

JAPS SHELL ISLANDS IN MANILA BAY

attack February 4 in the Java sea, NEI headquarters announced.

"The Netherlands Indies fleet is absolutely intact, at sea and ready for action."

Amboina Hit

The Dutch high command acknowledged that Japanese invasion forces had won control of most of Amboina island, site of the Indies' second biggest naval base, but reported heavy new blows at Japanese sea power.

A Dutch bulletin said NEI forces had sunk a Japanese cruiser and a transport and hit another cruiser and a submarine in operations off Amboina, which lies between Celebes island and New Guinea in the Moluccan sea.

Japan—Tokyo headquarters, amplifying its claim yesterday that two Dutch cruisers had been sunk in the Java sea, asserted that a United States light cruiser of the Marblehead class and a Dutch cruiser of the Java class were damaged "beyond repair" in the same attack. The 3350-ton Dutch cruiser Tromp was also listed as heavily damaged.

Burma—Japanese warplanes again heavily attacked Rangoon, the Burmese capital, but sharp-shooting American and British fliers shot down two of 24 raiding planes and damaged two others without loss to themselves.

As the violence of the Singapore siege mounted, Lieut-Gen. A. E. Percival, the British commander, acknowledged that some men, planes, ships and supplies had left the island, but he declared grimly:

"We will hold Singapore. There is no question about it."

The withdrawal, he said, does not mean that the island's defenses have been weakened or that "the air force and navy have abandoned Singapore."

"They have gone to places whence they can bomb Japanese bases just as effectively and build up our naval strength," Gen. Percival explained.

Give God His Hour

Journey back to Rome and look in on the Apostle Paul. He is lining out a letter to the church at Colosse. In the closing section he sends personal greetings.

"Epaphras, who is one of you, a servant of Christ, saluteth you, always laboring fervently for you in prayers, that ye may stand perfect and complete in the will of God."

Often Paul had heard Epaphras pleading before the throne. Laboring on his knees, he was, that the young church at Colosse might grow into full faith and into the stature of Jesus Christ.

What part has prayer? God could raise a crop of oats without our having a part. But for reasons of his own, he has decreed that the laborer is to plow, harrow and put in the seed. And in the spiritual field, God could have worked it through without us. But instead, he has chosen that we should sow the Gospel seed in the hearts all about and water it with our prayers.

We recall the Christian worker with the pocket memo book; the pages of names were his prayer list.

"I have other books like this and most of my converts have been from these prayed-for names." So he told it.

Quite right, veteran of the vineyard, "The fervent supplication of a righteous man availeth much."

And what have the converts gained? This, for one thing: "Blessed is the man unto whom God will not impute sin." Romans 4:8. Not one sin is ever to be imputed; COUNTED OVER AGAINST THE TWICE-BORN. All his sins are charged over against Christ, who settled by His death.

What moved God to do it? "God commendeth his love toward us, in that while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us."

What more will God do? "He that spared not his own Son, but delivered Him up for us all, how shall he not with Him also freely give us all things?"

The great salvation is ready. The neighbor down the street and the tribes at the end of the earth wait on your seed sowing and your labor in prayer. And God is ready: "Call unto me, and I will answer thee, and show thee great and mighty things which thou knowest not." Jeremiah 33:3. Have you a prayer list? Are you ready? Give God his hour.

field headquarters asserted that strong forces of two soviet divisions had been annihilated on the central (Moscow) front and that 18,000 Russian soldiers had been killed in the past two weeks.

On the north African front, Premier Mussolini's high command said axis troops had reached Ain El Gazala, only 40 miles west of Tobruk, and had captured the Gialo Casis in southern Libya, 250 miles west of the Egyptian frontier.

schemes to induce men to send their old clothes to the rummage sale and buy new ones.

There are tricks in all trades.

(THE whole project smells of enemy propaganda. With American men going around in bob-tailed coats, skin-tight pants and hard hats, the thought might easily enter a lot of minds that the country isn't worth fighting for.)

HERE and in S. F., considerable numbers of women are to be seen in fancy uniforms. Not the uniforms of the regular auxiliary services of the army and navy, such as the nurse's corps, but special ones (bought by the wearer) of various volunteer organizations. Judging by the comment one hears, the ordinary run of people seem to resent them as affectations.

Maybe this resentment (which is faint, but noticeable) is out of place. Still, people are people.

WITH a war on, weather doesn't seem all-important. And it isn't raining. It didn't rain yesterday. And it is wholly comfortable without an overcoat.

But the sunshine is filtering down through a thin scum of cloud, and it looks like it might rain if it took a notion to. The weather on the Pacific Coast this winter is distinctly on the dampish side.

ALL BUT THREE OF CREW LOST NEAR PANAMA

pleted and commissioned until 1923. It displaced 800 tons on the surface and 1062 tons submerged.

Six navy divers were sent from Washington to help divers already engaged in rescue operations. Contact was first established with the sunken ship in 301 feet of water five days after the craft sank, but the navy added "there was no indication of life on board."

Buoy Found

There was evidence, however, that men were still alive on board the submersible after the crash. A buoy projected from the submarine's signal gun was discovered on the surface and contained a message saying that the crew members were in the central operating compartment.

The note explained that both ends of the vessel, fitted with compartments designed for diving bell rescue, were flooded. Naval experts said here that because of the design of the S-25's conning tower structure it was impossible to use the submarine rescue bell over the central compartment.

Did You Ever Leave Anything In a Theatre? If It Wasn't Gum, You Can Go Get It Back in the dog house more than once for there were a number of baby shoes that didn't match. For a baby all right but when you find two odd shoes of a grown man, that's something. Two such articles were there.

It looked as if the jewelry dated back to the middle ages; there was one pretty golden hatpin that measured a good six inches and looked like a brass pussy willow that the termites had played in. Also in the jewelry box was a cheap alarm clock. How could anybody leave anything like that if it was ticking at all?

One thing was sure, and that was people come to the movies to relax because scattered through the piles of articles were belts of all makes and models. Speaking of relaxing, someone left a girdle.

Water guns, cap guns, flashlights, glasses and pipe pouches were a few more of the things piled on the shelves.

After my expedition I decided that that should be enough to please the boss so I bid the secretary "adiuu" and started on my way. Just as I was ready to leave I remembered I had left my pencil, paper, at the lost and found department. While digging I ran across the hat I'd lost three months ago and in which I had accused everyone in the block for taking. I left the office ready for more action.

At the next theatre I ran across the same line of stuff, some high priced articles, too. I runs up to another pretty little gal and wasn't going to be caught with another silly one so I said, "Miss, where is the lost and found department of this theatre?"

"Why not ask an usherette?" she said as her husband grabbed her by the arm and gave me a dirty look.

Only one thing caught my eye outside of the boxes of gloves and hats, and that was two dresses. What was I to think? Did the Bob Hope show affect some people like that? Was it a blackout? So with a puzzled brow I walked out of the theatre and to the office.

"Boss," I said, "there is nothing to write a feature story on. If anyone loses anything, all they have to do is ask the girl at the ticket office for the lost and found department, or where will I find something I left in the theatre? She will gladly tell you. Go to the office or the department and with assistance you will recover your lost article. After about four or five months the managers of the theatres collect the clothing and send it to the Salvation Army.

If identification is found in a purse or wallet a letter is written to the person telling them that the article has been found."

"After two weeks of preparation, you haven't got a story," said the boss.

"I did learn something, though," I answered.

"And what is that?" questioned the boss.

"Do you know what people leave most in theatres?"

"No," answered the boss.

With a brave laugh I said, "gum."
