Ideas on Rubber

TODAY, we pass along two comments on the rubber drive which reached this desk from readers of this newspaper.

Mrs. S. J. Jones, a resident of the Weyerhaeuser mill district and mother of two boys in the service, told us that the sight of rubber mats in business house entrances on Main street excited her to great anger.

"My boys, and others in the service, are crying for help," she asserted. "This is war, whether these firms realize it or not. I feel they should turn in this rubber. These mats are not really necessary. I have hunted my premises from end to end, and have turned in rubber that is far more necessary to me than are these mats to those who are retaining them."

The other suggestion comes from Joe Reading, pharmacist.

He believes there are actually tons of rubber nailed on the wharves and private boat landings at the various lakes in the Klamath country. Some people, he said, have used many more old tires than is necessary for boat buffers. They could give most of these tires and still protect the boats.

Joe has something there. We saw a tire pulled out of Diamond lake recently, and the same thought occurred to us.

The time for getting this rubber into the war collection is growing short. If anything is to be done about it, it should be done immediately.

British Propaganda

BRITISH propaganda officials use good judgment in their decision not to send more lecturers to the United States and to cease attempts to "force Britain down the throats of the American people."

Americans react unfavorably to the kind of propaganda thus described by Brendan Bracken, minister of information, in a speech to the house of commons.

We know Americans who turn purple with rage when they hear a Britisher talk in the unmistakable British manner. Perhaps that is one reason why Mr. Bracken reported that British lecturers, sent to the United States, did more harm than good.

High-powered British propaganda is not necessary in the United States. Most Americans are convinced that the destiny of this nation in the war is linked with that of Britain. The best propaganda the British can possibly spread in America is proof they are upholding their end of the war effort. That proof will reach Americans through the regular news channels.

Century of Disgust

If you are disgusted with congress, the chances are you feel the way your father, grandfather and great grandfather felt in their day.

Take, for instance, the following editorial excerpt from the Philadelphia Public Ledger of March 25, 1836:

"The congressional news up to this date possesses not the slightest interest. Congress seems determined to fritter away its time, instead of rendering it profitable to the nation—shame on such tardy legislation."

This paragraph was selected from a copy of the Ledger of that date which belongs to W. F. Jinette, Merrill farmer.

But let us not be too discouraged to learn that people bitterly criticized congress 100 years ago and are still doing it. It must have occasionally redeemed and justified itself in the century, or it would surely have been abolished as an institution. Those who today look upon congress with disgust still have reason to hope for better things from it. They can help bring those better things about by their own actions in the voting booth.

Malin

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Sheldon and two sons, Gerald and Gene spent the Fourth of July holiday at Samoa, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Yaple. While on the coast they had their first experience at crab fishing and also saw a 70 ton whale brought into the whaling station, only one in the United States, located below Eureka.

The Malin Garden club will meet July 10 at the home of Mrs. Dick Hensel. Plans will be made for the annual club picnic. Meetings during the summer will be held on the second Friday of each month.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Toffel have moved into the home owned by Mrs. Harry Prather.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Payr have moved into their home recently remodeled for them on the Payr ranch northeast of Merrill.

Mrs. Hartman, mother of Mrs. Byron Johnson, is a guest in the Johnson home.

The Jolly Nine Pinochle club was entertained July 1 at the home of Mrs. Chester Stonecypher. High score went to Mrs. P. G. Wilson, and low to Mrs. John Reber. Mrs. Lester B. Schreiner took the traveling prize. Present for the evening were Mrs. Schreiner, Mrs. William Rajnus, Mrs. John Reber, Mrs. Jerry Rajnus, Mrs. James Ottoman, Mrs. P. G. Wilson, Mrs.

Everett Jones and Mrs. Frank Victorine.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harnoff, parents of Mrs. Floyd Harmon, who have been guests here for the last six months, have returned to their home in Malta, Montana.

