Root Through? Not if You Ask PCL Hitters

Ex-Cub Veteran Still Chucking 'Em For Hollywood - and Holding 'Em, Too

By ROBERT MYERS HOLLYWOOD, May 21 (P) - Charley Root through! Hardly. The old Chicago Cub star is still pitching baseball. Ask Pacific Coast league hitters. The old boy is handing them nothing but misery.

He's been beaten once this year since kissing the Cubs and his major league career goodbye. Portland, the tailend club, sneaked in to a 4-3 win, but it took 'em 14 innings. Sure, old Charley was in there at the finish. He's finished every game he's started this season.

He's also beaten every club in the circuit. Root claims to be 43. He didn't make an understatement of the point. This is his 22nd year in organized baseball. He pitched for Chicago for 16 years before coming to Hollywood this season.

To date, Root has pitched to 286 batters. They are hitting him for a 2.10 average, and scoring on him with a 2.07 earned run average. He's walked 13 and fanned 30. And he's trying to pitch a second division club out of the second division.

How does this 43-year-old wizard do it? With an arm, a head - and a heart.
