

Dog's Death Asked In Mistress' Will

OAKLAND, Calif., June 12 (UP)—Rowdy, a little brown and white fox terrier, today awaited the death ordered for him by his dying mistress.

Rowdy was the four-year-old pet of Mrs. Clara L. Edgerton, who died recently while visiting relatives in Berwyn, Ill. Mrs.

Edgerton's will, distributing bequests totaling $75,000, contained a clause directing that "any dog or dogs at my home be executed." Mrs. Edgerton directed that this request be carried out immediately after her will was filed.

The will was filed for probate today and Rowdy, still waiting for his mistress in the back yard of her home, will be executed tomorrow afternoon by a veterinarian.

The only American president to die a bachelor was James Buchanan.

WATERED ASSETS

MT. VERNON, Ill., (AP)—Because of a water shortage, the Mt. Vernon reservoir is operating as a kind of bank for at least two railroads—with tank cars of water as the medium of exchange.

The railroads haul the water here from the Wabash and Ohio rivers and empty the tanks into the waterworks system. They receive credit for the gallons hauled and are allowed to draw on the reservoir for that amount for their own uses.
