A Great Farm Year

KLAMATH basin agriculture, which has marked up many an achievement in the past 20 years, is outdoing itself in this war year when there is an unprecedented demand for the foodstuffs from our crop land and our ranges.

Farmers of the Klamath country declared their intentions some months ago to produce substantial increases over previous years. They planned carefully, they have worked hard, and present indications point to a record agricultural year.

In this program, the weather is playing its part. Seldom has there been a summer of more even weather conditions than those prevailing in this summer season of 1942. The result is manifest to anyone driving along rural highways. Never have mid-summer conditions of crops been better than this year.

The weather has presented no problems, but the manpower shortage has been a matter of serious concern. But by and large, the farmers are making it through this difficulty. What will happen in the harvest season is still a matter of conjecture, but we have hopes that somehow, the problem will be solved.

Unpleasant things can happen, of course. But right now, everything points to a wonderful year for Klamath agriculture and a distinct contribution from this area to the production of food for defense. Never have we had more reason for pride and gratification over achievements of our agricultural industry.

Bootlegging Hit

THE city made good Monday night on its promise to help stamp out taxicab bootlegging here. Councilmen unanimously voted to revoke the license of a cab driven by a man who had sold liquor unlawfully, making use for the first time of a provision in a 1941 ordinance.

As was brought out Monday night, this policy unquestionably presents a difficult problem to the taxicab operators of Klamath Falls. They find themselves penalized for acts of their drivers. And yet the drivers are agents of the operators, their taxicabs implement the unlawful dealings, and the city, therefore, finds it necessary to place the responsibility upon the operators so far as licensing is concerned. The courts will deal with the individual violators.

The operators, in their efforts to prevent the use of their taxicab business for unlawful dealings, should be helped by the publicized evidence of the city's firm stand against taxicab bootlegging. It shows that the operators, when they warn their employees that there must be no monkey-business in liquor, mean what they say, and are acting in accordance with a definitely established public policy.

There is no place for the bootlegger here. The state liquor store is operating, and all lawful purchasers can buy liquor there.

Tax Rate Analysis

AN analysis of the Klamath Falls tax rate for the coming year, which will be higher than the 1940-41 rate, shows that city and school costs are responsible for the gain. State and county tax charges showed a substantial decrease; otherwise, the increase for the year would have been much more serious than it is.

Here are the various items that make up the combined rate for Klamath Falls taxpayers:

	1942-43	1940-41
State and County	19.5	23.3
Klamath Falls	30.4	27.9
Elementary Schools	6.2	5.8
High Schools	18.0	15.3
	74.1	72.3

Peter McEntire Injured in Idaho Accident

Peter J. McEntire, Klamath Falls, is in a hospital at Boise, Ida., with a broken back as a result of an accident near Jerome, Ida., on July 28, according to word received here.

A small coach car driven by McEntire collided with a tanker owned by the Idaho Refining Company. The tanker struck the McEntire car from the rear, carrying it down the road 138 feet.

McEntire's address is the St. Adolphus hospital, Boise.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10—

Racial feeling — an always bitter, stupid, suicidal guide for political action — seems now to have emerged as a root cause of the unintelligible positions of the Indian politicians. Both Nehru and Gandhi have rather openly suggested this in their recent statements.

American observers, returning from India recently, have complained they could not understand the insensibility of Nehru and Gandhi for the cause of world freedom when they wanted their own.

Independence for India is possible, only if the Anglo-American world cause wins. Otherwise, such a defenseless nation would naturally pass under the dominance of its nearest axis neighbor, in this case Japan.

Obviously then, some inspiration, other than a desire for freedom, must have made the Indian leaders reject the full promises of independence from the British in favor of a policy which would bring them under Japanese control, if fulfilled.

The statements of Nehru and Gandhi finally complaining against racial discrimination, show what that inspiration was.

For a parallel you must recall British experience in adjoining Burma. There many Burmese foolishly chose to fight with the yellow hordes from Japan and delivered themselves enthusiastically into the Nipponese noose. Such a course, frenzied in its hatred, naturally does not make sense from any standpoint.

This is not a racial war, China and the Filipinos are on our side, or rather we are on theirs. The Indian politicians, and the Burmese, will realize their mistake when we win this war, although it may be late then.

Meanwhile, it makes the Indian situation dangerous.

