Defense Calendar—The fourth session of the civilian defense training program has been postponed until Sept. 10. A new film on fire defense is being prepared and will be shown on that date. The gas defense films which failed to arrive for the Aug. 11 meeting will also be shown at that time.

Clubs to Cooperate—All women's organizations in the Klamath area were asked Monday to send to Mrs. Robert Thompson, 531 Pacific Terrace, the name of their organization, president and secretary, and mailing address. A state-wide list of women's clubs is being compiled, Mrs. Thompson said, at the request of Mrs. Sallie Orr-Dunbar to cooperate in the sale of war stamps and bonds.

Enlist in Navy—William Francis Falvey and James Randall Pope, both of Merrill, enlisted in the naval service and were sworn in on Aug. 15 at Portland. They enlisted in Class V-1 of the naval reserve and will continue their education at Oregon State college, where they are enrolled as sophomores. F. R. Duncan, chief gunner's mate in charge of the local naval recruiting station, reports a decided increase of interest among men who are entering college this year as freshmen, as well as those desirous of continuing their college education under the navy plan of enlistment in either Class V-1 or V-7.

Returns—Mrs. A. J. Kroenert has just returned from a vacation spent visiting relatives in Sacramento, San Jose, and Pacific Grove, Calif. While in Sacramento, she spent a weekend with the Lewis Bradfords, former residents of Klamath Falls who now make their home in the south.

Return—Mr. and Mrs. Harry Isensee of 1919 Erie street, have returned from their vacation. While north, they visited Isensee's mother at Longview, Wash. Mrs. Isensee will return to her work after an illness of six weeks; she is manager of Katherine's Beauty salon.

Producer—Lynn R. Roycroft, Klamath Falls representative for the Perry H. Walbridge general agency, is named as the second highest producer for the Oregon Mutual Life Insurance company for the month of July, according to word received here.

Doctor at Lake—Dr. and Mrs. Gordon Ledingham and children Janet and Gordon will spend the last two weeks in August at Lake o' the Woods.

Goes North—Mr. and Mrs. Don Drury are in Seattle on a vacation trip.

Business Rescues Washington

By EARL WHITLOCK

As we get deeper into this war, we begin to realize what a whale of a debt we owe and shall continue to owe to our Business Men.

You'll note that it isn't the politicians who are really getting things done. It's the business executives who have come up in the world from bed rock jobs. In the tough give and take of competitive business, they have learned those lessons in efficiency which are to save the nation. Any list of men who occupy key spots in the war effort consists almost wholly of business men—not career men nor theorists nor politicians, but hard-headed, corner-cutting, go-getting, practical guys who have the habit of accomplishments—and quickly.

For the last decade, the darlings of the theoretical schools have been tossing rocks at the business men. But when we need action, when excuses won't do and only results count, then the SOS goes out for them. And they drop their own high-salaried jobs, take comparative chicken-feed government pay and proceed to fill production aims which our ill-wishers have called "fantastic" and "impossible."

"Come to Memory Garden these warm August days." Next Monday Mr. Whitlock of the Earl Whitlock Funeral Home will comment on Bereavement Is Never "Expected."

WALDRIP PLACES IN TRACTOR CONTEST

William Waldrip of Malin placed third in a tractor plowing contest held near Eugene recently by the National Farm Youth foundation.

First place in the contest went to W. V. Swezey, Springfield, and second to Henry Pfennig, Salem.

Waldrip received $100 in war bonds.

Competitors were judged on straightness of opening furrows; neatness of back furrows; evenness of entering and leaving land at headland furrow; keeping furrow straight at each end of furrow, and other features.

All work was handled with identical equipment including a Ford tractor and two-bottom 14-inch Ferguson plow.

Finals in the contest were slated for Portland this week.

War Workers Live In Chicken Coops As Housing Shrinks

cities the federal housing authority was building new units, while local housing experts cried for more. Most industrial areas predicted an increase in factory rolls, usually exceeding the announced FHA development.

Landlords complained against rent ceilings. Tenants complained against high rentals, crowding, unsanitary conditions. Some had no houses to live in. Portland reported a family of nine living in a makeshift home built of berry boxes. The more crowded cities up and down the coast had cases of families living in their automobiles and utilizing service station facilities for their toiletaries.

Lower priced hotels were full, some with three and four beds to a room. In metropolitan Oakland there was a move among some hotels for authorization to put beds in corridors.

Seattle reported many mid-westerners who came there for war work went home again when they found no place to live. Other cities echoed this. City Commissioner William A. Bowes of Portland directed a change in the city zoning ordinance to permit converting private garages, vacant stores and offices into living quarters.

ELKS ATTEND PICNIC NEAR FORT KLAMATH

Several hundred Klamath Elks and their families attended the annual Elks picnic at the gravel pit near Fort Klamath Sunday.

The day was featured by a short sports program and a big feed arranged by Jack Gove and a lodge committee. Swimming and horseback riding were diversions.

A softball game between Malin and Klamath Falls ended in a 7-7 tie.

Only accident of the day occurred during the game when Clayton Reber, son of County Commissioner and Mrs. John Reber, was struck in the face by a thrown bat. He was treated by Dr. A. A. Soule, who attended the picnic.

Aircraft Spotters Honored at Eugene

EUGENE, Aug. 17 (AP)—Brig. Gen. W. E. Kepner, commander of the IV fighter command, characterized 3000 aircraft spotters and filter center workers as soldiers here last night.

"You are the eyes of America. You have released for active combat hundreds of thousands of men," he told workers at a special conference in their honor.

SURPRISE
SPOKANE (AP)—The sign over a door in the medical department of the induction center was highly efficient until a recruit, blind in one eye, approached it from his sightless side. Clad in his birthday suit he popped through the door into a room full of stenographers, and hurried right out again. Then he discovered the sign: "Do not enter this door if undressed."

Sell it through the want-ads.

On Vacation—Earl Reynolds, secretary of the chamber of commerce, is on vacation this week.

Advertising goes to war

Total war has forced business and industry, as well as individuals, to overhaul or discard normal operations.

Nowhere have these changes been more accurately mirrored than in the advertisements that have appeared in our daily papers since Pearl Harbor.

We all have known that advertising is a force that sells products, and we have thought of advertising in this light.

Now, with sales of products secondary to what we're all doing to win the war, advertising emerges in the forceful new role of turning the wheels of the country in new channels of endeavor.

More powerful than arguments for continued advertising in these critical times are the wartime advertisements themselves.

Newspaper ads efficiently have sold war bonds... collected scrap rubber and metals... advised consumers on the use of restricted goods... maintained sales of available merchandise... produced the contributions for Red Cross campaigns... encouraged foresight in buying and discouraged hoarding... told how to use your telephone in wartime... introduced new products to meet new needs...

... and so day after day ads are telling us how to do things differently, how to keep ahead of the game, the American way.

READ advertisements to keep ahead of the world!
USE advertisements to do a job efficiently!
