Weekend Roundup

KLAMATH FALLS is going to have a celebration. It's coming July 4, 5 and 6, in the shape of Buckaroo Days, a first class western show that should attract big crowds to the city and provide local festivities aplenty for the holiday.

Buckaroo Days began in 1936 and have been repeated successfully each Fourth of July since then. With things generally humming in this territory, and patriotism at a high ebb, this year's celebration should be the best of the series.

It's worth talking up.

Buckaroo Days planners have made a good suggestion that we wish to support in this column.

They propose that in general the atmosphere of the community be brought into line with the show. Decorated show windows will help to accomplish the purpose, along with the wearing of gala western attire by the residents of the community.

Collections of old western and Indian relics, or early day ranch and pioneer pictures, will add interest to the downtown displays and it is hoped some of our enterprising window-dressers undertake such projects.

If we are going to have a show, let's go into it wholeheartedly, give the city the right atmosphere, and extend the welcome hand to the visiting public.

Another thing for Klamath folk to think about as they prepare for the celebration is the traffic problem. We still are without those traffic signals, and with the celebration crowds downtown there is going to be a need for sensible and courteous driving on the part of everybody. Intersection hogs must be eliminated, and a policy of give and take, between motorists and pedestrians as well as motorists and motorists, should be established.

The police department has worked out a plan for eliminating much of the congestion on the roads to the fairgrounds. A map illustrating this plan, which involves one-way use of South Sixth street, is to be published. It is urged that motorists study and clip this map for reference. Cooperation will go far in solving the whole traffic problem.

Incidentally, what happened to the traffic signals was what we feared when the highway commission turned down bids last year and then failed to advertise again immediately.

Theory of the delay was that the signals couldn't be installed here in the winter time. But if the highway department had done the contract letting last fall or early winter, the equipment could have been purchased before the defense rush began.

Now, the Klamath order is lost somewhere in the demand for defense materials of all kinds, and it is not now known how soon we can get the signals, although the contract has been let and everything is ready to go.

People naturally look askance at the underpass traffic signals, which are not used for stop and go purposes, and wonder why they are there when they could be doing so much more good downtown.

The underpass signals were installed at federal cost as a part of a grade separation program. After they were tried out, it was decided their use was not yet practicable, and they were relegated to flasher status.

Things have gone awry in the traffic signal situation here. We got signals we didn't need and can't get signals we need. Oh well, drive carefully and you won't get hurt.

Defense Bond Quiz

Q. How can I form the thrift habit necessary for me to buy many Defense Bonds now, to help the government?
A. The easiest way is to instruct your employer or banker to hold back a small fraction of your salary or other income. Even 10 cents a day and a dollar on your birthday will mount up in one year to $37.50, the purchase price of a $50 Defense Bond. Bigger savings buy bigger bonds.

Q. How safe is a Defense Bond as an investment?
A. Entirely safe. The full faith and credit of the U. S. government is pledged for payment of principal and interest on these bonds.

Note: To purchase Defense Bonds and Stamps, go to the nearest postoffice or bank, or write for information to the Treasurer of the United States, Washington, D. C.

Deaf Mutes in Court Over Sign Language Threat

SEATTLE, June 28 (UP)—Sign language may be all Greek to most everyone, but it isn't to Mrs. Veva Cookson.

Mrs. Cookson, a deaf mute, charged in superior court that another deaf mute, Ernest Martin, a dairy farm worker, threatened—in sign language—to kill her.

Martin said he was merely describing a fight of 12 years ago with a negro who later died. The court released Martin when he agreed to remain away henceforth if Mrs. Cookson didn't like his language.

LABOR JIBE

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore., (To the Editor)—I note in a recent issue of The Herald, a statement by Dalrymple, CIO director, that the CIO is helping 1000 per cent in the government rearmament program. I presume that it was to help the government that the CIO shut down the North American aviation plant with its half billion airplane orders that the government had to send the army in to reopen, that it was to help the preparedness program that the CIO shut down the logging camps in Washington. The members of the CIO are discovering that the only thing they can gain by being in the CIO is a chance to help the communists wreck the national defense program.

