close to the military reservation they landed, Col. Doney said: "Too damned close."

Col. Doney said patrol planes went up early this morning and a combined surface and air search for the submarine was being pressed today.

Came From Sub

Col. Doney said it was known definitely the shells came from a submarine but that it was impossible to tell what kind of a sub from the fragments unearthed so far. From the sounds they created the colonel described the shells as of "high velocity and flat trajectory."

The attack found the military reservation on the alert but many of the soldiers not on duty admitted ruefully they had slept through the shelling.

Answer

Most observers here believe the purpose of the shelling was an answer to Secretary of War Stimson's statement after Midway that the possibility of attack on the west coast had become more remote.

Grinning Oregon beach residents were unmistakably pleased today—they had been attacked by the enemy.

The thuds of cannonading awakened scores in this resort town. Residents flocked to the turnpike to watch the flashes of gunfire to the north, but did not realize that the Oregon coast was under enemy attack for the first time.

From Portland—Mayor John H. Houston returned to Klamath Falls Sunday from Portland where he has been for several days. Mrs. Houston is remaining in the north for a week.

170,000 Pounds Of Scrap Rubber Collected Here

Eight days remain for Klamath county rubber hunters to turn in their findings in the nation wide campaign which ends June 30. Klamath's quota is 250,000 pounds and at least 170,000 pounds has been collected and brought to local rubber stations.

The half-way point was passed this weekend, according to R. O. Snodgrass, chairman of the local rubber drive, who again advised collectors that rubber may be either donated or sold to any service station in the city. The station will pay one cent per pound if the rubber is purchased. The government later will buy rubber from oil dealers at two cents per pound.

All profits from the rubber drive will be turned over to the Red Cross, the United States organizations and the army and navy relief funds, Snodgrass said.

LIFTING OF LOGGING RESTRICTIONS EYED

SALEM, June 22 (AP)—Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the war production board, asked Governor Charles A. Sprague today to review "existing legislation and practices in your state which may in any way restrict log and lumber production."

Nelson asked for prompt consideration, because the next few months are "critical ones in lumber output for the war program."

Restrictions which Nelson cited include the practice of keeping logging trucks off highways on Sundays, overloading penalties which forbid the use of the truck for several days, and restrictions on the use of some logging equipment.

"With changed conditions, such as less Sunday driving and war-time needs, it may well be that many former restrictions affecting logging and lumber production can be modified or withdrawn in the interest of the war program without affecting public health and safety adversely," Nelson said.

Senate Agrees To Redrafting of Injury Measure

WASHINGTON, June 22 (AP)—The senate agreed unanimously today to the immediate redrafting of pending legislation so as to eliminate provisions authorizing the payment of government benefits to civilians injured or killed in enemy attacks on the United States.

In an understanding reached by sponsors and opponents of the measure, the bill would be revised to provide mercy for the assumption by the government of war risk hazards for the injury, death or capture by the enemy of civilian employees on military installations outside the United States.

Italians List Booty Captured At Tobruk Fall

ROME (From Italian Broadcasts), June 22 (AP)—Booty captured by axis forces at the Libyan port of Tobruk includes 100 tanks, several hundred guns and hundreds of motor vehicles, the Italian high command reported today.

The figures are only initial estimates, a communique said, indicating that the ultimate figure would be still higher. The commander of Tobruk fortress, the bulletin added, was among the prisoners—estimated yesterday to total approximately 25,000.

Five other generals also were reported captured. None was identified, however.

GERMANS INCREASE PRESSURE ON PORT

declared today that the entire region north of Sevastopol on the northern side of Sevastopol's defenses had been cleared of the defenders with the capture of the last coastal fort. This fort was taken in a hard fight, the communique said.

MOSCOW, June 22 (AP)—Sevastopol defenders dropped back from the north and south fortresses guarding the Crimean naval base today before enormous German pressure, exerted ceaselessly despite the heavy casualties, estimated at 100,000, which axis forces have suffered in less than three weeks.

A fresh Nazi wedge was forced in the fortifications to the north where the enemy massed a huge force of infantry, artillery and tanks, press accounts said.

