Welcome, Realtors

THE men and women who sell the earth are visitors in Klamath Falls for remainder of this week. They are here for the eighth annual convention of the Oregon Association of Real Estate Boards, an event that has had local realtors busy with preparations for many months. From the appearance of the program, we judge they have done an outstanding job.

Oregon realtors have something special to crow about this year. David B. Simpson, Portland, is president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, and in his honor, the Oregon meeting has been called the David B. Simpson convention. Mr. Simpson is making civic club addresses while here, and will address the convention banquet Saturday night.

In their convention discussions, the real estate people will not only talk about things that have to do with making a better living for themselves, but they will go frequently into matters that have to do with the general public welfare, such as taxes and property values. When these matters become public issues, one can depend upon the real estate men for sound contributions to thought and discussion. Realtors have been particularly active in resistance to unnecessary public indebtedness. In this effort, we see eye to eye with them.

So it is to be expected that the eighth annual convention of the Oregon Association of Real Estate Boards will benefit general public policy as well as the real estate business.

To these good citizens, gathered in this city for the first time, we voice a welcome we know is felt by all the hospitable people of Klamath Falls.

Rumors Refuted

CAPTAIN WILLIAM PATTERSON, commander of the military guard at the Tulelake war relocation center, has found it advisable to refute publicly certain unfounded rumors concerning alleged attempts at escape from the project properties.

The true story—that residents of the Newell project are cooperating wholeheartedly and there have been only two harmless incidents concerning attempts to leave the premises—has been told publicly on a number of occasions, and those who persist in spreading these wild tales are committing an unpatriotic and rash act.

For certain sound reasons (for the sake of American prisoners in other countries, for one thing) the sympathetic treatment of evacuees in the WRA projects must be widely realized by the public. Those who spread completely unfounded rumors which hint at a false picture of life in the settlement are therefore doing a definite harm that can have serious ramifications.

Norway's Democratic King

(Redding, Calif., Record-Searchlight)

BRAVE little Norway's democracy and love of freedom are real and intense, and they are nowhere better exemplified than in her king, Haakon VII, who celebrated his 70th birthday yesterday (August 3).

King Haakon was drafted to be a Norwegian 37 years ago. He was Prince Carl of Denmark, second son of the then crown prince who later became King Frederick VIII.

When Norway separated amicably from Sweden in 1905, her throne, vacant for more than 600 years, was first offered to a Swedish prince, who declined; then to Prince Carl.

A progressive, democratic man, Prince Carl replied that he would take the throne only if the people of Norway really wanted him. He insisted on a plebiscite, which voted for a monarchy 259,963 to 69,264. He then took the name of Haakon VII.

It is no wonder, with that background, that Norwegians revere their king. To his honor and to the honor of Norway have been added the persevering resistance of king and people to the Nazi invaders. Haakon VII has continued to "rule" from London and has refused in any way to compromise with the Germans.

Under Haakon's leadership, Norway has lived in peace and has prospered. Norway's democracy and ideals of freedom extended to her relations with other nations, and she never sought to wrest territory or favors from others by force of arms. She was a neutral and a decent citizen of the world when Hitler moved in. Norway, perhaps more than any nation on earth, deserves her freedom, and the help of the rest of the world in regaining it.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6—"Dear Mr. Mallon:

"My work brings me in contact with many executives, attorneys and other people, including elevator operators and janitors.

"It has been my ambition to get these people set straight as to the confidence and truthfulness being expressed by you and your fellow columnists.

"When I read these various columns, I have confidence in you and your fellow columnists' opinions. Upon being asked to express my feelings on certain subjects, I often times keep some of your ideas in the back of my head.

"However, many of my fellow associates make harsh statements which, at this time show much dissatisfaction with the way many in Washington are doing things.

"They deem the columnists as being told what to write, and say you just write because you are paid to. Most of them have no respect for the American press at this time, and accuse the Board of Censors of misinforming the people.

"Certainly something could be done in defense of our reliable columnists and the American press. You alone could clear this situation up in time by writing an article in defense."

(Signed) CHARLES F. LITZ,
"Wilmington, Delaware."

