

Holiday Party Given by Nile

Members Entertain Husbands at Dinner, Program, Dance at Elk Hotel

Old Santa had an eye cocked to the welfare and stuffing of the stockings to be hung on Christmas eve by the kiddies in the Portland Shrine hospital when he distributed wind-up toys, wooden toys, dolls and probably a toy soldier or two at the annual holiday party of the Klamath Falls Nile club held Friday evening at the Elk hotel.

This is one of the club's big affairs of the year, members entertained their husbands and fed them turkey. There is much merriment and the Christmas spirit, and, of course, the highlight is the arrival of Santa Claus and his pack.

The party's over and now it can be disclosed that behind that red suit and white beard was Mr. V. J. Josephson who distributed a gift to each and every one, but only on the condition that it was borrowed, for the duration of the party, as Santa had really made those toys for the little hospital patients.

This time there was more merriment than ever, for the old-time dances filled the later evening, with those who knew the steps leading out, and those who didn't, trying to follow—almo left and almo right, promenade all! Mr. Carl Cook did the calling, with Mrs. Cook assisting, while "Pappy" Gordon fiddled.

Another enjoyable feature of these occasions is always the musical hour. For this December's party it was arranged by Mrs. Joseph C. O'Neill and Mrs. George DeWoody Massey. Mr. Charles Stanfield, music director of KUHS, presented about twenty students of the a capella chorus in several songs; Miss Marie Obenchain entertained with two original compositions and Mrs. Massey and Mrs. O'Neill played violin duets, accompanied by Miss Obenchain. There was also carol singing by the group.

Covers were laid for about seventy-five at the seven o'clock Christmas dinner, and members and guests were seated about long tables with effective centerpieces of holly and frosted cones surrounding candles of red and green; evergreen boughs and other holiday greenery used on a long table in the center were powdered with snow.

Arrangements for the dinner were made by Mrs. Ted Shoop, Mrs. Charles Gilbert and Mrs. R. D. Eller, and the decorations were prepared by Mrs. J. H. Poppy, Mrs. Jerry Ricker and Mrs. Leo N. Huls who also served as general chairman of the affair.
