Here's How The War Will Affect Homes

(Editor's Note: War touches every home and every citizen. This column, based on official government information and prepared by the Office For Emergency Management, shows how the war will affect Mrs. American and her home.)

Zippers salvaged from worn out clothing or other discarded articles have a new value by the ruling permitting reconditioning and sale of used slide fasteners. Meantime, the passing of new zippers from the American scene has been postponed, and those made prior to April 1 can still be used. No more new slide fasteners can be made, but those already completed can zip many garments and articles. Originally, the use of zippers was to have been stopped after June 1.

You may not be opening those cans of salmon or sardines for Sunday evening snacks as often as you have in the past. The government will get first call on the canner's 1942 pack of salmon, sardines, Atlantic herring and mackerel for the armed forces and lend-lease requirements. The boys in the army and navy won't have canned sardines or mackerel if there is enough salmon. And, Mrs. America your family will get these canned products if the entire supply is not needed for military and lend-lease purposes.

Denim probably won't be as available to you for slacks and playclothes as it has been. It will be helping in the production of adequate work clothes for the nation's war workers. It is expected that an order will be issued soon giving overalls, dungarees, overall jumpers and other work clothes a priority for such fabrics as denim, chambray, covert, whipcord, moleskin, corduroy, suede, twill and jeans in specified weight or thread count.

More than likely you never thought of the sink in your home as being especially important in the war effort. However, after June 20 sinks, except for scullery, and other metal plumbing fixtures will not be produced. Sink and laundry tray combinations are among the home plumbing accessories that are to be restricted. It is believed that there are enough of the essential metal plumbing fixtures available to take care of necessary requirements for some time.

Homeowners wishing to convert heating plants from oil to coal can buy grates for furnaces, boilers and stoves without priority rating. Automatic stokers and other materials needed for the conversion to coal also are obtainable without a preference rating. The OPA consumer division advises you homeowners in Washington and Oregon to shift from oil to wood, coke or coal so you won't be worried about fuel shortages next winter. Also, it is suggested if you use coal for heating, better order it now while it is readily available.

Sweet music will be produced by the nation's musical instrument makers, but it won't be coming from articles made for your home. They are to do war work. Piano manufacturers will be turning out gliders instead of instruments on which Juniors practices scales. The men who make saxophones will be doing their part to make it sweet and hot for the enemy... they'll be making precision instruments, mostly for airplanes. Violins, cellos and some guitars are not affected by the new WPB order restricting musical instruments.

When you go shopping next autumn for a new dress, coat, suit, blouse or skirt for yourself or your daughter, you will probably notice that the garments have label or tags reading, "Priced under OPA regulation No. 153." That's your assurance that you won't be paying more for your 1942 fall outfit than you did the previous year. This price regulation applies to garments delivered for the first time by the manufacturer between July 1 and November 15. And it means that the seller cannot charge you a price higher than he asked for a garment of substantially equal workmanship and quality from July 1 to September 30, 1941.

Mrs. America certainly will not be left out of the mobilization for the vast army behind the weapons—the workers who make and those who supply food for both soldiers and workers. The War Manpower Commission anticipates that 2,000,000 workers from the home—housewives with no children under 16 to care for, boys under draft age and girls in their late teens—will be war labor sources. If you are interested in war work, get in touch with the nearest U.S. Employment Service office to see if there is a job for you.

If you live in one of the 20 defense areas in which housing rents have been brought under federal control and have paid over the maximum up to the time the regulation went into effect June 1, sorry there will be no rebate. However, from this time on, the tenant should pay no more than the highest charge during the maximum rent date. In the Puget Sound area, the date is April 1, 1941. So, if you are in this defense rent area and you paid $32.00 a month on April 1, 1941, that is the highest that can be charged now for the same dwelling.

Your dry cleaner and tailor will have to practice conservation of equipment as well as you. New pressing machinery will not be available to the custom tailor. Neither will machinery used in rug and fur cleaning establishments.

If you like your orange and grapefruit juice canned, so sorry but citrus fruit juices don't come under provisions of the general maximum price regulation any more. However, canned fruit salad and fruit cocktail are still under the regulation even though they include oranges and grapefruit.

Your husband won't have to take it on the chin even though manufacturers and jobbers supplies of safety razors are earmarked for the armed forces. Besides the availability of refiners' stocks to him, there will be a new victory razor soon made with a zinc cap, zinc or plastic guard and plastic hand. It will save 1,662,000 pounds of brass.

WORK EXPECTED ON LAKEVIEW AIRPORT

LAKEVIEW, Ore. (Special)—Although the contract on the Lakeview airport has not been definitely approved, work is expected to start shortly, when and if the bid of contractors is accepted by the government, contractors announced this week.

George E. Johnson, paving engineer with the CAA, was a local visitor here yesterday to inspect the plans for the local airport. Several changes in original plans are contemplated, but he had no announcement to make for publication.

Because the airport is a military project, official news as to its progress must be released by the government before its publication.

However, the project is expected to get under way within the next seven days if weather conditions will permit, men already on the job announce.

Approximately 100 men are expected to be employed on the present project. Of these about 50 will be brought in from other jobs.

Jones and King, builders of the Klamath Falls airport, were low bidders on the Lakeview job, although the proposal has not been accepted yet by the government.

Several sub-contracts have been let by the company dependent upon government acceptance of their bid.

Mrs. Sult explains that "missing" is the term used until the men are officially listed as prisoners.

A. Barth of Chico, who killed a buck near Hayden Hill, said he watched an antelope doe chase a coyote for a mile over a hill, then found a pair of fawns when the doe had started. Barth said barbecued antelope meat tasted good to him.