LINDBERGH CHALLENGED
A critical reader has challenged my inclusion of Lindbergh, along with Doolittle and Admiral Byrd, as types of cool men of scientific action needed in the forefront of our war effort.

"I can go along with your mention of Doolittle and possibly Byrd, but Lindbergh is a great disappointment to most Americans and has done more to create dissension than most people," he writes.

Lindbergh is one of the worst politicians who ever floated a political blimp — and one of the greatest aviation technicians this nation has produced. Like most other men who are great on one subject, he is truly a disappointment outside his field.

But we do not need politicians to win this war. That is one class for which no manpower draft is necessary, and one in which our prevailing surplus obviates the necessity of priorities.

I would not care what Lindbergh's beliefs were before the war, if he could help win it. I would put him where he could do the most damage to Hitler and the Japs.

But, incidentally, I did not say Lindbergh as a person was indispensable to our war effort. I said we should get all the men of such a type who can do things, the men who think ahead of the crowd in their field, the ingenious, alert and daring technicians on the army and navy reserve lists or on the sidelines in the business fields for political reasons or others — let pre-war by-gones be by-gones — and put these men into positions where their special aptitudes can be used to the utmost to win this war.

TWEEDLE-DUM AND TWEEDLE-DEE

The army and navy have informed congress it should not pass the Rankin bill allowing dependents of fighting men to get their living allowances (due since June 1) now instead of November 1, the day before the congressional election. Bookkeeping is holding them up and if payments were made as cases are completed, overseas men would be discriminated against, they said.

Thus Tweedle-Dum informs Tweedle-Dee they were both right in the first place — that the day before the election is the only time to pay in one lump sum the five months arrears due all wives and children of service men. They plead "discrimination" and "bookkeeping" for failing to provide authorized food for persons presumed to need it for five months, thus indicating they need some new bookkeepers.

I have a feeling that if August 15 happened to be election day, the war department, navy and the congress would suddenly start thinking about how these wives and children are going to live without the living allowances now overdue. In that case, I suspect the bookkeeping would be done faster.

If it is not done faster and the payment date of November 1 is kept, a lot of hungry wives and

Large-Scale Program Gets Underway at Bly

BLY—Resembling the ancient pyramids, 12 immense mounds of rock, three in each of four stock piles, represent the maintenance supply of crushed rock available for the repair and conservation of the state highway in this area. It has been several years since such a large scale operation has been carried on in the community, and it is said that this reserve will probably last three or four years.

The chief repair job will be on the part of the highway from the truck scales to the Mark Matthews property at Shady Rest.

This rock includes several sizes and types used for different kinds of road improvement and construction; 5,500 yards of 3 to 1; 3,220 yards of 1 to 1; and 1,480 yards of 1 to 0 sizes were crushed in the first contract but later 5000 of 1 and 1/2 size was ordered to be piled at the camp site. These piles are all fenced, as is the pit, for safety and preservation.

The plant set up at Bly is said to be one of the largest in the state. A 220-horse power diesel produced the power for operation of the crusher. Seven trucks and a steam shovel comprised the rest of the equipment, with a complete blackiron soldiers and sailors will have no reason to feel grateful to congressmen for having provided the allowances — at least not grateful enough to vote for their re-election.

From the Klamath News August 11, 1932

R. C. Groesbeck, president of the chamber of commerce, warned today that nothing should be permitted to prevent early construction of the West-Klamath Falls highway. He so told a group which has entered into a discussion of various routes for the road.

Light frosts occurred this morning in various parts of the basin.

The Klamath irrigation district today protested of the operation and maintenance costs submitted by the reclamation bureau.

NEARBY HUNTING AREAS STILL OPEN

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 11 (AP)—Governor Culbert L. Olson today signed the order closing immediately all of the districts in northern California which are now open to deer hunting as requested by Western Defense Commander J. L. DeWitt.

The order does not affect those districts in which the deer season does not open until September 15 but it was expected further action might be taken prior to that date so that hunting would be restricted or prohibited there also.

It also was expected that limitations may be imposed later upon other types of hunting such as doves, ducks and pheasants but as yet the military authorities have not indicated their wishes in this regard and today's order is limited to "mammals" which means, in this case, the deer family.

