than anything else.

BAKER: I am sure I do not know anything about politics.

THE COURT: I'm sure I don't either, but I just have a very good idea that is one of your big reasons in calling in the grand jury; and the grand jury in this county, or any other county—the purpose is not to operate it for any political faction, or any politics. It is set out plainly by law what its duties are. I believe that is the reason two members of the grand jury are not here today.

BAKER: I don't understand it.

THE COURT: Whether you understand it or not, as I said before, the grand jury is discharged.

BAKER: Your honor, I'll accept your resignation—your discharge, but I think that this grand jury will be watching later as to this.

THE COURT: Just a minute. I'm going to tell you something else: Just another remark like that and I'll cite you for contempt of court. There is no more grand jury and you are subject to the same rules as the rest of them are.

BAKER: Okay.

THE COURT: Now you just watch, but be careful you are not watched—get that in your mind: you and your famous pen-and-ink order might be watched. We will have the next grand jury do it. There will be no mileage on this grand jury because they were never called.

County Clerk Mae K. Short, under whose charge the court clerkship functions, said after the court session that the jury summons was sent from her office after Baker, as foreman of the grand jury, requested that the notices be sent out. She said that Baker came from the circuit judge's office one day last week and instructed the clerk that the notices be dispatched to the grand jurors.

While Baker did not state what matter he intended should be brought before the grand jury, it was reported at the courthouse he referred to the jury's investigation some months ago of the so-called "cash box fund" that was set up for the handling of improvements on roads not on the county road system and therefore not eligible for financing from the county road fund. The system was that residents on such roads would make deposits in this fund and disbursements would then be made from it for the non-county road improvements near their property. The grand jury some time ago ordered this fund discontinued, and later the court announced a revolving fund had been set up under advice of state auditors for handling the non-county road improvements.

The "pen and ink" order referred to by Judge Vandenberg was an order signed by members of the grand jury in open court, at the suggestion of former Circuit Judge Edward B. Ashhurst. The jurors on that occasion had brought in a report on gambling; the judge wrote out another report in pen and ink and gave it to the jurors to sign. All but one, Guy Barton, signed. Barton has since resigned from the jury.

The statutory term of the grand jury expires on the third Monday in June. A new grand jury will be drawn at that time.

TEMPERANCE EDITOR TO SPEAK TONIGHT

Outstanding religious and moral leaders of the country have paid great tribute to Ethel Hubler, editor and publisher of the National Voice, national temperance weekly. Dr. Stewart MacLennan, pastor of First Presbyterian church, Hollywood, well known for his radio work says, "Miss Hubler is putting up the fight of Deborah."

Miss Hubler speaks at the First Methodist church here tonight at 8 o'clock. She will speak on the subject, "What Price Repeal?"

She will discuss conditions in army camps and other things vital to all American citizens. Rev. Victor Phillips, Methodist minister, advises all who wish to hear her to come early to be assured of a seat.

Woman Fails to Remember Loss

NEWPORT, May 26 (AP)—Mrs. William Jefferson of Newport doesn't know what it is all about, but she believes she's $9 ahead on a case of mistaken identity.

Last week she received the bill and a note from Waynesville, N. C., where she lived as a young girl. The note read, "please accept this. It took it from you when we were children."

There was no signature and Mrs. Jefferson has no idea who sent the money and no remembrance of any such occurrence.

cise of these rights have to REPULSE WITH ARMS if necessary any hindrance — even against American warships."

(ADMIRAL Raeder's bellicose statement, it is interesting to note, is contained in an interview granted to Domei, the JAPANESE news agency. By indirectness, he is aiming to tell the Japs what will be expected of them.)

REFERRING to Raeder's statement, Secretary of State Hull accuses Germany of seeking by threats to induce the United States and the Western Hemisphere nations to refrain from making any real efforts at self-defense. What he means is that Germany is trying to bluff us—as we have been trying to bluff Germany.

The poker game that concerns us directly is getting hot. Some men are well-to-do because their friends find them hard to do.

Colt Born on Main Street at Sprague River

SPRAGUE RIVER—Mr. and Mrs. Mario Carnini, owners of the Wooden Box cafe here were baffled by the appearance of a mare that stood by their kitchen door and refused to leave. They could not understand the horse's desire to stay so patiently under the aroma of food drifting out the door prompted the animal to seek a handout of a lettuce salad or a stack of hotcakes. The surprise came later when the mare gave birth to a colt not more than a few steps from the main business street. A large crowd gathered to greet the arrival which will bear the distinction of being an urban product.

The mother seemed to appreciate the admiring audience and left her baby on exhibition most of the morning. Soon the little fellow got its strength and waddled away to distant pastures with its mother.

Lakeview Girl Elected Secretary At Normal School

ASHLAND, May 22 (Special) Bob Sharyon, of Ashland, was elected president of the Associated Students of the Southern Oregon College of Education for the school year 1941-42 at the special election held at the college on Wednesday, May 21. Sharyon defeated his opponent, Austin Haddock, also of Ashland, by a count of 66 to 53.

Marie Kerns, of Lakeview, was elected student body secretary over Jean Leonard, of Medford, by a count of 75 to 43.

Runyan Victor in Goodall Tourney

By BILL BONI
NEW YORK, May 26 (AP)—Though he is $1000 richer for his victory yesterday in the fourth annual Goodall round robin, Paul Runyan will be just one of some thousands of other golfers when he steps on the first tee this morning. Along with those thousands others, he'll have to fight for the right to qualify for next week's U. S. Open Championship at Fort Worth, Texas.

However, there isn't much doubt he can make it. Any man who can finish seven rounds on a tough golf course 23 shots over par and still beat 14 of the country's best pros shouldn't find it difficult to win one of the 12 places awarded the 65 men competing in the metropolitan district sectional qualifying round.

Washington Wins Net Team Crown

SEATTLE, May 26 (AP)—Washington won its fourth straight northern division, Pacific coast conference tennis team championship Saturday with a big margin of 14 points to 7 for its nearest competitor, Washington State. Idaho was third with five points, Oregon five and Oregon State one. Mervin Miller, Washington State, won the singles title by defeating Bob Odman, Washington, 4-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Medford Craters Lick Redding, 2-1

MEDFORD, May 26 (AP)—Medford's Craters won out in a 10-inning pitcher's battle against Redding of the northern California Baseball league here Saturday night, 2-1.

Batsmen could collect but five hits off each pitcher in the exhibition game, Medford's Smith, formerly of Vancouver, B. C., team, struck out five men, and Klenle of the visitors whiffed eight.

TANKS BREAK BRITISH LINE NEAR MALEMI

setting munitions dumps afire and sinking two merchantmen in Crete waters.

The Italians, who acknowledged the loss of a destroyer and a torpedo boat, declared the fascist navy was protecting the landing of sea-borne German troops and also pounding British positions of Crete itself.

British marines have joined the defenders of the island, informed sources said today. Suggestions that this meant the British were landing strong reinforcements by sea were not confirmed officially.

With the battle raging through its seventh day, British observers saw hopeful signs in reports of a substantial reduction in the number of Nazi parachute and glider reinforcements and the statement of a high military official that "I think it will be possible to hold Crete."

RAF headquarters said at least 24 axis planes were destroyed and others badly damaged in raids yesterday and Saturday night by British fighters and bombers over Crete.
