NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, July 12 — Some significant post-war planning to raise world wage rates already is being urged inside the government by Vice President Wallace's board of economic warfare, but not without encountering difficulty.

The Wallace group wants the state department to run into some of our war trade contracts with Latin American nations a provision which will start raising some wage levels in those nations. It would be a comparatively simple matter for this government to require that certain labor standards be met in any goods it purchases from foreign countries.

Some officials, however, doubt that this is the time to start world social reforming. They want to win the war first and then they think that they could look at what is left with a more objective and experienced viewpoint.

But the Wallace boys believe it is never too early to start reforming and are pressing their views onward.

A decision is likely within a week or two.

HAITIAN EXPERIMENT

The only very clearly social experimenting for the post-war world was done in the Haitian Development company financing by the Export-Import bank, and this was done long before the war started. The company was created under government auspices for the growing of sisal and rubber, and has been trying to boost basic Haitian wage averages of 20 cents a day by offering 25 to 50 per cent more.

Another modest experimental beginning of Mr. Wallace's plan for the post-war world is the Peruvian cotton deal. The way the deal is being worked out offers the first concrete evidence of how this government will go about curtailing world farm production, how much it is likely to cost, and the difficulties to be encountered.

Agriculture Secretary Wickard signed in April an agreement with the Peruvian government whereby two-thirds of its cotton crop (200,000 bales) will be bought by this government and put in storage. This government is to continue to take the same amount each year hereafter, at the annual cost of about $10,000,000, the crop to be stored in Peru.

It was done as a good neighbor gesture, but the government has used the action to try out an international crop curtailment idea.

We promised to pay the Peruvians a one-and-a-half per cent increase in price for every one per cent their acreage was curtailed. The scheme also worked the other way, proposing to cut the price an equal amount for every similar increase in acreage.

No one outside the agriculture department paid much attention to the matter until recently, when the American cotton market began worrying about that surplus.

Senator Bankhead and others of the cotton bloc then extracted a promise from Mr. Wallace that the crop would not be brought into the United States unless our own production was unable to satisfy war requirements. The post-war difficulty of foreign agriculture production coming into competition with our own was thus encountered at the outset.

SIDE GLANCES

"It took gas rationing and the tire shortage to bring it back, but the town must have looked about like this when our parents were young—and wouldn't they love it?"

As long as cotton senators exist, that cotton apparently will have to be sold by this government to some foreign consumers in some way whereby it will not compete with American cotton. That will be difficult, if not impossible.

The agriculturists here, however, have not let that prospect dismay them.

The Peruvian farm production system is a Spanish hacienda approximation of our own share-cropper condition. The boys here are already feasting their eyes hungrily on that subject, although it is not mentioned in the agreement.

RUSS ADVANTAGE

The Hitler break-through of the Russian lines caused no great alarm here, even after he was able to develop it. With such fire power as the Germans possess—the ability to mass insuperable offensive weapons at a striking point beyond precedent in all history—Hitler could be expected to break through at any time on such a long front.

But as such breaks develop, the issue levels itself down to two main considerations, weapons and fighting spirit, both about equally important. The Russians are short on weapons but even longer than the Germans on fighting spirit.

Consequently, the eyes of Washington have been focused with some apprehension but no despair on the dispatches from the front.

SUB SINKINGS

Isolated sinkings of single ships, recently reported along our Atlantic seaboard, does not mean that Nazi subs are merely picking up strays and avoiding convoys. Frequently they can get into a convoy for one blow, but then have to withdraw immediately to escape detection. Consequently lone sinkings from convoys are common.

Let the Experts Tell You If It's Explosive or Not

Objects dropped from planes might be of an explosive nature and persons finding them would do well to notify civilian defense headquarters rather than run the risk of a personal investigation, according to Earl Reynolds, defense coordinator.

The defense setup provides for a bomb reconnaissance group which is trained to recognize and handle all types of bombs and explosives. They may be reached by calling 5193 or the police department.

Telling The Editor

Letters printed here must not be more than 200 words in length, must be written legibly on ONE SIDE of the paper only, and must be signed. Contributions following these rules, are warmly welcome.

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. (To the Editor)—Those who have voiced objections to the large bond quota for our country, might well ponder the following and swallow their words.

Klamath is an exceptionally rich county; so rich, in fact, that every blade of grass has a green back, every bird a bill, every chimney a draft. The women wash with Gold Dust, every horse has a check, every ditch and creek has two banks. Even our streets are flushed and the lawns get a rake-off. Every cloud has a silver lining and every flower, a scent. When we put a $5 bill in our pocket, we double it and when we take it out we find it in creases.