EXPLOSION IN O-9 THOUGHT POSSIBLE

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 28 (AP)—A navy officer testified today that it was "conceivable" an explosion "might have taken place" on the O-9 before the submarine plunged to the bottom of the ocean off Portsmouth, N. H., carrying 33 men to their death.

Lieutenant Commander Robert M. Peacher, commander of submarine division 11 to which the O-9 was assigned, quickly told a navy court of inquiry, however, that "1,001 things may have happened" and that he had given the matter long thought before advancing the explosion theory.

"However, I do believe it was something that happened inside the boat. There was no structural collapse," he said.

To meet what he called "ill advised comment" about the 23-year old submarine's condition, Commander Peacher said about $600,000 had been spent recommending the O-9, a figure which "closely approximated her original cost."

She was in better condition, he maintained, than 40 other old type submarines which have been returned to service.

Patrick Excuses False Alarm As Act of Necessity

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 28 (AP)—Patrick Mynes, 26, was arrested yesterday for pulling a false alarm which brought six pieces of fire apparatus and an assistant chief.

Patrolman George W. Baldwin and John E. Quinn said Mynes told them he rang the alarm because during an argument with his wife he became convinced he needed assistance quickly and in large numbers.

The funeral service for the late Harry A. Lindemood, who passed away in this city on June 27 will take place from the chapel of Wards Klamath Funeral Home, 925 High street on Sunday afternoon, June 29, at 3 o'clock. Friends are respectfully invited to attend. The remains will be forwarded via Southern Pacific to Eugene, Ore., on Monday morning. Graveside services will be held on Tuesday morning, July 1, at 10:30 o'clock at the Mt. Vernon cemetery at Thurston, Ore., the Rev. Clarence Orr of the Immanuel Baptist church of this city officiating at both services.

The United States produces approximately 57,667,000 bushels of soybeans annually.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, June 28—The young new deal Justice William O. Douglas is being pushed up toward President Roosevelt's desk by the new dealers to take a board chairmanship control of the defense setup. Their alternate for this proposed job, which will be the biggest in the nation under that of the president himself, is Vice President Wallace.

Douglas is reported uncomfortable in his present judicial surroundings but it is not definitely known that he would care to leave that life job. Probably no one will know until the president decides on the coming OPM reorganization. Mr. Wallace's duties have been largely social in the vice presidency and he would be able to serve if called upon.

STRATEGY BOARD

What the administration advisers want Mr. Douglas or Mr. Wallace to manage has now also been worked out clearly in their minds. They urge the setting up of a strategy board of control at the top. It would be composed of representatives of the army, navy, a powerful new division of supply, a new ministry of economic warfare, the maritime commission, and possibly some others. Mr. Douglas or Mr. Wallace would be chairman of the board. Its duties would be to decide how much production was necessary for defense, when, how, what first. The board would be the central control agency with authority to make overall policy decisions.

Directly beneath it would be two agencies (1) military, (2) supply. The military would decide what it needs, but all the business of getting it would be handled by supply. This civilian division would perform the procurement work, not only for army and navy, but the British and the other government purchasing agencies, such as treasury and agriculture. Unlike OPM it would not serve in an advisory capacity, but as an active control agent under the general policy board.

The business men in OPM have talked along vaguely similar reorganization lines, favoring a single head control, but they believe a business man should be chosen for the post. They are likely to offer the president a somewhat different proposal. He will decide.

50 BILLION
The defense effort has now crept up to the colossal total of $50,000,000,000. A May 31 compilation showed around $43,000,000,000 had been appropriated for everything so far, army, navy, British aid, etc. A fresh $6,000,000,000 in the pending army bill will hike the total to $49,000,000,000.

But less than half the sum has been placed in contracts awarded ($23,000,000,000), and less than one-fifth has been actually expended ($8,000,000,000 to $10,000,000,000).
The full economic force of
