BOOK DESCRIBES COWBOY DANCING

For the benefit of square dancers and those interested in community recreation the county library announces the book "Cowboy Dances," by Lloyd Shaw, is now available. This book was highly recommended by Izola Jensen, leader of the evenings of square dancing here last week.

The author began the study of group dancing in the Cheyenne Mountain high school, became interested in native western dances, and formed a group of Cheyenne Mountain dancers who have demonstrated their from coast to coast. His book gives clear and simple directions for caller and participants as well as a lively description of the cowboy dance, upon which he is a recognized authority.

100 AXEMEN FOR WOODS JOB ASKED

An order for over 100 axemen was left with the Oregon State Employment service Thursday by E. L. Gates, Klamath area contractor who holds a contract for the clearing of 3040 acres in the Shasta valley. The project, which will be completed in approximately a year, involves the felling of all brush and timber over 5 feet high in areas which will be inundated on completion of the giant Shasta dam.

Applications for office jobs with the Unemployment Compensation Commission must be filed by Monday, November 10. A new merit register for stenographers, clerks and tab machine operators is to be set up after examinations in nine Oregon cities. Starting pay $80 to $120 a month. Promotions under merit system. Information at 23 state employment offices. Board of Examiners, Spalding Building, Portland.

British Warships In U. S. for Refits

LONDON, Oct. 31 (R)—An authoritative source asserted today that many of the British warships in United States repair bases were there "for periodic refits."

He said that an announcement that British warships were in United States docks might have given a general impression that all were damaged "by enemy action," an impression he said was incorrect.

OSC SEEKS COURSES TO MATCH OREGON'S

CORVALLIS, Oct. 31 (R)—Oregon State college will press for expansion of its curricula to match the restoration of degree-granting science courses at the University of Oregon, the administrative council has decided.

The state board of higher education will be asked at its Dec. 8 meeting in Portland to restore to the college the school of commerce, taken from it in the system reorganization of 1932.

That this is to be but one of several requests was indicated by the statement that it was viewed as "a first step toward the addition of major work needed to make Oregon State a more nearly complete land grant college."

Referring to the board's action at its Ashland meeting Tuesday in authorizing the university to establish the science courses, the council's statement, issued by Acting President F. A. Gilfillan, said it "re-interpreted the law of 1929 and abandoned the principle of non-duplication of major fields of work adopted to effect economy and avoid duplication, under a unified system of higher education."

"As stated to the board and reported in the press, the college has not asked at any time for the return of the important major work it lost under the board's former policy of non-duplication," the statement said. It continued: "Since abandoning the non-duplication policy, the board presumably does not desire the students of one institution to have greater educational opportunities than those at another. If the youth at the university need a more complete program of major work in the traditional sense, it is only fair that the youth who attend Oregon State college have equal privileges."

HIGH SCHOOL

News Notes and Comment

By MAURICE O'CALLAGHAN

One of the finest school-supporting clubs in Klamath Falls starts a drive for new members come Monday. The Parents-Patrons club is sponsoring a drive for high school parents to join the organization this year.

A contest between classes will be held and the winning class will be given a movie by the club.

Each class is under a captain and they will do their utmost to get members of their classes to bring the necessary 25 cents for each of their parents. Louise Howie will head the senior drive, George Proctor the juniors, Jean Underwood the sophomore, and Sharon Willits the frosh.

Every year the Parents and Patrons do great things for the advancement of the high school and the high school students and every parent of a high school student should be proud and glad to join.

The Oregon state highway department showed a movie, "New Oregon Trail," to the sophomores, juniors and seniors Thursday in a special assembly.

The picture took the students through the wonder and beautiful spots of Oregon, and was the nicest picture of this type shown in the high school in some time. It was all in natural color which added much to the enjoyment of the film.

Another thing that made the picture interesting was the fact that KUHS students were the first high school group to be shown the picture.

Charles Bollinger of the traffic division of the highway department showed the films. They were shown at the San Francisco fair a couple of years ago, it was stated.

After school Thursday the Tea Toppers of the Girls' league gave their monthly faculty tea. Hazel Gillette, president of the T. T's, was in charge of the affair, and G. L. President Dorothea Ellingson poured. The tea was carried out in the Hallowe'en motif.

Miss Karen Nelson is adviser of the Toppers.

Home room winners of the Girls' league rummage drive were announced Thursday or didn't you happen to hear, we bet. Paul Deller's sophomore home room took top rating, Lucille O'Neill's sophomores and "Dutch" French's sophs took second and third respectively.

Joyce Bell and Kathrine Harmon, a couple of winsome wenches from Grants Pass, were up at KUHS Thursday to look over the school. Joyce said that she thought the kids up at K high were not overly friendly, but that otherwise it was a swell school. Kathrine said that there were too many rules. They returned to their home port to see Klamath beat Grants Pass. The girls stated that Klamath would probably win because Grants Pass had failed to win any games thus far.

There is a barn dance Saturday night sponsored by the Daughters of Job in the Masonic temple on Klamath avenue. It will probably be a rather good dance and is also the last dance held by them this football season. Girls ask boys.

SCOUTS SCHEDULE ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Modoc area council of the Boy Scouts of America will be held Sunday, November 9, in the Willard hotel, it was announced Thursday.

According to Dwight Gilchrist, Modoc area executive, the convocation will begin with a luncheon at 1 o'clock and continue through until 4:30 or 5 p. m. Annual reports will be given and a discussion of the budget and allotment will be held.
