No Time for Complacency

WHILE the results of the sea battle near Midway are ample cause for rejoicing, we should be wary of complacency. The war is still far from won. One success should not only add to our determination and effort, but it should step up precautionary measures against another blow from the enemy. Morale is on the rise in the United States. The victory in the Pacific, the terrific British aerial assault on German centers, and United Nations successes in Africa, have contributed to a growing conviction that the tide of war is turning our way at last. Such may well be the case, but over-confidence has turned many a potential victory into defeat. Let us be confident, but let us remember also that the road to victory is still long and difficult and will require everything we have if we travel it. We are fighting an enemy that is crafty, shrewd, stubborn and no respecter of conventions or high-sounding codes. He will get in a blow whenever and wherever he can. He is looking for another chance right now.

Plenty to Do

A FINE-LOOKING group of young men—48 of them—took the oath of allegiance at Sunday's Avenue Pearl Harbor ceremony, a heartening event that was in tune with the navy's successes in the mid-Pacific on the same day. One first world war veteran, looking at the V shaped group of recruits, remarked: "There is only one thing wrong with that picture, so far as I am concerned. I want to be there, too." Probably every man in the audience felt the same way. That spirit, translated into the things that can be done on the home front, will help win the war. There should be no moping by those who fail to get into the services for one reason or another. There is still plenty they can do.

Indians Ask Huge Sum for Loss of Land, Fish Rights

SEATTLE, June 8 (AP)—Claiming title to virtually all of southeastern Alaska, an Indian "nation" has launched a suit to recover $35,000,000 from the government for lands and fishing rights appropriated by white men. The claimants are the Tlingits, who contend that the czar of Russia recognized their title to Alaska's most populous region, which includes the cities of Juneau, Ketchikan, Skagway, Petersburg and Wrangell. The United States recognized the title, the Tlingits contend, in the treaty of cession in 1867. The region contains rich mining developments and myriad fishing sites and canneries which form the territory's major industry. The suit was prepared by a Juneau legal firm for filing in the court of claims at Washington, D. C. The new suit follows by a few weeks the interior department's "Margold opinion"—by Solicitor

Withholding Weather News Aids Defense, Navy Says

SAN FRANCISCO, June 8 (AP)—A Japanese naval force attacking the Pacific coast would be at a severe disadvantage without information on weather conditions, the navy said today, in explaining why such data was withheld until it was 24 hours old, too late to be of any value to the enemy. "Let us assume what is quite possible, that a Japanese naval task force has arrived, undetected, 600 miles off the Pacific coast of the United States," the twelfth naval district said in a statement. "It contains two aircraft carriers, two battleships, three heavy cruisers, 12 destroyers. Hiding in the fog bank that covers thousands of miles of the Pacific ocean adjacent to these shores, the Japanese task force faces an acute and pressing problem. "What is the weather like along the American coastline? On the answer to this important question depends, in considerable part, the success of the invaders' mission. "At full speed, the fast Japanese ships reach the fog belt and then wait for the proper moment to strike. That moment is determined largely by meteorological conditions because the planes from the carriers have got to reach the coast at maximum speed and then, if possible, return to a rendezvous with the

Two More Firms Aid USO Drive

With a $2000 leg on its $8600 goal, USO headquarters Monday added two more hundred-percenters to its honor roll of business houses contributing to the drive. They were planning mill employees of the Big Lakes Box company, and the U. S. National bank. Individual contributions are continuing steadily, according to Chairman Dick Maguire, who reported an anonymous $1 contribution from Malin accompanied with the words: "I don't see how anyone who listens to the USO radio program could refuse to contribute. When I hear those wounded boys sending messages to their parents..."

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON
WASHINGTON, June 8—Russia is pressing for a post-war understanding now on acquisition of a moderate amount of territory which she considers essential to her own defense. You can see this in the inspired news dispatches from Moscow, such as the one June 3 in the New York Times, claiming red rights to the Karelian isthmus, the little Baltic states of Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia, the part of Poland she occupied called "White Russia," and the Bessarabian, Bukovinian and Moldavian sections of Romania. The request for an understanding on this is reported on competent authority to have become known diplomatically to London and to Washington. Obviously, even such a far-sounding and restrained demand, cannot be granted without corrupting the basis on which the United States and Great Britain are conducting the war, or in fact our own form of government. Secret promises would amount to secret treaties, and the president is not empowered to make secret treaties. Our form of government requires treaties to be ratified and proclaimed by the senate. If any official of this government made a promise, it could not be binding, and, therefore, would be worthless. But even if this were not the case, neither London nor Washington officials would consider it a wise policy to start handing out personal promises to work after the war for secret territorial acquisitions for friends. If the first reasonable request is granted a dangerous and embarrassing course would be opened up. Whatever diplomatic representations were made by Russia can definitely be assumed to have been rejected.

