authorize the taking over of strike-bound plants.

In addition to permitting the president to take over for any period any type of property adaptable for use in national defense, the legislation also would authorize the chief executive to sell or otherwise dispose of the requisitioned property.

Seen War Measure

Chairman George (D-Ga.) of the senate foreign relations committee and Chairman Reynolds (D-N.C.) of the senate military committee reserved judgment on the bill for the time being, but George said some senators might make the argument that it provided full war powers and thus should not be enacted unless the nation were at war.

George said the measure might be designed to prevent production stoppages resulting from labor disputes, but added he did not know how effective it might prove in that field.

Reynolds said he would place the legislation before his committee this week and Chairman May (D-N.Y.) of the house military committee said he would "expedite action."

May said he thought the president "has enough power as it is," but added he would withhold his opinion on the bill for a time. Democratic Leader McCormack of Massachusetts said he would do everything in his power to hasten action if the measure were reported to the house.

The legislation was introduced in both chambers yesterday after Robert P. Patterson, acting war secretary, had written Vice President Wallace and Speaker Rayburn that authority conferred by present statutes "is inadequate to meet conditions encountered as a result of the existing emergency."

"Broader authority is deemed essential," Patterson declared. The legislation provides for "fair compensation" to those whose property is requisitioned. Among other things, Patterson wrote that it would permit the government to:

Acquire "from recalcitrant owners" defense supplies, materials and equipment needed for the manufacture of defense items.

secretary of agriculture would be required to bolster prices, up to 85 per cent of parity, for any commodity the production of which he urged farmers to expand, such as those being exported to Britain. Carl B. Robbins, president of the commodity credit corporation, told newsmen that the prices for pork, dairy products and other items which form the bulk of the food shipments to Britain already are either at parity or above it.

end of the day, after a conference with General Maxime Weygand, chief of France's African forces.

At the earlier cabinet meeting, which lasted for two hours and was said to have been devoted to discussion of tense French-British relations, Weygand was present but the marshal was not.

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
BERLIN, June 3 (AP)—Germany will give France a free hand to repel any attempts by England or other powers on her sovereignty, authorized German sources intimated today without flatly saying so.

The question arose in connection with British press demands for the seizure of Syria. Asked whether Germany could afford to let England take this French mandate, these sources said:

"Sacred Right"

"We don't cross bridges before we come to them. For the present we have Marshal Pétain's and Admiral Darlan's statements that they will defend all their territory.

"Germany, although victor, is ready to concede this sacred right and duty of every nation to the French themselves.

"Whether and in what manner France may desire to throw onto the scales the weight of German-French relationships developed in the course of the past year is something one can not discuss theoretically. Only a practical case can show."

Authorized sources declined to throw further light on yesterday's meeting of Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini at the Brenner Pass.

"It is the custom for the two statesmen both before and after all major events to meet in that spirit of solidarity which already has become historic to take stock of the past and check over plans for the future," it was asserted. "Their talks are rich in content."

Legal Description Prepared for PUD Campaign Here

Legal description of the proposed boundaries of a public utilities district embracing a large part of Klamath county has been prepared, according to A. M. Thomas, secretary of the Klamath County Bonneville power committee.

Thomas said representatives of the committee will go later in the month to Salem to show the proposed petitions to the state hydro-electric power commission for inspection. The proposed district, he said, will include Klamath Falls. Different petitions will be necessary for the five incorporated cities in the area and for outside territory.

Organization of a flying club for girls is being undertaken here, with a membership of 20 sought.

The plan is for the club to buy a Piper cub plane, according to Dorothea Rexroad, who is actively interested in the new organization.

"We feel that the best way for girls to get a 'break' in learning to fly is for us to organize our own club and own our own plane," said Miss Rexroad. "There is a growing interest everywhere among women in flying."

No girl under 18 years of age may join the club, but any others interested should call Max Guiley at the municipal airport.

