FARMERS EXCHANGE NOTES AT MEETING

Every Thursday evening, the farmers of the Bonanza district meet at the high school to attend their weekly farm discussion meeting.

No, it is not the old-fashioned literary society or debate club. It is an up-to-date farmer class, supervised by the Bonanza agriculture teacher, B. F. Carothers.

These meetings are strictly informal and open to the public. Any farmer is welcome to bring his troubles, air them, and receive help. The advice is not given in book form but every farmer who has had similar experience tells of his success in such a case and when all of this is exhausted, the agricultural teacher gives the findings of experiments tried by the state experiment station.

No two meetings are alike. One evening Lee McMullen of the KPCA spoke, giving "The Probable Results That The War Will Have on Credit." Another evening Mrs. Winnifred Gillen of the extension service took out some speakers to explain "Record Keeping and the Income Tax." Next Thursday, Charles Henderson will discuss, "The War Shortages in Agriculture."

The meeting usually opens with a sound film on some good farm practice followed by the farmers round table discussion and a speaker leading with fresh information. At 10 o'clock they adjourn for coffee and cake, after which they visit for an hour or so.

The average attendance, Carothers says, is about 30, although he has a weekly mailing list of over 50, which includes those who have attended at some time.

This is the second winter for these weekly get-togethers under the supervision of the Bonanza teacher.
