1941 What?

Turn to the front page of this issue and note the date—1941 it is.

And what of 1941? Just this: 1941 years since a Babe was born in a manger in Bethlehem of Judea. When the Babe grew to manhood, He was despised and rejected of men; a Man of Sorrows and acquainted with grief. Yet your check is thrown out at the bank unless it dates back to the time of His birth, 1941 years ago. When He had finished the work His Father gave Him to do, one of His followers named Judas sold Him for thirty pieces of silver, the price of a slave. Yet the receipt for your electric light bill must run back to the day 1941 years ago, when His away over the hearts and lives of men first began to dawn. At the end He was nailed between two felons on a Roman cross, there to die a death of shame; for such was crucifixion. Yet the deed to your farm must be dated from the year of His first advent, 1941 years ago; else the deed is void.

Mohammed, Buddha and the founders of all other religions lie under the sod awaiting the hour when He will summon them forth. There they must stand before Him to be judged for their sins. Just as all the lost must give answer, so must these. Who can name the terror of that hour. This Christ was tempted at all points like us, yet He sinned not. Is He not the rightful One to sit as Judge of sinful man?

Being the author of life, the grave could not hold Him. He came forth to indwell all who receive Him as Saviour and Lord. Through their yielded lives He still carries on; by them He seeks out the broken hearted and such as have bogged down. His redeemed are a messenger people; they are first of all to point men to the power of His blood to cleanse away the stain of sin. By their lives they are to prove Him able to free men from evil practice.

So 1941 what? The years since Christ was born a Babe in Bethlehem. And at last you and I are to meet Him either as Saviour or as Judge. You are to stand before Him with your sins rising up to condemn you or you are to be filled with joy unspeakable. Which, then, for you? Saviour or Judge?

There is no difference between the Jew and the Greek; for the same Lord over all is rich toward all that call upon Him.

THE WEEK IN OREGON

Heat Dominates News

By GORDON W. MacNAB
Associated Press Staff Writer

The air conditioning system worked out by Mother Nature for the benefit of Oregon, blew a gasket this week and nearly all news revolved around that mishap.

Transplanted mid-westerners were carried back to their earlier days as they vainly sought relief from the heat and high humidity. Native Oregonians were bewildered and visitors weren't sure but that they had been made victims of the shell game.

But at the week's end, the refrigerating system appeared to be partly repaired and temperatures were falling to more moderate and accustomed levels.

In the wake of the heat however were hundreds of blackened acres of rangeland, of wheat fields and of forests.

The blistering sun had baked the forest and made grain and grass tinder-dry so that lightning, cigarettes and even heat producing rays engendered by the sun shining through broken glass started fires numbered in the hundreds throughout the state.

The heaviest single fire loss was at Marcola where the planing mills and 13 homes were destroyed. The Red Cross sent a disaster relief worker from the San Francisco office to aid those made homeless.

In nearly all parts of the state there was damage costly in individual cases. Few of the fires however were of great size.

Parched lands in the Redmond district, depending on irrigation water from the Craine Prairie reservoir, faced an ominous future with word that the water storage would be exhausted by August 1.

Metals and the metals industry came in for some attention during the week.

Hopes of Cascade Locks for one of the new government-built aluminum plants faded when it was announced that OPM en-position to having the bridge west of the Tongue Point naval air station and a hunt for a site to the east was launched.

At a senate military affairs sub-committee hearing in Portland, H. C. Wilmot of Sutherlin declared that governmental red tape was delaying purchase of machinery that, if at hand, would permit adding one-sixth to the United States production of quicksilver.

From Grants Pass came word of a quicksilver strike by David L. Webb, 72-year-old prospector, that was reported to be of unusual richness.

Dr. Paul J. Raver, Bonneville administrator, said that in the northwest are alunite clay deposits that hold insurance against a shortage of bauxite, from which aluminum is made. The alunite could be substituted to take care of a big part of U. S. needs, he said.

Morris Schnitzer of Portland announced plans for construction of a 60,000-ton steel rolling mill to employ 500 men in the three shifts. It would operate with scrap.

The military continued to play a part in the state's news. It was announced in Washington, D. C., that a site near Corvallis had been selected for an army cantonment if the projected army expansion program is carried through. The cantonment would be additional to those previously planned in the Medford and Eugene areas.

Backers of a projected bridge across the Columbia river at Astoria received a time extension from congress, permitting work to start by June 15, 1942. At the same time, the navy voiced op-