RESTAURANT WAGE MEETING TONIGHT

Representatives of the Culinary alliance and the Klamath Falls Restaurant and Caterer's association will meet tonight in an attempt to settle the stalemate restaurant wage scale situation, both parties announced Tuesday.

The executive board of the alliance, which is seeking a 30 cent per day wage increase for all cooks, bartenders, waitresses and dishwashers, were meeting Tuesday afternoon at the Labor temple, reportedly to plan a course of action in the event tonight's negotiations break down. Approximately half of some 40 local eating establishments have already signed the new agreement which took effect June 1. Of the balance, some have indicated they would sign but others are holding out for a renewal of the old contract.

That agreement, which expired May 31, called for a $2-per-day base pay for waitresses and dishwashers and a higher scale for bartenders and cooks.

HUGHES RESIGNS FROM HIGH COURT

members of the tribunal. Senator Byrnes (D-S.C.), upon whom the administration relies heavily in pushing legislation through congress, is expected to be the other appointee.

Before he ascended the bench as chief justice in 1930, Hughes had had a full and brilliant life in public service.

An eminent lawyer, he served his native New York first in a series of special investigations, and later for two terms as governor.

President Taft named him associated justice of the supreme court in 1910, an office he resigned in 1916 to campaign as the republican party's nominee for president of the United States. The 1916 election was one of the most dramatic in history. Hughes lost to Woodrow Wilson by such a narrow margin that he went to bed one night thinking he had been safely elected, only to awaken a defeated candidate.

He was secretary of state in the Harding and Coolidge administrations. In this role, he electrified the world by proposing drastic disarmament to the 1921 Washington arms conference and ultimately won some of his recommendations.

Hughes' letter to the president said:

"My Dear Mr. President: "Considerations of health and age make it necessary that I should be relieved of the duties which I have been discharging with increasing difficulty. For that reason I avail myself of the right and privilege granted by the act of March 1, 1937, 28 U. S. code, section 3758, and retire from regular active service on the bench as chief justice of the United States, this retirement to be effective on and after July 1, 1941.

"I have the honor to remain, "Respectfully yours, "Charles Evans Hughes."

Oklahoman Grows Cotton in Oregon

OAKRIDGE, June 3 (AP)—Think nothing of it if you hear the catchy strains of "Dixie" in these parts—Mrs. John Archer is growing cotton in her garden. Along with peanuts and fancy squash, the cotton is growing readily, Mrs. Archer, a former Oklahoman, says.

"Anything that can grow in any other state can grow in Oregon," she insists.

The city of Quebec derived its name from the Algonquin word, "Kebec," which means "narrowing of the waters."

Marrying Parsons Also Find Boom

PORTLAND, June 3 (AP)

The general business increase affected even the marrying parsons here in May.

The Multnomah county clerk issued 298 marriage licenses, topping all months since May of 1913 when 333 licenses were granted. Last May 223 were issued.

And the boom continues in June, for 127 applications already are on file, indicating a possible new record.

ference today until tomorrow morning.

The union leaders had been summoned by the board to discuss the board's request that an appeal for adoption of recommendations for settlement of the northwest lumber strike be submitted to the union membership.

The closed session was recessed, officials said, because C. A. Dykstra, chairman, had to attend a meeting of another board panel.

The Woodworkers union was represented by O. M. Orton, president and four other officials.

The board summoned Orton after, an official said, telegrams from him had not given a satisfactory response to the board's request that its appeal be brought to the attention of the union membership.

Yes, Baseball's Part of Duty For Firemen

LOS ANGELES, June 3 (AP) Fireman William H. Keller had quite a problem. On leave to recuperate from an injury suffered on duty, Keller played baseball. He broke a leg.

Did he break his leg in line of duty? Was he entitled to continue his leave of absence on pay?

Yes, ruled City Attorney Ray Chesebro to both queries. The reason:

The fire commission suggested a year ago that firemen, whenever possible, should engage in activities which keep them physically fit.

Keller was doing just that, Chesebro's opinion stated.
