NATIONAL VFW CHIEF TO VISIT HERE THURSDAY

Max Singer, Boston, Mass., Commander-in-Chief, Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States.

Klamath's Veterans of Foreign Wars are completing preparations for a Willard hotel dinner Thursday evening honoring Max Singer, commander-in-chief of the VFW. Singer will be the principal speaker at the event, called for 7:30 p. m.

Singer was elected head of the VFW at Philadelphia in 1941. He is one of the nation's ranking fingerprint experts, being attached to the bureau of criminal investigation of the Boston police department.

Commander-in-Chief Singer's rise to leadership in the VFW began about 20 years ago when, as one of five overseas veterans, he organized Boston Field post No. 1018, in which he has been continuously active. He served as post commander during 1925, 1926 and 1927. He was then elected junior vice commander of the department of Massachusetts, VFW, and in 1928 became commander of that department. He also served one year as national deputy chief of staff. He served as a member of the national council of administration in 1933-35, on the national VFW rehabilitation committee in 1937 and the national legislative committee in 1938-39. At the 40th annual encampment at Boston in 1939, he was elected junior vice commander-in-chief for the ensuing year. He was advanced to the second ranking office in the organization, senior vice commander-in-chief, by the unanimous vote of the 1940 encampment at Los Angeles.

A native of New York City where he was born February 11, 1888, Singer has been a resident of Massachusetts since Tacoma, Wash., on Saturday, March 7, 1942, at 2 p. m., following an illness of eight months. He is a native of Fort Klamath, Oregon, and at the time of his death was aged 29 years 9 months and 29 days. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Helen Copeland, and one son, Ralph Raymond Copeland of Chillicothe, Oregon; his mother, Mrs. Ethel Rawlin of Los Angeles, California; one sister, Mrs. Margaret Shelp of Hawthorne, California, and one brother, John Copeland, US navy. The remains rest in the Earl Whitlock Funeral Home, Pine street at Sixth. Notice of funeral to be announced later.

Weekend in Yreka—Mrs. E. B. Lonsley and granddaughter, Barbara, spent the weekend in Yreka, Calif.
