

CONCERT DRIVE MOVING ALONG HERE, REPORT

The 1942-43 membership campaign of the Klamath Community Concert association was again on its way toward a successful drive as workers reported with much enthusiasm the response of the city and county's music lovers.

With the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo slated for appearance here in early December, the program for the coming year promises to be the most outstanding in the history of the association. Other artists being considered for a top-flight season of stars and big names of concert stage include the two Metropolitan opera sopranos, the Brazilian star Bidyu Sayao, and the glamorous Helen Jepson; Dorothy Maynor, negro soprano; Draper and Adler, whose possible appearance here has been greeted with applause as America's choice high-hat vaudeville team; Robert Weede, most promising of the younger American baritones and now taking over Lawrence Tibbett's roles with the Metropolitan Opera company; Zino Francescatti, great French violinist, and the leading French pianist, Robert Casadesus. The artists will be chosen by members of an artists' committee Saturday night. The opinion of old and new members is desired by those who will make the selection.

As far as the Ballet Russe is concerned, there is no bigger box office name in the country today. The Ballet Russe is made up of a cast of over 100 and has two of the three leading ballerinas in the world today, Tamara Toumanova, who has been called the greatest ballerina since Pavlova, and Danilova who danced with the famous Diaghileff ballet on the European continent. Both are Russians and schooled in the vigorous ballet of Leningrad.

Male dancers appearing in the Ballet Russe include the world's most famous dancer and choreographer in the world today, Leonide Massine, and the three brilliant performers, Youskevitch, Frederic Franklin and Egleski. The Ballet Russe has a monopoly on the male dancers as far as world famous names is concerned.

Headquarters of the concert association are at the Willard hotel and the campaign closes Saturday night.

Letter Writer Seeks Trace of Early Settlers

Do any of the old timers remember families named Nelson, McCain, Gholson or Goldson, who settled in southern Oregon shortly after the Civil War? A letter was received this week by the mayor's office asking for information concerning relatives of W. B. Smith, department of justice, McRae, Telfair county, Georgia. Smith states that immediately after the war between the states, his relatives with the above names left Calhoun and Lafayette counties for Oregon. He is now attempting to locate members of these families. Information may be sent to Smith in McRae, according to his letter.

MACARTHUR'S ENTRY CHEERS AUSTRALIANS

Prime Minister John Curtin, United States Vice Admiral Herbert F. Leary who has been in command of the allied sea forces in the Anzac zone for more than a month.

This topflight American military triumvirate, at the head not only of Australia's own forces but also of "most substantial American reinforcements," infused the commonwealth with new optimism.

Although MacArthur had not yet reached his new headquarters he took over command at once.

It was disclosed that MacArthur, along with his wife, four-year-old son and a dozen members of his staff, made the flight here through the aerial war zone from Bataan in a United States army plane.

By direct route the flight would have been 2000 miles to Darwin, nearest Australian base. With MacArthur were Major Gen. R. K. Sutherland and Brig. Gen. Harold H. George.

(Exchange telegraph reported in a dispatch from Canberra that MacArthur arrived at Alice Springs, road-rail junction of the defense highway from Darwin to south Australia, yesterday, and was expected to confer with government officials in Canberra soon.)

The location of United States fighting forces, which have arrived at various ports, could not be disclosed, but they were scattered to camps throughout Australia as they moved up to battle zones.

In some camps they were quartered alongside Australian troops. Official disclosure that the Americans are here brought profound relief to the Australians—who, of course, have known it from the start.

"We have not known how to treat you," one Australian merchant said. "We have seen your boys—hundreds of them—in hotels, restaurants and stores, but there had not been a line about them in the papers."

FLOOD DELAYS CROP PLANTING ON TULE LAKE

Operators of land now under water in the Tulelake area will not be permitted to follow their usual schedule of early planting, according to information received from B. E. Hayden, superintendent of the US bureau of reclamation, who said Tuesday he was unable to set the time for pumping the water from the area.

Thirty three thousand acres of land is now under the flood waters and of this amount 9800 acres were cropped last year. Big operators include Henzel brothers, Cox brothers, John Kandra and son, Tackas and Dixon, Shuck brothers, and a group located on the northeast end of the territory.

Pumps should arrive "sometime this week" Hayden stated, however it is probable that the pumps will not be installed for 10 days after arrival as Jack Gardner, contractor on the pump house, has not yet completed his work. Gardner gave USRS officials a date set around the end of the first week in April for completion of the pump house.

Planting of major crops, barley and oats, usually starts around May 1, although some operators seed in mid-April. The only section of the area not under water is Copckeck bay, Hayden said.

A joint report on the progress made by the Portland chapter for the forthcoming state convention was given by Joe Bally and Paul Lee who urged all local members to start laying plans to attend this meeting which will be held May 1-2-3. Additional information will be released this month regarding the main speakers and discussions.

Walt Bowne, chairman of the Spring Sports dance being held at the armory this coming Saturday night, gave a report as to the progress made by his committee and asked that each member make an honest effort to sell as many tickets as possible before that night. Although this particular dance is not the usual Jaycee's "Big-name" dance, a good time is offered by the committee in charge and the public is invited to attend. Ladies will be admitted free and the admission for gentlemen is one dollar including tax.

were listed as "possibly sunk." Ships damaged were listed as one cruiser, one large destroyer, two transports which suffered direct bomb hits, one troop ship, three transports, one aircraft tender, one gunboat—a total of 10, consisting of four warships and six others.
