Our Home Town

National "Greatness"
 By EARL WHITLOCK
 Each year, at hundreds of colleges, thousands of words are poured forth by faculty leaders in farewell addresses to student bodies. Much of this verbiage is trite or inane. But occasionally a message of supreme import comes to light. Such a message was given this spring at Colby whose president put a sure finger on a bad fault in our national thinking, in these words:

"What made America great was not its extensive material resources. They had been here ever since the third day of creation though for age upon age, America was a trackless waste. What made America great was the CHARACTER of the people. But who defines America's 'greatness' today in terms of character?"

"Today we are thinking of progress in terms of individual comfort! How many gadgets in the kitchen? How much time mother has to play bridge? How few steps does father have to take to get to the office? How close to the house is the garage and do the doors open automatically? Our highest ideals are represented by two chickens in every pot, two cars in every garage, two caddies for every golf player, two hair-dos every week and two-colored paint for every toe-nail."

"Comfort—with its glamour, its seduction, its attraction and its insidious infiltration is the fifth column of our civilization." Rest in Memory Garden.

Next Monday Mr. Whitlock of the Earl Whitlock Funeral home will comment on "Beware the Bike."
