

NAVAL RESERVE MODIFIES EXAM

The navy department announced by dispatch on Thursday that the physical standards for enlistment in the naval reserve have been greatly modified. This is the second modification of the physical requirements since the war.

Men with dentures or those with sufficient teeth to bite and chew are acceptable. There has also been a marked change in regard to vision. The medical department stresses the fact that in line with this modification of physical standards, many of those previously rejected will now be acceptable for enlistment.

The local recruiting station stated Friday that provisions are being made to accommodate those wishing to make application and that a recruiting officer can be contacted at any hour of the day or night. The home address of the recruiters will be posted in a conspicuous place in the lobby of the post office and anyone desiring information regarding enlistment should not hesitate to call at the home of the recruiter whose address is posted.

LABOR OFFICIALS GO TO MARSHFIELD

Four Klamath Falls labor officials Friday were in Marshfield for this weekend's opening of the annual Culinary Alliance, Building Trades council, and State Federation of Labor conventions in the seaside city.

G. C. Tatman, secretary of the local culinary unit, and Joe Willis, secretary of the Building Trades council expected to convene with their groups in one-day confabs Sunday prior to the regular state federation conclave opening Monday. C. O. Dryden of the Klamath plumbers' union and Earl Edsall of the teamsters' local were also in the party.

Tatman's office said today that one of the principal issues on the alliance agenda was the proposal to urge state legislation requiring physical exams for all handlers of food. The issue, which recently popped up in city council meetings, was expected to bring forth the question of fee payment and where it should be imposed.

The federation parley is expected to last through Saturday. St. Philip's Protestant Episcopal church, in Harlem, New York City, is said to be the wealthiest negro church in the world.

Our Home Town

FLAG DAY

By EARL WHITLOCK
I wonder if, during this war, we could not well make every day a "Flag Day?" If every home, city and country, should not display our loved national emblem constantly, weather permitting, of course? Wouldn't it do something to our spirit—bind us still more closely in our national determinations? What a wonderful sight America would offer with every home thus glorifying Old Glory!

That's just an idea, of course. Probably it will have no widespread adoption. But I think it's a fine one, anyway.

And maybe, right here, would be a good time to remind ourselves of some of the reverence due The Flag. It should fly only between sunrise and sunset. It should be raised briskly, as with gladness and spirit. It should be lowered slowly, reluctantly. It should never have any other flag or pennant flown above it, nor any emblem nor object of any kind placed upon it.

It should never be allowed to touch the ground or floor, nor to trail in water, nor to hang so that its folds may be soiled by any contact.

Be guided, in caring for The Flag, by the thought that it represents the living country and that it is to be considered a living thing. Holding this idea in mind, you can do The Flag no irreverence.

Next week Mr. Whitlock of the Earl Whitlock Funeral home will comment on "Fire Risks."
