Musical Notes

NEW YORK—"When arriving late, remain in the lobby quietly until admitted by the ushers, and then be quietly seated." This was the first of the "ten commandments" recently handed out to a concert audience. The bold manager of the series gave a printed sheet to his audience listing the "do's" and "don'ts" of behavior which would yield them the greatest satisfaction and enjoyment from the concert. A few of the overly-sensitive sputtered protests but his idea was generally accepted in the spirit in which it was given. Although your correspondent does not know them, he has been told that there are people with otherwise perfect manners who sometimes attend concert or opera and spend the evening audibly whispering about last night's bridge game or some other equally important subject.

Which brings us to the story told about Robert Donat, the screen star, who was the guest of honor at an opera party. Throughout the evening his hostess chattered on and on, and as the final curtain fell said, "Oh, Mr. Donat, I do want you to be with us tomorrow evening. The opera will be 'Tosca.'" "Charmed, I'm sure, replied Mr. Donat. 'I've never heard you in that.'"

Returning to our "ten commandments," of course number seven asked the audience not to applaud between movements of a number. The next day the manager received a call from a dear soul who admitted some confusion as to what was meant by "movement." She added, "it would be a great help if you would tell us what movements of the artist we should look for."

"I dare you to try!" These words from a friend led to the chance singing of Mona Paulée in a Portland, Oregon movie house. Unexpected and enthusiastic acclaim by the audience won the contest for the young mezzo-soprano. This proof that people liked to hear her sing started Mona Paulée on the path that has led to the winning of the Metropolitan Auditions of the Air and introduced her to the acclaim of a Metropolitan audience.

Each of the ten grand fingers of Moissaye Boguslawski, noted concert pianist, is valued at five "grand," making fifty grand fingers. This is how it is figured—Boguslawski's hands are insured for $50,000 or at the rate of $5,000 per digit.

About his hands that are valued so highly, the genius remarks, "They get more attention than the average hands, I suppose. Before each recital I bathe them in hot water. It is a problem. I must always keep my hands where they belong."

Delphian to Meet Tuesday

Members of Delta Gamma chapter of Delphian will meet Tuesday at a quarter to ten o'clock at the home of Mrs. K. G. Cummings on Washington street. The topic will be, "The Scientist and His Methods," and the leader will be, Mrs. C. E. Morrison.

Tulelake Man Weds

Anne Crandlemere Bride of Thorben Reiben in Vancouver

TULELAKE—Before tall white tapers in brass candle-labra, Miss Anne Crandlemere, daughter of Frederick L. Crandlemere, Amherst, Massachusetts, became the bride on Thursday, December the fourth, of Mr. Thorben Reiben, Seattle, in St. Lukes Episcopal church at Vancouver, Washington. The ring ceremony was performed in the presence of only immediate relatives of the groom by the Reverend C. S. Mook. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Reiben, Tulelake.

The bride, attired in a street length frock of soldier blue, wore dark accessories and a shoulder corsage of gardenias. Her only attendant, Mrs. Gilbert Osborne, Tulelake, wore rust with rust accessories. Her corsage also was of gardenias.

Gilbert Osborne, Tulelake, was best man.

Mrs. Reiben who attended school in Boston has been employed since coming to the Pacific coast in offices of the Wade Pump company.

Mr. Reiben, a graduate of the school of engineering of Stanford is a member of the Tau Beta Phi fraternity, of Sigma Xi and of the American Society of Civil Engineering. He is employed at the Boeing Airplane plant at Seattle.

Following the ceremony the young couple left for a brief trip up the Columbia river and through eastern Washington. Mrs. Reiben has visited in Tulelake, making a number of friends during her brief stay.

Going north for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Reiben, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Osborne and Mrs. Reiben's sister, Miss Blanch Rees Berkeley.