Dear Mr. Litz:

The syndicated columnists are paid a little by each paper, not a lot by one newspaper or even a group. I think the smallest number of client newspapers publishing any of the national columnists is about sixty. About 250 are publishing my column and these represent every shade of international, economic and political opinion.

I, too, have run into the same criticism which you have encountered.

A letter from a Colorado reader the other day cuffed me around for writing the editorial viewpoint of his home town paper there which publishes my column. I have never had the pleasure of seeing the paper.

Another correspondent accused me of trying to get all the democrats kicked out of congress because I wrote the facts about congress delaying the payment to dependent women and children of our fighting men for five months until the day before the coming congressional election.

But that same day I received a request from a Democratic Congressional candidate in West Virginia, asking permission to reprint the very same article for his democratic purposes.

I find it generally evens up that way. The great majority of people can easily see from what a columnist writes, what he is trying to do. A man betrays himself more completely through his writings than by any other means.

I have had some suspicions in times past that some new writers were trying to present a subsidized viewpoint or were "being told what to write," as you put it, either by the government or by some invisible parties, but they did not last very long.

It takes an unusual personality to write convincingly and interestingly about something which he himself does not believe. If a writer, himself, does not believe what he is writing, he will never make many others believe it, and his writings are therefore unimportant.

You can see from the manner in which the columnists work and are paid that they could not attempt to present the editorial judgment of their papers. It is physically impossible to obtain or read that many papers.

The government cannot be said to control more than a handful, if any, newspapers. Therefore, it cannot pay columnists in anything except personal favors, and few successful journalists here want favors that bad. They generally want to sell more newspapers and make more money.

The idea that the government tells us what to write and pays for it therefore cannot be generally true. No columnist that I know of, submits his articles to the censors. We know what are military secrets and avoid their use.

The fact that this situation exists in the newspaper business is a great tribute to the American press, the greatest perhaps. In itself, it offers incontrovertible proof of the fairness and impartiality of the press as a whole.

Here you have hundreds of

STOCK MARKET STEADY; GAINS LOSSES SPLIT

By VICTOR EUBANK

NEW YORK, Aug. 6 (AP)—The bullish angle of today's stock market, as in many recent sessions, was that bad war news touched off no important liquidation and, on the other hand, enough investment demand remained to keep favored issues on solid ground.

Trends still were indefinite in the closing hour, with minor fractional gains and losses pretty evenly divided. Numerous issues held at Wednesday's final levels. Transfers were around 250,000 shares.

Bethlehem Steel did not open until after 2 p. m. It was up a shade.

Stocks ahead at one time or another included American Telephone, Southern Railway, Texas Co., U. S. Steel, General Motors, U. S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward, International Harvester, Boeing and Douglas Aircraft.

Among occasional losers were Du Pont, Standard Oil (N.J.), Anaconda, Sears Roebuck, Owens-Illinois, Johns-Manville, American Can, Westinghouse and Goodrich.

Bonds were fairly steady.

BOSTON WOOL

BOSTON, Aug. 6 (AP-USA)—Trading in the Boston wool market was spotty. Sales of graded territory fine staple wools were reported at a clean price range of $1.18 to $1.20. Some sales were made of small lots at about ceiling prices. A little trading was done in territory 1 wool at $1.00 clean basis. Fleece and Texas wools were quiet.

HOW TO WIN A WAR

SEATTLE, (AP)—Ward Van Voris, 11, and his brother Milo, 9, learned Uncle Sam needed money to beat the Axis.

They sold Pat, their Shetland pony pal for 34 years, for $110—and bought war bonds.

WHEAT RECOVERS FROM EARLY LOWS

CHICAGO, Aug. 6 (AP)—Rallying two cents from early lows, the wheat market today staged a strong recovery. Most traders attributed it to a technical reaction as a result of drying up of selling orders followed by purchasing to cover previous short sales.

Buying came mostly from professional traders. Some mill and flour trade was reported, however, with dealers noting that open market prices are far below government loan rates, which is tending to hold new wheat marketing to comparatively small proportions. Indications that the government may attempt to reduce the national acreage next season also attracted attention.

Wheat closed 1-11 higher than yesterday, September $1.17 1/2, December $1.20 1/2; corn 1-1 higher, September 87 1/2, December 90 1/2; oats 1-1 up; soybeans 1-1 higher; rye 1-1 higher.