It is not thought likely that poison gas will ever be used in this war, except in such limited circumstances as already reported in China and on the Russian front. It would just not be worth while from a military standpoint for anyone to use gas bombs against cities like Washington, London, Tokyo or Berlin. To create any effect, a tremendous amount of gas would be required. Hundreds of planes would be necessary for any important raid. No military advantages would accrue because civilians alone would suffer. Why carry gas against civilians when the same number of planes can inflict real military damage with incendiaries and explosives? Use of gas against seaside military objectives like Midway, Pearl Harbor, Dutch Harbor, etc., is even more improbable. Constant sea breezes would keep it from being effective. Gas is a wholly ineffective weapon in a war of movement which this war has turned out to be in Europe and the far east. It was usable in the first world war, because then fighting was limited to trenches and positions were stabilized. About the only real use for it now (aside from possible attempts at terrorization) is at points where the enemy must hold or advance through narrow places, especially low marshy ground. A retreating force especially, under these conditions, could effectively use gas to delay an enemy advance.

THEY'VE USED IT
The Japs need not deny that they have used gas on 70 or more occasions in their war in China. A place where they relied heavily on this hated weapon was at Ichang at the head of the Yangtze river. The Japs had taken that town and the Chinese were counter-attacking. The Japs stopped the counter-attack by laying down a gas barrage. Again, in recent weeks, the Japs used gas around Kinwa. The Chinese held the city for seven days against Jap attacks until heavy barrages of gas shells were fired into the town. On most of the other occasions the use was limited and in some, experimental.

FEW ADVANCES
It is strange, but true, to learn now, after all we anticipated about prospective gas terrorization in this war, that few advances in its demoralizing efficiency have been made by any nation since the last war. The improvements are nothing like

Defense Calendar

All Red Cross first aiders in Zone K have been asked to meet with Otto Smith at the Klamath Union high school auditorium immediately after the regular Civilian Defense class on Tuesday evening. The purpose of this meeting is to select a new zone captain. Students may still enroll in standard and advanced Red Cross first aid classes conducted in room 209 at the Klamath Union high school, it was announced Monday. Standard class meets on Tuesday and Friday evenings at 7:00, and the advanced class on Monday and Thursday evenings at 7:00. These two classes are taught by A. H. Mead, authorized Red Cross instructor.

Farley, Roosevelt Discuss Politics

WASHINGTON, June 8 (AP)—James A. Farley, former postmaster general, met with President Roosevelt Saturday for the first time in months and said afterward that he was "satisfied that there will be no difficulty so far as the gubernatorial, nominee in New York state is concerned and the democratic nominee will be the next governor." Farley emerged from the White House after an hour-and-a-half luncheon conversation in good humor but generally non-communicative. He volunteered that "I had a very nice chat about a lot of things that there is no news in."

Klamath's Yesterdays

From the files — 40 years ago and 10 years ago.
From The Klamath Republican June 12, 1902
The county high school plan was voted overwhelmingly, and probably the school will be in full operation before next winter.
By telegraph on Monday we learned that Bailey Tiffany, formerly a resident of Klamath Falls and since then one of the guards at the penitentiary, was on Monday morning shot and instantly killed during a revolt and effort to escape by prisoners. He is a nephew of Mrs. Marple of this town.
A new hose house is being built on the ground just east of the Hotel Linkville.
From The Evening Herald June 8, 1932
Petitions to place the names of Mrs. W. T. Dean and Mrs. Irene Kronert on the ballot for school board election were filed today.
Mrs. Eliza Rogers, 60, of Bend, was killed today in a highway crash in northern Klamath county.
A Holstein cow owned by Leonard Lewis topped the Klamath County Cowtesting association list for May.
NON-ABUSIVE LANGUAGE
MONROE, Wis., June 8 (AP)—Calling a man "pro-German" is not using abusive language under terms of a city ordinance, according to City Attorney Arthur Benkert. He gave the ruling when one Monroe resident sought to charge another with using abusive language during an exchange of remarks concerning nazi sympathizers.

(Palo Alto Times)
A news dispatch the other day quoted a Japanese source in reporting that American captives of Japanese were being forced to work and were beaten with ropes to make them labor faster. One naturally wonders why a Japanese spokesman would give out such a statement. Our guess is that it may be with the hope of inspiring reprisals over here in our treatment of the relocated Japanese, in which case the Japs abroad would seize upon the incidents as an excuse for really "pouring it on" in the Japanese-occupied sections. Regardless of what the Japs may do to the American or other allied nationals who become war captives, we should extend exemplary treatment to the Japanese under our care.
Draftee Education Classes Abandoned
RALEIGH, N. C., June 8 (AP) J. E. Miller, director of the state adult education department, said Saturday that adult education classes for draftees rejected because of illiteracy had failed in North Carolina. "The draftees prefer to dodge draft rather than to learn to read and write," he said. "The illiterate youth who is eager to learn that he might serve his country is an unusual case." Miller said that 23 school units in North Carolina have organized classes to teach illiterate draftees but that the rejected men were "a little too wise to go to a school which will prepare them to get back into the army."
