

MRS. CARLETON W. HORNIBROOK (left), chats with Mrs. J. I. Beard as they find a sunny spot in the garden under one of the lovely trees.

MRS. ERNEST DOLPH LAMB, recently elected president of the Oregon Federation of Garden clubs, and Mrs. A. G. Proctor (right), named state secretary, were snapped by the photographer as they admired iris in the Hunt garden.

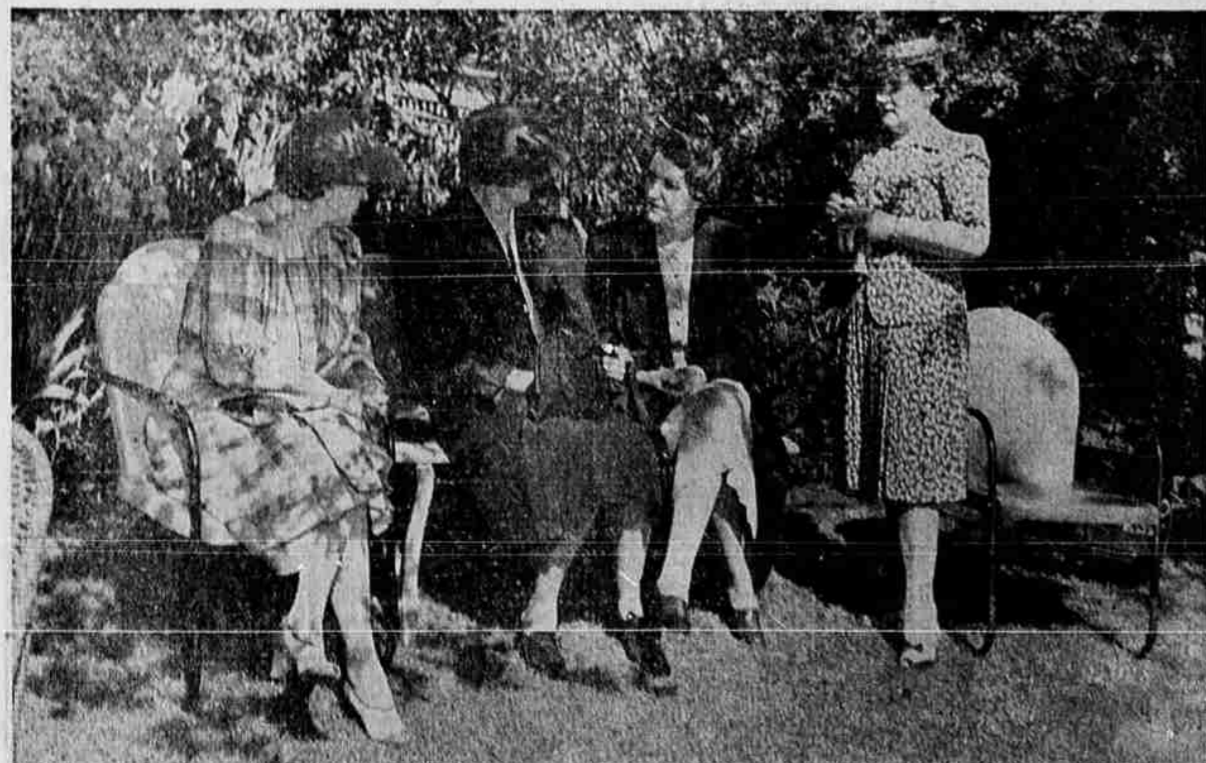

PICTURE OF A LADY taking a picture! Mrs. Robert P. Ellingson Sr., was delighted with the beautiful colors found in the iris and used her movie camera to advantage.

UNANIMOUSLY ELECTED as one of the most beautiful flowers in all the world is the stately iris, blooming now in virtually all gardens in Klamath Falls. There are probably more true iris lovers in this city than anywhere else in the state. Chill blasts of mountain spring, sudden vagaries of the growing season, snow or hot sun—despite all the iris seems to thrive here and bloom profusely. Against a bright blue June sky, and bracing itself against a strong sharp spring wind, this iris was caught in full beauty by the quick eye of the camera. Mrs. Warren Coe Hunt asked members and guests of the garden group to visit her iris garden last week.

HOSTESS AND GUEST. Mrs. Warren Coe Hunt, (right) shows Mrs. Stuart Hurd of Eugene the charm of "Lighthouse," a new iris in her garden.
