Japanese Shooting Works For Quick Pacific Victory

By GLENN BABB NEW YORK, Dec. 29 (Wide World)—Japan, choosing her own time, launched her war on the United States and Britain at the moment she had brought most of the factors that favor her to their highest degree of effectiveness. Just now she is enjoying to the full the advantages these factors give her. But she is operating on a time schedule that will not permit of many delays or deviations. Occidental economists agree that unless they have misread all the data available Japan must win quickly or suffer defeat and economic collapse. To an overwhelming, appalling degree Japan is shooting the works on her lightning war in the Pacific. Economically she was 100 per cent mobilized when she struck at Pearl Harbor. Just about all she had ready. But the fact remains it was about all she had. Japan's elements of strength are these: complete preparation, the result of at least five years of unrelenting, unflagging effort on the part of a regimented people; an army tempered by more than four years of actual campaigning and a navy and air force secretly armed on a scale unsuspected by her enemies, all fully mobilized; all the best of the geographical situation, shorter lines of communication and an interior position in the vast battlefield of the western Pacific; some measure of guidance from her ally, Germany, up to this point the most advanced military power in the world; a united people and leadership; a morale which combined a fatalistic readiness to win or die, bitter racial hatred of the enemy, desperation, and a dream of world domination. But she had far less of all the material resources needed for war than the United States, one of the powers she had challenged. She has far less industrial capacity. Her output of steel, for example, at 7,000,000 tons a year, is about one-thirtieth of the American capacity. She must go abroad for nearly all her oil, most of the metals vital to modern war—iron, copper, tin, nickel, aluminum, tungsten and others—and for her rubber. She has spent five years and a sizeable portion of her national income in accumulating vast stores of these materials. She raided the junk piles of the United States from coast to coast for scrap iron and steel until this trade was stopped. She bought huge amounts of pig iron from British India and Malaya. She drew on the mines of all the world for other metals. And she bought oil at the capacity of her wealth and all the tanker tonnage she could mobilize. Oil is the crux of her problem. Hugh Dalton, Britain's minister of economic warfare and probably the best authority on this point, estimated that she jumped into the world war with enough oil to fight it all out for 14 months. It seems a fair assumption that that is indicative of her reserves in other essentials. But she must also count on the readiness of her foes to apply the "scorched earth" policy. She must be prepared to find the oil wells blasted, the refineries wrecked, rubber plantations laid waste. It will be months after occupation, perhaps years, before she can count on a steady flow of wealth from any conquests.

College Recruits Sought by Navy For Higher Ranks

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Dec. 29 (Special)—Word has been received here by Dr. Donald M. Erb, president of the University of Oregon, that the U. S. naval reserve is now enlisting juniors and seniors in accredited colleges and universities for active duty after graduation. The navy needs, according to the announcement, 7000 seniors now in college, or college graduates, as prospective officers. Seniors who enlist today will not be called to active duty before next June, in order that they may graduate. In addition, the navy needs 7000 men now in their junior year in college for officer training. It is contemplated that students who enlist now may complete their education and graduate in 1943. This policy has been established by the navy in order to insure the availability when needed of adequate numbers of candidates with requisite educational and other qualifications. Low, watery land in North Carolina is of various types: bays, dismals, pocosins, swamps, and savannahs.
