The United States coast guard operates under the treasury department in peacetime, but automatically becomes a part of the navy in war.

Youth Follows Father's Steps

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 21 (AP)—Charles J. Fay of Newport is only 17 but he wanted to join the navy because his father was a chief torpedoman in Australia. So special papers waiving the age limit were forwarded to the father for signature.

No answer came; instead, a brief telegram saying the elder Fay had been killed in action. So young Charles' mother signed the papers.

With his experience as a store clerk, the youth could have asked for a storekeeper's rating. But he didn't.

"I want to be the same as my father, a torpedoman," he said, as he was accepted into the navy.
