Defense Training Program Changed To War Production

The national defense training program at KUHS has been changed to the war production training program because of conflicts caused by the similarity with names of other programs under the national defense heading, it was announced today.

The Willamette Iron and Steel company of Portland contacted the welding enrollees this week at the war production training school and are taking 19 men into their plant as welders. These men will go to work at the rate of $1.20 per hour and attend the company school three nights a week, where they will receive instruction on pipe welding. At the completion of this training, they will be ready to pass tests which come up to navy requirements and specifications.

We shall emerge from this war with new skills, with new strength, with a new unity—may I say, in all reverence, with a new national soul.—Donald Nelson, chairman WFB.

Feminine Mechanics Keep The Men on Their Toes

PAINE FIELD, Wash., July 16 (AP)—Feminine mechanics have boosted the morale in the shops of this army air base, an officer reported Wednesday, and it's not a lipstick and powder puff boost, either.

Their presence has put the men on their toes—and not just to get a glimpse of a cutie on the other side of a fuselage. "The girls are very serious," commented Lieut. Edgar K. Hillman, base sub-depot engineering officer, "and as far as their training has gone they are just as good as the men. The girls are actually neater, and in some of the work they are more dexterous than the men."

"What is more, the minute they showed up in the shops the boys had to set on their toes. Our morale was always good here, but it is better than ever now. The girls want to prove they are just as good as men, and the men want to keep the edge on them. That's a perfect set-up for production."

"I wouldn't trade this job for anything in the world," commented blonde Hazel Brandt, 19, of Eugene, Ore. "They make us work, but they treat us just grand."

She explained that she got her introduction to machine work at home where "sometimes I had to repair our milking machinery, and there were always little mechanical jobs to do."

But with a War on, and women needed for man-sized jobs, there just wasn't any chance of keeping her down on the farm.

Nutrition Group Reviews Program

Reports of progress made by the various sub-committees were made and the whole nutrition program in Klamath county reviewed. From the meeting came helpful suggestions for carrying on the program, whose primary purpose is to aid in the war effort.

Total of 1931 Americans Are Jap Prisoners

WASHINGTON, July 16 (AP)—The war department named Wednesday 156 American civilians interned by Japanese, bringing to 1931 the total of interned civilians and prisoners of war whose names have been supplied by the Japanese government through the International Red Cross.

All in today's list were seized at Wake Island and are held at Shanghai. In announcing their names, the department specified that they were for local publication only by newspapers or radio stations normally serving the areas in which the individuals lived.

The list included persons from 24 states and Hawaii.

HOME SWEET HOME
BELZONI, Miss., (AP)—Sergt. Joseph Watson, with the American troops in Ireland, thinks it's a small world after all.

Writing home to his wife, he reported the first American canteen recently served the first American cigarettes and soft drinks he'd had in three months.

"When I finished drinking, I turned up the bottle, and there was 'Belzoni, Miss.' stamped on the bottom," he wrote.