In the south, where the Russians had dropped back to the central lines, a furious battle was reported under way for a hill dominating the sector.

The fate of the historic Crimean fortress appeared to be in the balance as the second year of the costly German campaign in Soviet Russia opened, but Russia's "peasant president," Michael Kalinin, found cause to assure his people that "the end of Hitlerism is inevitable."

Where a year ago the German armies struck against Russia during the night, this year, according to today's mid-day communique of the soviet information bureau, "no significant changes took place at the front" in the hours of darkness.

SECOND FRONT HOPE BLIGHTED, REPORT

Marshal Erwin Rommel having his greatest advantage in his preponderance of armored formations.

The British line along the frontier is of slight use, some commentators believed, so long as the axis has tanks to flank it through the oases of Siwa and Giararub, and the reinforcement of Rommel by a division or even so much as a brigade might tip the scales heavily in his favor.

One of Britain's leading military experts said dive-bombing not only decided the issue at Bir Hacheim but was "to a great extent responsible for the fate of Tobruk."

If Nazi Marshal Erwin Rommel followed up the capture of Tobruk with customary Nazi speed, it was believed that the impending axis thrust toward the Suez canal and the road to Iraq would be launched within a month.

LIBYAN ROUT BRINGS CRISIS IN MIDDLE EAST

their way through enemy formations in the desert. Isolated parties also were reported continuing resistance.

Booty Not Known

The booty gained by the Germans still was not known here, but it was reported that great quantities of material were destroyed.

The Egyptian government issued an order today to check the downward trend of the Cairo stock market.

The axis air forces, following up quickly their success in Libya, bombed the Egyptian coast between Sid Barrani and Fuka.

As the battered British survivors of the bloody Libyan campaign worked feverishly to strengthen their positions along the Egyptian border, military quarters here conceded the probable truth of axis claims that 25,000 of Ritchie's men had been captured by the combined German-Italian forces which completed occupation of Tobruk yesterday.

Near Border

There was no denial either of official reports from Berlin that German troops had pushed on from Tobruk to capture Bir El Gobi, a desert track center 40 miles to the southeast, and the port of Bardia, only eight miles from the Egyptian border.

A British communique reported today that an axis column was moving toward Fort Capuzo, which is just inside the Libyan border about 20 miles south and slightly east of Bardia.

While some British forces were still operating west of the Egyptian frontier, virtually the whole of Libya was presumably to all intents in axis hands. It was expected here that Field Marshal Erwin Romme would attempt to capitalize on his successes by striking swiftly at Egypt in the hope of dealing Ritchie's remaining forces a death blow before they could be regrouped.

said, "but the men stayed on duty until the order came to abandon ship."

"The battle that began soon after noon continued until dark, when the crew was ordered to abandon ship. King said. Megaphones were out of order, fire and smoke whirled and out of the chaos came the notes of a bugle that released the men from positions.

"Those who failed to hear it were told by others and it didn't take long for those who had not already given their lives in the first terrible ordeal to drop free of the stricken boat.

"The water was like glass and men floated upright in their capok life jackets. After every single man was off the captain jumped too and swam around with the rest of us." He related, "The burning ship lit up the night sky and did not sink until some time after all were safely out of danger."

Fine Chance

The gun which King helped man was starboard aft and he had a fine chance to watch the approaching enemy planes with their circles of red upon the wings. Asked if any Japanese airmen were picked up after being shot into the sea, he said "there weren't any to pick up. When they went down they were done for.

"The fellows on the rescue ship were sure swell," he remembered. "They gave us lots of hot coffee and cigarettes and opened up their lockers and bunks to us. It was pretty crowded while we were still at sea.

"The road home was a long one too," he admitted, "since a roundabout way was necessary." He was careful not to divulge anything that he thought should not be told and said, "there just isn't much more to tell."

King graduated from the Grants Pass high school, and soon after he joined the navy, went to San Diego for training. The Lexington was the first ship to which he was assigned.

PAY INCREASE PASSED