Mr. and Mrs. Art Barton, who for several months have made their home here while the Malin Feed company plant was under construction, have returned to their home in Seattle. Barton was employed as chief engineer during construction.

Mrs. Halene Beimler and daughter Barbara Ellen have returned from San Bernardino, Calif., where Barbara Ellen spent the winter with an aunt, Mrs. Glen Fouch, while attending school.

STAMPS, TOO?

DALLAS, Tex., (AP)—Alfred Anderson twice wrote his Minneapolis draft board telling them of his change of address.

The next thing he knew he wound up in the Dallas jail for failure to keep his board posted concerning his whereabouts. His protests led to a search of the dead letter office where authorities found the letters — both mailed without stamps.

"Gosh," explained Anderson when released, "I thought because it was government business I didn't need to use any."

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, July 8—The main point behind fighting in Egypt is that both the British and axis are having difficulties in maintaining lines of supplies. Just before the final stage of Rommel's successful drive, Italians waylaid a British convoy on its way from Gibraltar to Alexandria. It was cut up so severely, it was never able to reach General Auchinleck, but was stopped at Malta where the supplies were needed much less than in Egypt.

Since the Mediterranean has become virtually a no man's sea, so far as the British are concerned, General Auchinleck's recently advanced reinforcements naturally had to come from other directions, nearby Syria, our own air base in Eritrea, and even India.

The German line is ten times shorter, but the British have superiority in the air. Their bombers, you may have noticed, have been hitting Bengazi day and night since their trouble started.

Thus, the fighting on both sides has been hindered to a substantial extent by the invisible factors behind the lines. The Germans, however, still hold a substantial advantage in this critical aspect of the campaign, because the British have been pushed back from their advance air bases.

Hope, but not optimism, is consequently being generally felt here.

FOOTBALL TACTICS
Emphatic interpretations of the news from the Russian front have never been possible. The nazis and the reds are engaged there in tactics comparable to American football.

The latest nazi hammering of the line between Kursk and Kharkov, several hundred miles north of where the real play was expected, has had many puzzling aspects, but seems subject to only one interpretation. The nazis apparently have been hammering the tackle and guard positions there in preparation for a run around the end where the play was expected in the first place.

The line north of Kharkov was not as strongly defended by the reds as their position around Rostov. The Germans therefore were able to hit it hard enough to break through and in fact, cause some withdrawal of troops from the southern front. Also these tactics served to protect them in the future from any northern flanking move, if they go forward with the Rostov drive, as expected.

Consequently, both this unexpected northern break through, and the expected capture of Sevastopol, apparently were only nazi preparations for a bigger drive to come in between these two points. At least that is the only interpretation which squares with the known facts. Future events will tell.

CAREFUL REDS
The Russians lately have permitted our army observers to get up a little closer to the front lines than formerly, but mostly in quiet sectors. No special military missions have been allowed to come in. Only our men on the ground have been allowed to go forward.

The Russians believe in running the war their own way. No Moscow interest in opening up a Siberian front has been reported here.

The house tax-makers already have changed their minds about one thing—joint taxation of husband and wife. The committee snipped that treasury provision out of the tax bill after first adopting it, supposedly due to the ardent workings of Speaker Rayburn who hails from Texas, a community property state. There has also been some talk in committee that the White House intervened, but this has in no wise been substantiated.

NORRIS MAY RUN
The grand old liberal of the senate, George Norris of Nebraska, decided several months ago he would not run for reelection, but he has since been told by President Roosevelt that it is "just as honorable for him to die in the senate as on the battlefield."

