in other words

by JOHN CLINTON

Well, the Hispano-Plymouth was practically leaning against the garage wall, its headlights rakishly askew, its beautiful body caked with the white dust of the Mojave, the good salt mists of Oregon, and the balsam spots of Washington. "I'm tired, John!" said the Hispano!

I patted it on the radiator, scratched its headlights and went in and telephoned my favorite Union Oil Minute Man—Champ, down at Feathill and Haskell. "Come and get it, Champ," I said.

For the most certain, economical and prompt cure of after-collision-itis in your pet motor vehicle is a Stop-Wear lubrication job . . . as served staunchly and enthusiastically by Union Oil Minute Men.

When they bring your buggy back you'd never recognize it. You can see the difference in how it shines, and in how neatly dressed are the tires, running boards, etc.—how the glass gleams.

You can hear the difference in the quiet-as-a-mouse way it operates—no birds or rattles. And you can feel the difference in the slick way it shifts, steers and rides.

And along with all this, they give you a written guarantee against faulty chassis lubrication good at any Union Oil station anywhere for 1000 miles. That means if a squeak develops, due to chassis lubrication they make it disappear at no cost.

So if your car looks thin and weak after the summer, call your neighborhood Minute Men at the Union Oil station. Just say "Stop-Wear . . . come and get it!"
