

Ceremony Read In Chapel of Church

Destie Kleineger Bride of Norman Peters at Wednesday Morning Rites

One of the season's loveliest weddings was that of half past eight o'clock Wednesday morning in the chapel of Sacred Heart church when Miss Destie Kleineger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kleineger of this city, became the bride of Mr. Norman Peters, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Peters of Ventura, California.

The Rev. Timothy Casey read the service before an altar backed with white stock, fern and yellow daffodils and lighted by many candles.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white satin fashioned with a fitted bodice and full flared skirt. Her veil which was finger tip length, bordered with alencon lace, held at the head by a crystal blossom tiara. Her only jewelry was a strand of pearls, gift of the groom. She carried a white prayer book on which was placed an orchid with bouvardia caught on the white satin streamers.

Miss Beverly Barrett of Corvallis, was maid of honor and wore a pale pink chiffon frock of organza. She carried a bouquet of rapture roses and bouvardia.

Miss Jerry Allen of Corvallis was the bridesmaid and wore a blue chiffon organza frock. Her flowers were bouvardia. Both wore similar net veils with a spray of spring blossoms on the crown.

Mr. George Peters of Corvallis, was his brother's best man. The groom's attendant was McDonald DeVani of Corvallis. Mr. Frank Bogatay was the usher.

The ring, used in the ceremony, belonged to the bride's maternal grandmother, Mrs. Harry V. Layne. Engraved on the ring was the date, August 25, 1896.

Mendelssohn's processional was played at the organ, as was the traditional recessional.

Following the ceremony a breakfast was served at the Pelican party room where covers were placed for members of the wedding party and fifty guests. The wedding date was also the bride's birthday. Tables were centered with yellow and white jonquills and greens. The bride's table held the tiered wedding cake on a base of rosebuds. The bride cut her cake later served to the guests.

During the breakfast five Sigma Nu brothers of the room sang, "She's the White Rose of Sigma Nu." The young men included Jack Castleberry and Benjamin Kerns of Klamath Falls, Harry West, Sam Trueblood and Irvin Thompson, all of Portland.

Miss Mary Jane Metler, close friend of the bride, presided at the guest book. Receiving with the bride and groom was the bride's mother who wore a dusty rose redingote with a corsage of orchids and black accessories, and also an aunt of the bride, Mrs. Roy Brown of Sacramento.

Assisting about the room was Miss Jean Warrens of Forest Grove.

Late Wednesday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Peters left for Corvallis where they will reside at 317 North Eighteenth street, and both will continue their studies at Oregon State college.