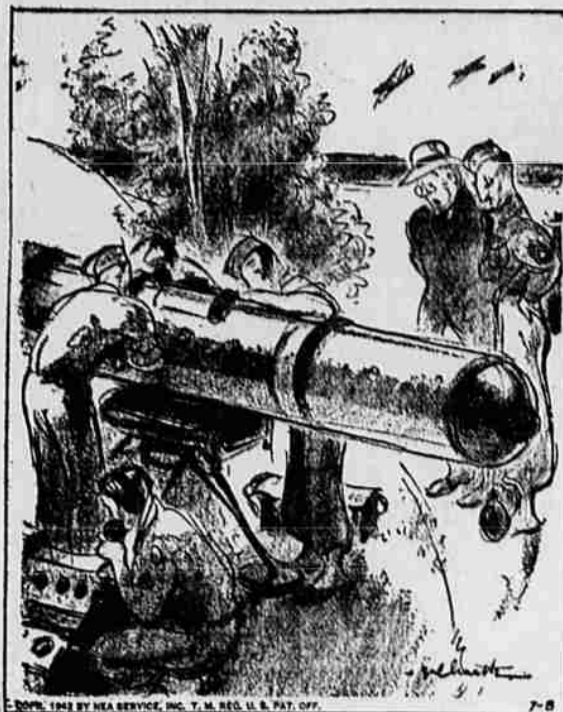

Not only from this but from other evidence, the politics assume Norris will probably announce as an independent after the August 11 primary. He did that before.

This time the president's entreaty might be strengthened by the fact that the favorite in the democratic primary race is Representative Harry Coffee who has not been strictly a new dealer.

CUT OFF

CONCORDIA, Kans., (AP)—A sewer digger laboriously cut out a foot-long section of tree root. It wasn't a root, it was a telephone cable, he discovered, as 50 telephones in the neighborhood went out of service.

Tulelake Pushes Toward USO Drive

TULELAKE—Tulelake's USO quota continues to grow toward the $870 mark with local businessmen boosting it by $250 in a recent canvass of the city. Rance Stover, local chairman, stated that several smaller donations have also been received in the past few days and that anyone in the community who is interested in assisting with the proposed program for recreation for the military guard at the Japanese center may leave cash at the Copco office.

When the amount of the quota has been subscribed, $1500 of Siskiyou county's $10,000 allotment will be turned over to the city to be used locally.

CREWS INSTALL INSULATION AT NEWELL CENTER

Interior walls and ceilings in quarters occupied by evacuees of Japanese descent are being insulated with sheetrock at the War Relocation Authority's Tulelake project.

Radio Day by Day

(Pacific War Time)
NEW YORK, July 8 (Wide World) — When it comes to broadcasting weather conditions even at baseball games, censorship regulations do not permit the barest hint of details. But the weather itself doesn't necessarily take heed.

For instance, in the MBS broadcast of the all-star game from New York, held up a half-hour or more by a thunderstorm, all the announcers said in explanation was "unavoidable delay." Yet, if the listeners kept his ear sharp he could hear plainly in the background the deep rumble of the thunder as picked up by the ball park microphone.

Dialing tonight: CBS—7:30, Drama "Life of Nellie James." MBS—5:15, Fight Against Inflation, Jesse Jones.

What to Expect Thursday: NBC—3:30 p. m., W. D. Fuller on "Wage Ceilings." MBS—1:30 p. m., Empire Track Race; 2:30, Quaker City Frivolities.

Tulelake-Newell Traffic Reported Nearly Normal

TULELAKE—No traffic violations or automobile accidents were recorded by the highway patrol force over the two-day weekend holiday, according to Highway Patrolman Lee. He stated that traffic is nearly normal between Tulelake and the Japanese reception center, with the exception of military police vehicles.

Only about 100 cars are operated by laborers still employed at the WRA project. Construction work at the project is expected to be completed by July 10.

If Drunk, Don't Sit in a Car

SALEM, July 8 (AP)—A drunk person sitting in an automobile, although he is not driving and is not creating a disturbance, is guilty of a law making it illegal to be drunk on a public highway, Attorney General I. H. Van Winkle ruled today in an opinion for C. C. Proebstel, deputy district attorney for Umatilla county.

If a person gets drunk in his own home and is taken in a car to a hospital for treatment, he also is guilty if officers catch him in a car.
