Following Monday evening's business meeting an interesting paper was presented by Mrs. Lamb who took for her subject, "Early Oregon Gardens." Mrs. Lamb advised her listeners they took too much for granted, having become accustomed to our lovely Oregon gardens, forgetting that this entire development has taken place in less than a 150 years. Mrs. Lamb developed her theme from the natural wild flowers and fruits which the pioneers found when they crossed the plains, to the planting of the first seeds on a small island with but a meagre crop as a result. She told of the efforts of the fur companies, particularly that of the Hudson's Bay company under Dr. McLaughlin in whose garden could be found practically every vegetable which we have today.

After touching on the pioneer efforts, Mrs. Lamb cited her audience to some of the marvelous gardens in the state today. Following her paper she showed a number of beautiful slides of our native wild flowers, all of which might have been seen by the settlers as they entered this country during spring and summer months.

Delegates to the state conference were named, including Mrs. Irene Foster, Mrs. Robert Odell, Mrs. H. A. Nitschelm, Mrs. G. Logan Black and Mrs. Helen Mueller. Alternates: Mrs. Z. W. Dixon, Mrs. D. V. Kuykendall, Mrs. Harry M. Ackley, Mrs. Warren C. Hunt and Mrs. S. R. Berry.

She wore her grandmother's wedding jewelry of old gold and carried an arm bouquet of pale lavender orchids.

The vows were exchanged before a large window with two brass bowls of white chrysanthemums placed on either side of a candelabra holding tall white tapers.