Previously the deer hunting districts in southern California were closed at the instance of the defense command as a precautionary measure against forest and grazing land fires.

The districts specifically closed today are Nos. 11, 2, 21, 24, 25 and 3. They cut across county lines in many instances but the territory included is roughly Humboldt, Sonoma, Napa, Solano, Marin, Lake, Mendocino, Glenn and Monterey.

The California closure has not affected, as yet, the nearby hunting areas in Modoc and Siskiyou counties. The deer hunting season opened there last year after September 15, and apparently those are the areas on which later action is to be decided, local sportsmen said.

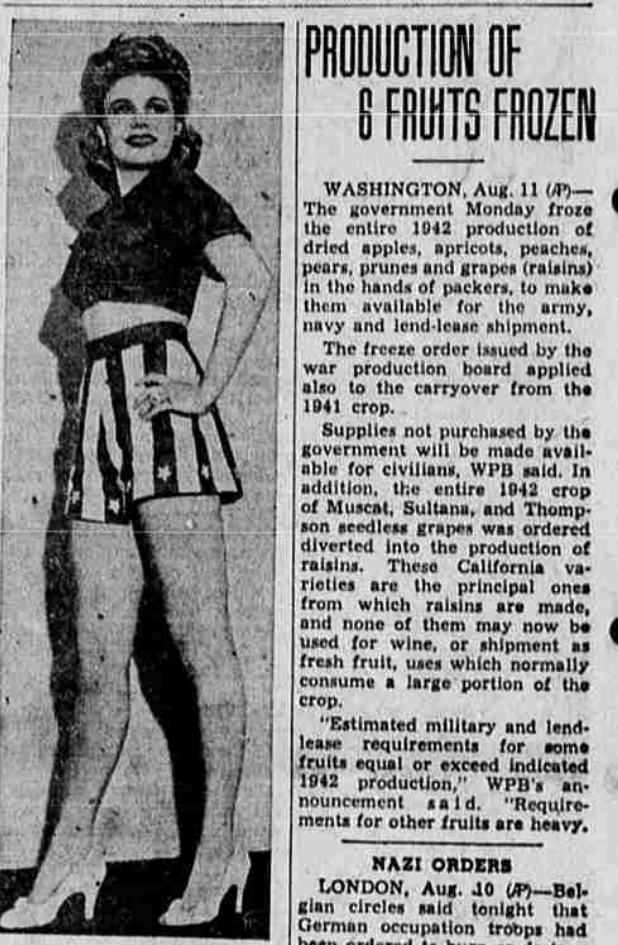

I do not relish the job of throwing cold water on anyone's enthusiasm for an immediate large-scale invasion of the European continent. But the question, it seems to me, cannot be decided on the basis of emotion and political pressure. It must be judged in the light of strategic realities.—Maj. Alexander de Seversky, aviation expert.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11 (Wide World)—Lieut. Commander Mildred H. McAfee of the WAVES, strained alphabetical soup meaning women appointed for voluntary emergency service, will make one of radio's leading guest appearances of the week during the CBS "woman-power" program next Sunday morning. She will discuss the naval auxiliary's plans for its training school at Smith college, Northampton, Mass.

From Vergennes, Vt., in the heart of the "Northwest Passage" country, will come a special BLU broadcast next Tuesday, August 18, dealing with changes in a "typical" small American city because of the war. Vergennes, which claims it is the smallest city in the United States, has made a broadcast a community proposition.

What to expect tomorrow (Wednesday): BLU—noon, Hambletonian stakes.

PRODUCTION OF 6 FRUITS FROZEN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11 (AP)—The government Monday froze the entire 1942 production of dried apples, apricots, peaches, pears, prunes and grapes (raisins) in the hands of packers, to make them available for the army, navy and lend-lease shipment.

The freeze order issued by the war production board applied also to the carryover from the 1941 crop.

Supplies not purchased by the government will be made available for civilians, WPB said. In addition, the entire 1942 crop of Muscat, Sultan, and Thompson seedless grapes was ordered diverted into the production of raisins. These California varieties are the principal ones from which raisins are made, and none of them may now be used for wine, or shipment as fresh fruit, uses which normally consume a large portion of the crop.

"Estimated military and lend-lease requirements for some fruits equal or exceed indicated 1942 production," WPB's announcement said. "Requirements for other fruits are heavy."
