son sisters, (courtesy of El Padre), Penny Mullis, Gilbert-Buzaid orchestra and Pat Brown. Master of ceremonies will be Chet Smith.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights' program will be presented at the same place starting at 7:30 p. m. until 8 p. m. with dancing until "orders to cease." The dance is for both officers and men, the committee stated.

Trucks for the orchestra and entertainers are being donated by the OK and City Transfer companies.

Residents of the city are asked to turn out for the entertainment, to aid in bringing the men from the camp located on the Klamath river and to return them to camp after the programs. Many families have "adopted" a soldier or two for dinner and entertainment and this courtesy is again urged. Members of the Lady Eagles club have been asked to serve again as hostesses and chaperones at the dances. Further details will be announced later stated members of the committee including Fred Heilbronner, chairman; Angus Newton, Ed Bell, Ted Case, Frank Z. Howard, Earl C. Reynolds and Chet Smith.

HIGHWAY CREW TO WORK THREE SHIFTS

Construction, on a three-shift-per-day basis, by the Penne-packer construction company on straightening the Dalles-California highway north of Wocus will soon begin, it was learned Thursday.

Grading of the three-mile stretch across Rabbit flat has almost been completed, according to the state highway office. The second contract calls for straightening, grading and surfacing the road north to near the Algoma viewpoint.

Surfacing of both the Wocus stretch and the north piece will not be finished this year, the highway office stated.

Draft Extension Measure Sent To White House

tion. Congress also could permit the president to hold men for an unspecified period beyond an additional 18 months by approving a resolution stating further extension was "in the interests of national defense."

Legislators said that men whose military service was lengthened could expect to retain the same protection they now enjoy against loss of their insurance or automobiles on which payments still are due.

It was explained that the soldiers and sailors civil relief act, which contains these safeguards, applied as long as the original selective service act is in force, until May 15, 1945.

This relief act was voted last October to protect the rights of all persons in the armed services for any periods they served as long as the act is effective. It provides for close court oversight on any action affecting the rights of men on active duty.

A court may prevent repossession of a motor car on which as much as 50 per cent has been paid, and require a finance company to post bond to protect the man in service against loss.

Other provisions prevent the forfeiture of insurance policies under $500 and seek to safeguard other rent, mortgage and such rights.

From North—Mrs. Howard Davis (Alice Lyle) of Oswego, and Lucy Ellen Houghton, Portland, formerly of Klamath Falls, are spending several weeks at the summer home of Mrs. Ruby Lyle at Lake o' the Woods. Davis will join his wife here next week to spend a week's holiday at the lake.

JAPAN'S PLACE IN CONFERENCE PLANS STUDIED

American bases in the south Pacific.

3. A request to the soviet union to open a northern front with a Siberian red army of 1,000,000 men if war should start in the south Pacific.

Japanese sources admitted ruefully that "all these are possibilities, not necessarily probabilities."

Presence of high-ranking officers of the fighting services of the two nations implies, one source asserted, that there would be at least the groundwork for active cooperation, if not staff talks, should the United States enter the war.

Such groundwork would be vital, it was said, if the two nations begin jointly any military or naval action in the Pacific.

Spanish diplomatic sources in London, who probably are closer to the axis than any other diplomats here, declared that today's joint declaration "says nothing which has not already been said by the two leaders separately."

This was admitted by informed British sources, who nevertheless made the important addition that "the very fact that only this much of the discussions was disclosed points to agreement on more specific plans."

In comment on the final point of the joint statement about disarming aggressors one authoritative source said that "the gangsters are going to be disarmed—that's the golden rule of the show."

"We are not going to be the fools we were last time and scrap our weapons when the war is over."

Members of parliament generally—at least those remaining in London during the recess—applauded this point especially. It was described as a radical departure from previous theories of disarmament as a path to peace. It shows, they said, that the United States and Britain had abandoned the old notion of a general disarmament.

supply, and high ranking officials of military naval and air forces of the two countries also were present. The latter group presumably included General George C. Marshall, United States army chief of staff; Admiral Harold R. Stark, United States navy operations chief; and Major-General H. H. Arnold, chief of United States army air forces.