These are just a few of the reasons why Klamath Falls is a good place to live in!

MRS. Z. W. DIXON.

AMBULANCE CORPS TAKES FIRST JOB

Members of the Klamath unit of the Oregon Women's Ambulance Corps who are staffing the Salvation Army-sponsored ambulance, had their first call for service Sunday night.

They drove to the Klamath county infirmary, where they picked up Gilbert A. Lien, 50, and brought him in to the train which was to take him to the Veterans' hospital in Portland, with Ethel Brown as his attendant.

Lien was the victim of a shooting accident about a year ago in which a part of the bone in his upper leg was shot away. Until recently he had been in Klamath Valley hospital with his leg in a cast.

Those manning the ambulance said it was a tough assignment for a "first," since the man was 6 feet 2 inches tall, weighed 310 pounds including the cast, and the stretcher had to be gotten onto the train through a window. OWAC members participating in the assignment were Kathleen Livingston, Grace Rhoads, Ella Mullin and Gladys Lofdash.

Lien was moved to the Veterans' hospital through efforts of the FVW auxiliary.

Collisions Fatal To Six in State Over Weekend

By The Associated Press

Highway collisions killed six persons in Oregon last weekend.

Three died near Pendleton in the collision of an automobile and a train Saturday. They were Mr. and Mrs. Vern Barnhart, Washougal, Wash., and their three-year-old son.

A head-on collision near Portland killed two others, John M. Alton, 25, and Bernard Collier, 23, both Portland. Four others in the car which Alton was driving also were injured, none seriously. The lone occupant of the other machine was unhurt.

Ernest Moot Sr., 67, succumbed at Silverton yesterday to injuries suffered in an automobile accident Saturday night.

You're Right—It Was Colder

If you thought you were cold Saturday, it wasn't your imagination. It's right there in the books, minimum 40 degrees, coldest July day since 1935.

And Sunday wasn't much better. The thermometer dropped to 43 degrees, but at least it had a clouded sky as an excuse, whereas Saturday was perfectly clear, giving the sun every opportunity to do its stuff. Its lack of cooperation made even the weather man feel apologetic.

Miner, Suspected Slayer Of Three, Dies in Tunnel

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, July 13 (AP)—Answering demands for his surrender with gunfire, Pete Yabacavin, 60, a miner, suspected of the slaying of three persons, was suffocated by smoke from a fire lighted to drive him from a mine tunnel 12 miles from here early yesterday.

Traced to the mine entrance by a federal bureau of investigation agent and a deputy United States marshal, Yabacavin, believed to be the man who killed Milo Saulich, 65, his 55-

"Helpless" Little Fawns Should Be Left in Woods

There is nothing more helpless looking than a little spotted fawn apparently deserted in the woods, but those finding them should resist the temptation to bring them in, according to E. W. Tichenor, state police sergeant.

He pointed out that the chances are the mother is nearby but cautiously keeping out of sight. Once a fawn has been handled, however, the mother will refuse to take it back and then the little deer is really in for serious trouble.

When they are brought in and turned over to authorities it creates a problem as persons are not allowed to keep them as pets without a permit from the game commissioner, Tichenor said.

E. A. Lowe, 34, Dies Suddenly In Lebanon, Ore.

E. A. Lowe, 34, of Lebanon, Ore., passed away suddenly last Friday night of a heart attack, according to word received here. Lowe is well known in Klamath Falls, and is a cousin of Earl Whitlock and a brother-in-law of Carl Michelson.

Lowe's father, who operated a funeral home in Lebanon, died of heart attack two years ago and Lowe had been carrying on the business since that time.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitlock left Sunday morning for Lebanon where they will remain for several days. Arrangements for the funeral have not been made known.

WHAT NO CRACKER BARREL?

WILSON, N. C., (AP) — When the tailor in whose shop they used to hang about went out of business, the hangers-on formed a "Squatters club" and rented the building for the express purpose of sitting around and "shooting the bull."

ROUGHER THAN THE PAW METHOD

EUGENE, Ore., (AP) — A young housewife, doing the family washing, noticed a small mound in the clothes kept buckling the blades of the electric washer.

After repeated efforts with a stick failed to level the mound she decided the machine was too full, and started to remove some of the clothes.

A bruised and water-soaked kitten emerged from one of the garments.
