

4-H CLUBBERS PURCHASE 11 BEEF CALVES

Eleven head of Hereford calves were purchased from the Yamsay Land and Cattle company and delivered to 10 4-Hers and one Future Farmer Monday to be fed out and exhibited at the 1942 Klamath Junior livestock show. The calves were picked from several hundred head, all bearing the Bar-Y brand, by Ernest Padlock, Clifford Jenkins, and several of the boys. Calves weighing from 270 to 400 pounds were selected.

After 10 months of feeding on good Klamath county home grown feeds, the calves will be finished, weighing from 850 to 1000 pounds. It will take approximately a ton of grain, oats, wheat, and barley, a ton and a half of alfalfa hay, 150 pounds of cotton cake or linseed oil meal, some milk, and plenty of fresh drinking water, on top of regular feeding, to make prime steers of these calves by next fall.

The first job for the feeder will be to halter break and get his calf gentle, because gentle calves are more easily handled and fatten quicker.

As many of the club members finance their projects through the banking institutions in Klamath county, they are confronted with the problem of protecting their investment against loss by death, and so take out life insurance on their calves, this costing 6 per cent of the value of the calf now. The value of the insurance to the boy or girl increases 10 per cent per month for six months. This insurance is sold by the Hartford Insurance company, handled by Tom Watters and R. H. Dunbar in Klamath Falls.

The following are the boys and girls who secured calves: Bobby Schmor, Homer Dixon, Ralph Dixon, and Luther Noble from Benanza; Virginia Crawford, Olene; Joe Keller, LeRoy Stewart, and Tom Dixon from Henley; Wesley Goldsworthy from Merrill; and Bill and Bob Burgess from Algoma.

72 Per Cent of Oregon Farms Get Electricity

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2 (AP)—Of the 64,826 farms in Oregon, 44,500, or 72 per cent, were receiving central station electric service on July 1, 1941, the rural electrification administration reported today.

When the REA was established in 1935 only 17,839 farms—27.5 per cent—were receiving such service.

The 26,661 newly electrified farms represent an increase of 149.5 per cent.

Oregon now ranks ninth among the states in percentage of farm electrification.

The REA up to July 1, 1941, had allotted $3,288,000 to 13 borrowers in Oregon for construction of 2600 miles of power lines to serve nearly 8000 consumers.

MATTHEWS GIVES BUCKAROO FIGURES

A delayed statement of the audit of financial records and affairs of Klamath Buckaroo Days, was issued this week by O. D. Matthews, president.

"We have had this audit of our financial records ready for some time but Uncle Sam notified us we must pay on all social securities for the years 1927-38-39-40 and 41 and it has taken us quite some time to obtain the numbers of our employees for these past years. For that reason we are several months late in presenting this statement," President Matthews stated.

Revenues from concessions, tickets, entry fees, queen's ball, dances, programs, expense refunds, and interest earned on the savings account, totaled $14,139.79. Expenditures, which included in part, purses, parade awards, exhibition stock, performers, advertising, dues, flagmen, judges and other items, totaled $12,097.35, leaving a net gain for the season, $1,042.44.

Statement of the association's bank account for the period, September 11, 1940, to September 11, 1941, showed a balance of $4,473.33, according to C. Q. D'Albini, auditor. Available balance with First Federal Savings and Loan association, $3,097.00

Tacoma Startled As Plane Seems Motionless in Air

TACOMA, Dec. 2 (AP)—The army tested a new-type plane over Tacoma today and its peculiarities in the air resulted in a flood of telephone calls to newspaper offices.

The plane, a new-type observation two-seater, dubbed by airmen as a "flying showcase" because of its numerous glass windows, appeared almost motionless in the air.

It hovered for several minutes over buildings, bringing the occupants out into the street to stare along with downtown crowds of shoppers.

The plane arrived a few days ago at Gray Field, Fort Lewis, and will be used mainly for short-range liaison and photographic work.

The plane can land and take off on a field only about 100 yards long. When bucking a head wind it can remain almost motionless in the air over an objection on the ground.

The demonstration startled many in the crowds that gathered on the streets to watch. Some thought it was going to fall, but as near as could be determined the plane could apply "brakes" or surfaces that were turned against the wind to slow its speed. In a high wind it practically stopped.

Revenue miles flown during the first quarter of 1941 by United States domestic airlines showed a gain of 26.86 per cent.

Use of Myrtle Wood for Keel Blocks Assailed

ROSEBURG, Dec. 2 (AP)—The Oregon state board of forestry has gone on record as "opposing the use of myrtle wood for low commercial values which tend to exhaust the supply," and the state forester has been directed to take "whatever steps he can to promote the use of this wood in the novelty industry," the Roseburg chamber of commerce was informed today.

The announcement of the board's action, made in a letter from State Forester N. S. Rogers, was in response to resolutions from the Roseburg chamber, pomona grange and various civic clubs, protesting use of myrtle wood for keel blocks and other commercial uses. The resolutions pointed out that the wood is limited in quantity and has a high value for novelty use but a low value commercially.

The state board was asked to take steps to protect the supply.

Rogers' letter said that while the forestry board had no legal power to restrict the sale of myrtle wood from privately owned lands, the state forester had been requested to suggest to commercial users the use of other woods which might be substituted for myrtle in making friction and keel blocks.

A survey by the northwest forest experiment station, the state forester advises, shows approximately four and one half billion feet of hardwoods in Oregon. Laboratory tests have shown, he states, that white and black oak, tanburk oak, dogwood and chinquapin have sufficient density to make excellent keel blocks. In the case of the oaks, he said, they would be less costly than the myrtle and their use "should be encouraged by both public and private agencies to develop markets for such woods."