Harry L. Hopkins, the lease-lend administrator, was not mentioned specifically but there was reason to believe that he, too, was present, probably accompanied by his principal aide, Major-General James H. Burns.

How Prime Minister Churchill and his aides went to the meeting as well as the place of the meeting, were kept secret in London.

Speculation regarding the prime minister's present whereabouts was not permitted in England.

CONFERENCE AT SEA DRAWS UP AIMS OF WAR

ister declared their belief after their historic meeting at sea, that "after the final destruction of the Nazi tyranny, the disarmament of aggressor nations 'is essential' pending the establishment of 'a wider and permanent system of general security.'"

Eight Points

The eight points on which the president and Mr. Churchill agreed to "base their hopes for a better future for the world" were:

"First, their countries seek no aggrandizement, territorial or other;

"Second, they desire to see no territorial changes that do not accord with the freely expressed wishes of the peoples concerned;

"Third, they respect the right of all peoples to choose the form of government under which they will live; and they wish to see sovereign rights and self government restored to those who have been forcibly deprived of them;

Trade, Raw Materials

"Fourth, they will endeavor, with due respect for their existing obligations, to further the enjoyment by all states, great or small, victor or vanquished, of access, on equal terms, to the trade and to the raw materials of the world which are needed for their economic prosperity;

"Fifth, they desire to bring about the fullest collaboration between all nations in the economic field with the object of securing, for all, improved labor standards, economic advancement and social security.

Freedom of Land Seas

"Sixth, after the final destruction of the Nazi tyranny, they hope to see established a peace which will afford to all nations the means of dwelling in safety within their own boundaries, and which will afford assurance that all the men in all the lands may live out their lives in freedom from fear and want;

"Seventh, such a peace should enable all men to traverse the high seas and oceans without hindrance;

"Eighth, they believe that all of the nations of the world, for realistic as well as spiritual reasons must come to the abandonment of the use of force. Since no future peace can be maintained if land, sea or air armaments continue to be employed by nations which threaten, or may threaten, aggression outside their frontiers, they believe, pending the establishment of a wider and permanent system of general security, that the disarmament of such nations is es-agreed on a war plan before its announcement. The authoritative editor Virginio Gayda, anticipating such an announcement, said that the Americans and British were "hatching new plots in the form of oratorical manifestations and stratagems toward this or that part of the globe in the vain hope of halting or deviating the fatal course of war."

"Proof of Worry"

The meeting, Gayda said in his Giornale d'Italia, was "proof of Anglo-Saxon worry, bewilderment and disorderly action." He noted that it took place at a time when the Russian situation was "critical" and when tension was growing worse between Japan and the United States and Britain.

"Whatever is said and done," said Gayda, "the war of the axis, like that of Japan, will continue straight ahead on its course."

COMMENT PRAISES EIGHT-POINT PLAN

Short an opponent of administration foreign policy, said the Roosevelt - Churchill statement "sounds to me like the same old sales talk with a little more sugar on it this time."

One highly placed republican, Senator Austin (R-Vt.), assistant minority leader, on the other hand said the joint declaration was "very fine." He long has supported the democratic administration in its dealings with other countries.

Some opponents of Roosevelt policy declined immediate comment.

Among those who praised the president and the prime minister was Chairman Connally (D-Tex.) of the senate foreign relations committee. He said their statement embodied "principles of noble and lofty conception, with which I feel sure the people of the United States will agree."

Senator Barkley of Kentucky, senate democratic leader, added that the declaration "will be well received by all peoples resisting aggression and will create universal interest."

John T. Flynn, chairman of the New York chapter of the America First committee, said the Roosevelt-Churchill statement was "a lot of words — a cover-up statement" and demanded that "they should be frank and tell the American people why they did meet and what they actually decided to do."

"What the American people would like to know is what Roosevelt demanded and what Roosevelt promised," Flynn said in a statement.

In Minneapolis, Norman Thomas, socialist and anti-intervention leader, declared today that President Roosevelt, by his joint declaration of war aims with a belligerent, has committed his country to war without consulting congress to achieve these aims.

By his "dictatorial act," Thomas added, President Roosevelt also has made it impossible for him ever to act as mediator in bringing about peace in the world. He described the eight point program of the two leaders as "vague generalities."
