Ling-Po, The Bandit

Eighty desperados, harbor pirates, city robbers and highwaymen took orders from Ling-Po. Beside being hand leader, this man had been an opium smoker for 20 years.

In the city where Ling-Po was in hiding, 5000 students had gathered to learn about Christianity. Ling-Po, curious to learn what it was all about, slipped in with the crowd and there came to see himself for what he was. So did the "Jesus Teaching" to him and out of it he wanted to be changed over. He knew that he could not remake himself but their words said the All-Conquering Christ could do it for him. So it was that he delivered himself over, a new man in a new world, Christ made him.

The months pass and you see a new Ling-Po, living on a scant ten dollars a month instead of the riches he used to have. With opium and robbery gone he has become Christ's special ambassador to the bandits. He knows their language and their haunts and to date has won 170 of them to be followers of the Lord.

Sum it up. First Ling-Po turned against himself. He had been the fierce and fearless leader of this band of killers and looters. Then he came to see himself a ragged bankrupt in that the Christians had the true Treasure; their Lord.

Two, he came to see that to loot and kill was but theft and murder. He saw himself a sinner and condemned.

Three, he beheld a sacrifice offered up for his sins. In Christ, the Lamb of God, slain for sinful men, he saw God clearing his record of lust and crime. So came Ling-Po to believe God's word, that the blood of Christ cleanses from all sin. God honored his belief and gave Ling-Po eternal life.

Christianity is not a set of rules to be kept, with heaven as the reward. Christianity is God's life imparted to our little span. Your heart lays hold on Christ and heaven and all else comes as a free gift. Christ becomes the Way, the Truth and Life; the Good Shepherd; the Living Water; the Manna from Heaven. Better be a Chinese bandit under conviction that a self-righteous American.

WEED UNION ASKS MILL ARBITRATION

A letter from the Weed Lumber and Sawmill Workers local to the Long-Bell Lumber company, suggesting that the Weed mill dispute be submitted to a board of arbitration, was received by AFL headquarters here Saturday.

The text of the letter, dated November 27 and directed to J. M. White, general manager, is as follows:

"Lumber and Sawmill Workers local union No. 2907, chartered by the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America wishes to take this opportunity to repeat our verbal request made at the beginning of negotiation.

"On August 20th, 1941, the negotiating committee notified you that if you thought the proposals of the union were unfair the union was willing to submit the entire matter to a board of arbitration with the United States department of labor appointing one man, the company one man and the union one man, with both parties agreeing to abide by the decision of this arbitration board.

"At that time you refused this proposal. "Since that time negotiations have become stalemated. The union has called in the United States department of labor, whose conciliator has been unable to bring about a settlement and the United States department has set up a panel of three men to investigate the matter. This panel was unable to bring about a settlement.

"The union again wishes to inform you that we are agreeable to submitting the entire matter to a board of arbitration. "This board could be the panel that the department of labor has set up or a board composed of one member appointed by the company, one appointed by the union and one appointed by the department of labor, or a complete new board appointed by the department of labor to be composed of one conciliator from that department, one from industry and one from labor.

"The union is confident that their requests are not out of reason and are willing to abide by the decision of a board of arbitration of the nature above proposed, providing the company is agreeable to abide by the same. "We would appreciate an answer on this matter immediately."

Groesbeck Speaks To Educators

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 28 (UP)—Oregon State college partisans should concentrate on developing the institution for its original purpose—a technological and agricultural school—and not worry about restoration of science courses to the University of Oregon, R. C. Groesbeck of Klamath Falls, member of the state board of higher education, said here today.

The state board is not interested in one school any more than the other, Groesbeck declared in an address at the City club. It is only trying to organize a unified system in the best interests of higher education, he said.

The university is supposed to be a liberal arts school, Groesbeck declared, and the board is seeking to make it one through such steps as restoring science courses. On the other hand the board is seeking to make the college a complete technical and agricultural school, he said.

Colonel Orr was promoted to major from captain in 1939. Colonel Orr is the son of Judge and Mrs. John S. Orr, of the Alameda Apartments.

GROESBECK SAYS OSC NOT INJURED

PORTLAND, Nov. 29 (AP)—Restoration of science courses to the University of Oregon did not harm Oregon State college, R. C. Groesbeck, Klamath Falls, said yesterday.

The state board of higher education member told the City club that "the university was the only school in the United States pretending to be a school of liberal arts that did not have science."

The board recently voted to return some science courses to the university. Groesbeck said he had heard protests from OSC, and commented, "the college had better do its job within its own definition before it begins to interfere with the university."

"The university was deficient (in science) and the college was cluttered up and was confused. The recent action by the board at its Ashland meeting was not taken for the university; we of the board are not doing this for the university and that for the college. We are doing what we think is best for the entire educational system of the state."

He said the university had 38 upper division science courses which duplicated courses in the college's degree-granting schools, but that the college had 108 duplicating those in the university's schools.

Student fees here are the highest in 11 western states, "and part of these fees go to pay for the construction of their own buildings. If the money is needed for these buildings, our boys and girls should not have to pay for them," he asserted.

Groesbeck also advocated higher salaries for grade school teachers and elimination of one-room schools, of which, he said, there are still 937.

There are seven ages of man and two of women—one's her right one.

Reasonable Rise In Petroleum Rate Not Forbidden

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29 (AP)—Price Administrator Leon Henderson informed the petroleum industry today that his office would not prevent "reasonable and justified price increases" on petroleum products, including gasoline, provided necessity for the increases can be established to the satisfaction of his department.

In an open letter, the OPA chief said he wished to clarify "some misunderstanding and misinterpretation" of his recent request that petroleum and petroleum product prices be stabilized by the industry at levels prevailing Nov. 7.

"The purpose of the request," Henderson declared, "was to prevent any further unauthorized price increases."

Products on which price increase proposals must be submitted to OPA include, in addition to all grades of gasoline, crude petroleum, kerosene, distillate fuel oils, residual fuel oils, asphalt and lubricating oils.

CHRISTMAS TREE RUSH ANTICIPATED

SAN FRANCISCO—A booming business in Christmas tree sales during the next four weeks was forecast today by Regional Forester S. B. Show, US forest service chief of the California region.

Several hundred thousand trees harvested by industrious cutters are now in city and country cold storage warehouses awaiting the Christmas rush.

"The average Yule tree," said the regional forester, "will be five feet high and will cost the retail purchaser between $1 and $3 depending on shipping distances and market demand."

Red fir or "silver tip" will bring the best prices because of its symmetry and upright foliage, while the popular Douglas fir and white fir will be within the range of every family pocketbook.

Regional Forester Show said that a considerable portion of the Christmas tree business this year was conducted on private lands and handled by national forest rangers through cooperative agreements with land owners.

"We are encouraging improved forest management practices on private lands as well as public forest areas," Show explained. "Where Christmas tree cutting is properly regulated, it combines a good financial prospect with good forestry practice."

Other benefits pointed to by Show include an increased economy for tree operators and dealers, financial returns to local school and road funds from national forest receipts on the sale of trees and, probably the most important of all, the cherished custom of lighting a decorated evergreen tree in the home at Christmas time.
